The 112th charter of Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity was recently issued in the name of Edward M. Connelly to the Gonzaga University School of Law at Spokane, Washington, during an impressive ceremony on January 27, 1968 at the United States Federal District Courthouse.

Mrs. Edward M. Connelly, widow of the late Edward M. Connelly, and his sons James P. Connelly and Ellsworth I. Connelly, were present for the occasion.

Robert E. Redding, Supreme Justice, and Joe A. Zimmerman, Jr., District I Justice, represented Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity at the installation.

It is a full time, four year evening law school, and awards Bachelor of Laws, or Doctor of Law degrees at the completion of the four year program.

NEW COUNCIL SEEKS TO BRING MORE MINORITY GROUP MEMBERS INTO LAW

A project designed to bring more minority group members into the legal profession is seeking a $490,000 grant to launch the program this summer. The newly-created Council of Legal Education Opportunity has asked the Office of Economic Opportunity to finance the initial phase of the project to bring 300 minority group lawyers into the profession by 1973.

Melvin D. Kennedy, chairman of the Department of History at Morehouse College, Atlanta, was named CLEO director. Organizations represented on the Council are the American Bar Association, Association of American Law Schools; the National Bar Association; and the Law School Admission Tests Council.

Plans call for use of OEA funds to develop eight regional centers designed to motivate and identify students who could successfully complete law school but who could not meet existing requirements for admission. CLEO is seeking foundation grants to finance the legal education of those selected, including tutoring if necessary, on the basis of need. The project is designed to start 100 students in law school in each of the next three years.

It is aimed at producing more Negro, Indian and Spanish-speaking lawyers. These three minorities make up about one-third of the nation's population, but only 1 to 2 per cent of the nation's lawyers now come from these backgrounds.

CLEO members believe minority group lawyers would increase representation and communication of minorities with society; serve as demonstrations that other members of their group can achieve success and professional recognition; attract still more members of minorities into the profession.

Factors involved in the small number of minority group members seeking law degrees now include: (1) failure of minority group undergraduates to appreciate the opportunities offered by legal careers; (2) absence of adequate academic credentials because of educational deprivation; (3) insufficient finances to afford three years of law school.

The program will not be used to help those qualified to receive assistance from other quarters, because law schools already are anxious to enroll academically superior minority group students and offer generous financial assistance. Instead, it will be directed at students who could succeed in law school with special attention and help, but whose law school admission test scores are too low to be admitted under present rigorous competitive conditions.

A major part of the program will be conducted at the eight regional training institutes. Four of these nine to 11 week summer sessions will be utilized to conduct pre-law training programs for students who have completed their junior year. These will emphasize motivation of students to pursue the law as well as provide remedial work in language and analytical skills.

Four other summer institutes will be used to identify students with degrees who could succeed in law school, though they could not meet admission criteria. The sessions probably will include remedial courses in reading, writing note-taking and other needed law school skills to insure satisfactory performance on admission.

Director Kennedy, 62, a native of Worcester, Mass., became an associate professor of history at Morehouse in 1941. He is the pre-law advisor at the college and was resident director at Yale University of the Harvard-Yale-Columbia Intensive Summer Studies Program in 1967. He received a bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from Clark University and his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. Kennedy also has studied at Harvard and the Sorbonne in the University of Paris.

Message From The Supreme Justice

One of the prevailing myths in America's educational system is the claimed decline of the fraternity system. Comments of gloom and doom were heard recently by your Supreme Justice, Supreme Advocate Rohr, and Executive Secretary Weitkamp at the Professional Interfraternity Conference meeting in Chicago, Illinois. Well, we don't buy it!

On the contrary, we assert that Phi Alpha Delta leads the legal fraternity world in service to the legal profession. And, we can readily document our case.

First, we are gratified about the recognition being accorded our "PAD Inns of Court" program. The earliest record of an Inn is that of Clifford's Inn which was in operation in 1345. The Inns of Court were the bulwark not only of legal education in England but also of moral and social training. They produced well-trained lawyers, with a high respect for the law. Some 323 years later, the latest issues of the American Bar Association Journal and the American Judicature Society magazine JUDICATURE have carried articles about the PAD "Inns of Court" program, by which we seek to encourage high standards of personal conduct by lawyers in their relations with judges, clients, and other lawyers.

Leaders of the bar have recently expressed their views to me. Mr. Earl F. Morris, President of the American Bar Association, said, "All projects which bring law students into closer contact with the practicing profession are important to the future well-being of the profession." Mr. Orison S. Marden, immediate past-President of the ABA, offered his full approval, stating that "I am enthusiastic about the 'Inns of Court' program . . ."

Second, we are again this year encouraging all active chapters to participate in Law Day USA ceremonies, and have provided them with American Bar Association materials for use on Law Day.

Third, all members of the Supreme Executive Board are also members of the ABA Section on Legal Education. All members of the Supreme Executive Board, Supreme Tribunal, and the District Justices also receive the monthly issues of the Student Bar Journal, published by the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association.

Fourth, we encourage all PAD alumni to become admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court and will hold our annual "PAD Day at the Supreme Court" this year on Monday, June 3. Details are included elsewhere in this issue of The Reporter.

Fifth, we have joined with other organizations to support financially the "LAW BOOKS, USA" program, by which lawyers abroad may have improved access to important legal writings by American authors.

Sixth, we pioneered the holding of receptions for members attending bar association conventions, notably the annual convention of the American Bar Association.

Seventh, we are just launching a pilot program to encourage respect for law and order by a student-to-student dialogue between PAD active members and high school and college students. We visualize that this dialogue may also help mitigate the growing trend of crime, our No. 1 domestic crisis.

Eighth, many of us are concerned about the commonplace public mistrust of lawyers and have already begun to study the problem. Much more will be said about this at the PAD national convention next August.

Finally, we exhort all PAD members to:

- Render legal service without compensation when justice cannot be otherwise maintained;
- Contribute personally in time and effort toward better administration of justice;
- Give constant and exacting adherence to higher legal standards;
- Attain and maintain a high degree of competence as legal technician and craftsman; and
- Seek and accept leadership in educational, cultural, patriotic, charitable, and political life.

Our resolve to serve a more vital role in the law is reinforced and inspired by the many accolades by PAD's about PAD, including the following:

"This most illustrious organization is dedicated to the ideals of American justice and the professional training and advancement of students of the law and the legal profession in general." — Allen Bible, United States Senator from Nevada.

"It is an organization of which I have been a member for many years and I commend it to you highly. I am sure that when you learn of the many fine programs it sponsors and supports throughout the country you will be as proud as I of this very enterprising association." — Paul P. Rao, Chief Judge of the United States Customs Court.

"I think the work this Fraternity is doing is of utmost importance, not only to the legal profession but to the country today." — Governor Spiro T. Agnew, Governor of Maryland.

"It is a fine and active organization which makes an excellent contribution to the progress of the legal profession." — James B. Carey, Associate Justice of the Delaware Supreme Court.

I am convinced that Phi Alpha Delta can and must become a constructive influence for due process under law. Just before his death, the last words of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt in an unfinished speech were: "The only limit to our realization of tomorrow will be our doubts of today - let us move forward with strong and active faith."

Fraternally,
ROBERT E. REDDING,
Supreme Justice

Miami Hosts District XV Conclave

Rasco Chapter at the University of Miami, and the Miami Alumni Chapter, hosted the chapters of District XV at the annual conclave on February 16 and 17, 1968. All of the chapters in XV were in attendance, including Stephens, Keener, Fish, Fletcher, Brewer & Rasco, as well as the Miami and Gainesville Alumni Chapters.

The conclave began Friday evening, with a reception at the home of Martin Frolow, Student District Justice. The affair was attended by many of the brothers from the Rasco chapter, who, as well as the visiting delegates from the other chapters in District XV, enjoyed the company of the local airline hostesses secured for the evening.

The formal conclave began Saturday morning with a breakfast at which the keynote address was given by District Justice Frank E. Maloney.

Following breakfast the delegates divided into work-shop groups which discussed rushing, financing, and alumni relations.

The afternoon was devoted to a review of professional and social activities within the fraternity and reports from all of the active chapters in District XV.

During lunch the delegates and brothers attending the conclave enjoyed a fine address by Robert E. Redding, Supreme Justice who explained the inner workings of a Supreme Board Meeting. Those in attendance were amazed at the number of important topics that were discussed at the last Supreme Executive Board meeting, involving well over a hundred matters of importance to the fraternity.

That evening, the delegates and brothers enjoyed a conclave banquet which was highlighted by the honorary initiation of two distinguished Florida Appellate judges: Judge Charles A. Carroll and Judge Norman C. Hendry of the Third District Court of Appeals. The judges were presented by Brother Tillman Pearson, Judge of the District Court of Appeals.

Fletcher Chapter was also honored at the banquet by receiving the Most Outstanding Chapter Award in District XV.

Keener was also honored by being named the chapter which had made the most significant progress during the previous year.

LUCAS SUCCUMBS

Brother Scott Lucas, an alumnus of Capen Chapter and past United States Senator from the state of Illinois, recently passed away at the age of 76.

Brother Lucas served as Democratic Majority Leader at the Senate until 1950 when he was unseated by Republican Everett M. Dirksen.

Recently Brother Lucas had practiced law in Washington and maintained a home in Havana, Illinois where he had practiced law since 1915.

Brother Lucas began his senate career in 1939 after having served two terms in the United States House of Representatives, having filled the seat left vacant by the death of House Speaker Henry T. Rainey.

Brother Lucas generally supported the New Deal and Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Fair Deal of Harry S. Truman, though on occasion he opposed measures of both presidents.

The hardworking Lucas moved up to the role of Senate Majority Leader after President Truman's upset victory swept his party back into control of Congress. He had served as Democratic Whip in the Republican-controlled 80th Congress under Senator Alben W. Barkley, the Democratic leader. He moved up to Majority Leader when Barkley was elected Vice President.

Brother Lucas began his political career as State's Attorney of Mason County, Illinois, in 1920.

Over 200 were in attendance to elect Philip M. Battaglia, Jr., of Flint and MacKay and former Executive Secretary to Ronald Reagan, as Justice, succeeding Baldo M. Kristovich, public administrator of Los Angeles County.

Other officers who were elected include: Judge John A. Arguelles, First Vice Justice; Edward L. Masry, Second Vice Justice; Judge Clarke Stephens, Third Vice Justice; Laughlin E. Waters, Secretary; Wayne Veatch, Treasurer; and Judge James Di Giuseppe, Sergeant at Arms.

The affair also served as an appropriate occasion for the presentation by Henry C. Rohr, of a plaque to Frank Gray, Past Supreme Secretary and Executive Secretary on behalf of the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter for his more than 20 years of devoted service to the chapter.

The brothers also elected Brother Gray as delegate to the National Convention to be held in Washington, D.C. in the latter part of August, 1968.

Everyone in attendance enjoyed an address by Don M. Muchmore, a leading pollster in the United States, a syndicate writer for the Los Angeles Times, and Senior Vice-President of California Federal Savings and Loan Association. Mr. Muchmore made various prognostications concerning the upcoming presidential elections and reviewed the methods and procedures used by scientific poll researchers in preparing for campaign strategy.

Among those in attendance included: Father Martin J. McManus, Jr., alumnus of Ross Chapter; Judge Albert Lee Stephens, Jr., alumnus of Ross Chapter, and Judge of the United States District Court; and many judges from the Superior and Municipal Courts.

Also brothers from McKenna Chapter at the University of California at Los Angeles, Ross Chapter at the University of Southern California, and Ford Chapter at Loyola University Law School, were present.

Ford Chapter was recognized as the Outstanding Chapter in District III and Brother Alvin N. Loskamp was honored as being one of the fifteen recipients of the Phi Alpha Delta Scholarship Award.

NELSON NAMED ERIE COUNTY ATTORNEY

Brother George M. Nelson, an alumnus member of Gunter Chapter, at the University of Colorado, School of Law, was recently appointed County Attorney for Erie County, New York, a county consisting of over a million persons which includes the city of Buffalo.

Brother Nelson's appointment fell on the 17th anniversary of his original appointment to the County Law Department.

Born in Buffalo, Brother Nelson obtained his Law Degree from the University of Colorado in 1928 and was admitted to the New York bar in 1930.

He served as G.O.P. District Committeeman for 30 years, and was elected to a 4 year term in 1937 as Councilman at Large on Buffalo's Common Council.

In 1942, he was appointed Deputy City Comptroller in charge of the City's Real Estate Division, a post he held for 5½ years.

On February 1, 1951, he was appointed an assistant county attorney and has served as First Assistant County Attorney for the past two years.

very helpful in setting up the clerkship program and other fraternity activities. Both have received awards from Campbell Chapter for their service and continued interest in the Chapter's welfare.

Campbell Sponsors Judicial Clerkship Program

Campbell Chapter at the University of Michigan School of Law presently has four members participating in its judicial clerkship program. Hal Carroll is assisting the presiding judge of the Washtenaw County Circuit Court, James R. Breakey Jr., Hugh Jones is serving Circuit Judge William F. Ager Jr., and Sam Tsoutsanis is serving Circuit Judge John W. Conlin. In the most recently established clerkship, Wayne Kirkby is assisting Ann Arbor Municipal Court Judge Sanford J. Elden.

All of these men are juniors or seniors in Michigan Law School and have been selected by the Justice of Campbell Chapter, subject to the approval of the individual judges. In most cases Campbell Chapter has been successful in providing clerks to serve these judges, also during summer months. These clerkships average about ten hours of work per week, fluctuating to some extent with the judges' case loads.

The primary duty of the clerks is researching various points of law as assigned by the judges. This may range from writing memoranda on narrow procedural questions to analyzing briefs and writing draft opinions to aid the judges in reaching their decisions. The clerks find their conferences with the judges and courtroom attendance gives them valuable insights into the practical aspects of trial court practice.

Judges Breakey and Ager are both alumni members of Phi Alpha Delta, and have been

Fletcher Initiates Distinguished Judges

Saturday, February 19th, was a red letter day in the history of Duncan U. Fletcher Chapter at the University of Florida and the Gainesville, Florida, Alumni Chapter. On this date these two Chapters cosponsored the initiation into the Fraternity of three distinguished members of the Judiciary from northern and central Florida. Included in the initiation ceremony, which took place at a banquet held at the new Holiday Inn in Gainesville, were Chief Judge G. Harrold Carswell, of the Federal District Court for the northern District of Florida, Judge Dewey Johnson of the First District Court of Appeal located in Tallahassee, Florida, and Judge William P. Allen, of the Second District Court of Appeals located in Lakeland, Florida.

The chief initiating officer was Brother Charles Tom Henderson, Past First Vice Justice of the Fraternity. Brother Henderson was assisted by District Justice Frank E. Maloney, Fletcher Chapter Justice Vincent Wibbs, and Gainesville Alumni Chapter Justice T. Allen Crouch.

Judge Carswell was presented to the initiating officers by Brother Robert M. Ervin, Past President of The Florida Bar, a distinguished Tallahassee alumnus. Brother Allen was presented by Brother Ed Bentley, likewise a Past President of The Florida Bar and a distinguished Lakeland alumnus. Brother Johnson was presented by Brother William Lines, a prominent Quincy, Florida, attorney.

The initiation took place at a banquet attended by members of Fletcher Chapter, the Gainesville Alumni Chapter, and prominent PAD alumni from cities throughout Northern Florida. Serving as the banquet toastmaster was Brother J. Lance Lazonby, another Past President of The Florida Bar, and presently a member of the Board of Governors of the American Bar Association. At the banquet Fletcher Chapter presented to Brother Lazonby a plaque recognizing him as the outstanding Fletcher alumnus for the past year.

Speaker for the banquet was Brother Fred O. "Bud" Dickinson, Comptroller of the State of Florida. Brother Dickinson spoke

Tom C. Clark to Head United States Judicial Center

Retired Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark will become director of the new Federal Judicial Center established by Congress last November, Chief Justice Earl Warren recently announced.

The center is to seek ways to solve case backlogs and administrative problems in the federal courts and will conduct educational and training programs for federal judicial personnel.

Brother Clark was selected for the post by the center's board of federal judges.

of the need for the legal profession and law students to assist in engendering respect for the law and its processes, and pointed out how respect for and obedience to the law has made possible the tremendous progress that has taken place in our country since its foundation nearly two hundred years ago. He concluded with a stirring appeal for support of this process by all members of the Fraternity, pointing out to the active members present not only their obligations, but the tremendous opportunities being presented to them for service to their state and nation through their entry into the legal profession.

Tom C. Clark Heads ABA Committee

It was recently announced by the American Bar Association, that the Bar Association's Special Committee on Disciplinary Enforcement, chaired by Brother Tom C. Clark, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, retired, will study the possibility of establishing a National Disciplinary Information Service at the American Bar Center in Chicago.

The proposal is to provide a central data bank on bar disciplinary actions.

It is envisioned that the national reporting system would be of a confidential nature, available to disciplinary bodies, bar admissions committees, and courts responsible for admissions and disciplinary decisions.

It would be professionally administered to insure care in release of information to appropriate agencies.

The data bank would also provide, for the first time, current statistics on disciplinary actions nationally.

In some instances, court and bar rules may have to be modified to permit disciplinary data to be reported to the national information service. This is one problem which must be explored by the committee.

P.A.D. Wins Sigma Delta Kappa Legal Writing Contest

Brother Roy Willett, an active member of Hull Chapter at Cumberland Law School, Birmingham, Alabama, was recently chosen national winner of the Sigma Delta Kappa Law Fraternity Legal Writing Contest for his article entitled "They Want to Meddle with the United States Constitution."

Following is an excerpt from his article.

"In this era of both national and international, social and political change, it is natural and proper for the people of the United States to look anew, and closely, at their Constitution. Such close looks are being taken by many of those around us.

"Since 1789, this great bulwark of American liberty has weathered many and varied storms; it has proven to be durable and capable of meeting modern problems. The Constitution is relatively brief, yet it is broad in scope.

"Just as the Supreme Court helps the generalities of the Constitution to evolve and adapt, so can the normal method of amendment best be employed to make specific changes or additions to that Constitution. All of the amendments thus far adopted were proposed by Congress rather than the legislatures of the states, and only the ratification of the Twenty-first Amendment has been effected by the state conventions rather than by state legislatures. There never has been, since the adoption of our Constitution, a constitutional convention.

'ONE MAN—ONE VOTE'

"A CONSIDERATION of the development of the present push for a constitutional convention must begin with the United States Supreme Court. The Court, in 1962, handed down the Baker vs. Carr decision which set the basis for the 1964 so-called "one man—one vote" rule for apportioning state legislatures.

"A leading figure in opposing the Court's 1964 decision was Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois. He first tried to get Congress to overcome the ruling by proposing a constitutional amendment—however, in 1965 it fell seven votes short of the required two-thirds of the Senate. Backers of the Dirksen Amendment then shifted to the second method of submitting such a measure — a constitutional convention.

"The apportionment question, and the convention proposed to accomplish state freedom to apportion, present a complex problem. Nevertheless, the situation is almost unknown to the public.

"Americans should be made to realize the magnitude of the problem, for it extends through and beyond the apportionment issue. Even if the proposed federal form of representation and apportionment is admitted to have attributes which would prove valuable on the state level, these are far outweighed by the great need not to place the foundation of our law in jeopardy.

"A federal system applied at the state level could help protect minority groups, as it protects sparsely populated states on the national level. But the need to protect our Constitution overrides the possible benefits. Minority groups are protected and can protect themselves in other ways. Lobbying and campaign work may bring about, in a safer manner, that which is sought through a constitutional convention.

DELIBERATE CHANGE

"Just as the Constitution, as the primary source of our freedom and democratic way of life, provides for deliberate and thoughtful change to keep our governmental system abreast of the times, so should any changes in state apportionment be brought about.

"It seems to many that the states had ample warning that they would have to eliminate gerrymandering. Now that the time for just apportionment has arrived, they have panicked into presently recommending this extraordinary means of constitutional revision. This panic could easily get farther out of hand and remain through the convention, should it be called.

"None should assume that a convention — a would-be modern counterpart of the meeting of our country's founding fathers in Philadelphia — would be even related to the original in productivity of benefits. The proposed convention might relate to the first Constitutional Convention only in the power that it would probably possess, and in the fact that it could well completely do away with the Constitution as the Articles of Confederation were done away with rather than revised.

"No one knows how the representatives to the proposed convention would be selected, or who they would be. Probably they would very likely be the convention's most active proponents. This is often the case in political movements. The convention could be dominated by rotten-borough politicians and narrow interests.

"The resolutions demanding a convention to prevent the "one man—one vote" rule were approved in most of the 32 states

CLARK VISITS GRANT CHAPTER

Justice Tom C. Clark, Supreme Vice Justice, recently visited Grant Chapter at the University of Akron, College of Law, and took the occasion to address the student body on the subject of the Procedures followed by the United States Supreme Court.

Following his remarks, Brother Clark presented the Outstanding PAD Alumni Award to Judge William H. Victor, Judge of the Common Pleas Court of Summit County, on behalf of Grant Chapter.

SUGGESTIONS FOR SUBMITTING A CASE ON APPEAL

An address given by Justice Theodore G. Garfield, Chief Justice of the Iowa State Supreme Court, at the District V Conclave in Des Moines, Iowa, February 24, 1968. Following is an outline of his address.

"The time to begin preparing your case for appeal is when it first comes to your office.

"Prepare for trial in the trial court with the thought you will appeal, if your client is willing, provided you are denied substantial relief you feel should have been granted.

"During the trial lay the foundation in the record for contentions you may want to urge upon repeal.

"Let me mention a few illustrations of things to keep in mind in making your record:

"(1) Exceptions to instructions and grounds thereof must be made before instructions are read to jury. No others are considered.

"(2) Objections to failure to instruct and grounds thereof must be made in like manner.

"(3) Objections to misconduct of counsel must, as a practical matter, be made at the time of the occurrence, or as soon as you learn of it, and if you really want it, move for a mistrial — same as to misconduct of party or juror.

"(4) Refer to exhibits so it will mean something in the printed record — by number or letter — and clearly indicate parts of exhibits referred to — as by marking the parts.

"In preparing record —

"(1) Set out all the testimony you can in narrative form, not by question and answer.

"(2) Exhibits may be certified and need not be copied but it is well to index them in the record.

"In preparing brief follow R.C.P. 344.

"These suggestions are offered:

"(1) Don't make too many contentions — A half dozen should be enough. If they won't win for you it probably will not help to toss in another half dozen or dozen.

"(2) Don't cite too many authorities — a half dozen is plenty — even fewer if they really hold what you cite them for (and are recent).

"It helps, too, to add citations to Am. Jur. & C.J.S. and Annos in A.L.R., 1st, 2nd and 3rd editions.

"(3) Try to cite the most recent decision on the proposition. Use Shepard's Citations to find the latest decisions from older ones.

"(4) Long quotations (e.g.—15 pages) are unnecessary and add to cost of printing.

"(5) Remember errors or propositions not argued are deemed waived (R.C.P. 344 and many decisions).

"What the Court Knows About your Case when you start to argue it Orally:

"(1) Each judge has read the summary — it is also furnished to the attorneys.

"(2) Judge to whom the writing of opinion has been assigned has probably read the briefs and perhaps the record if they are not too long. But other judges have read only the summary.

"Rotation Method used in assigning cases for writing of opinion — Why it is preferable?

"1. Attitude of court toward oral argument.

"Some think the court does not care to hear oral argument.

"Perhaps this is due in part to time limits on argument (30-30-15).

"Time limits are more a matter of necessity than choice.

"Sufficient time if counsel are prepared (usual time).

"Perhaps this impression due to lack of interest of judges in some arguments.

"Rest assured the court is anxious to hear oral arguments that are well prepared and presented.

"We want to get to the bottom of the case and good oral arguments are a big help to that end.

"11. Importance of oral arguments cannot be overemphasized.

"(1) Never waive oral argument — unless perhaps you are for appellee and appellant waives — to argue then may be taken as a lack of confidence in the right to an affirmance. More affirmances in non-oral cases.

"(2) Why it is so important to argue orally.

"Greatest apprehension of appellate courts by lawyers is fear of 1-man decisions.

"Every defeated lawyer wonders how much other judges knew about the case.

"Fear of 1-man decisions is a natural outgrowth of system of 1 man writing the opinion in which others join.

"Oral argument is best insurance against 1-man decision. Every judge hears the oral argument and if counsel can get over to the court his contentions he need have little fear of 1-man decisions. In our court — with few exceptions — every judge hears all arguments and has since September 1943.

"III. If court desires to hear arguments and they are so important — they are worth preparing and presenting well.

"(1) Thorough knowledge of the record and briefs is a must.

"(2) One important matter is to select your strongest contentions and budget your time so sufficient time is allotted for their presentation.

"Frequently an attorney finds his time runs out faster than his argument goes in and he comes to the end of his time without having gotten to his strongest points.

"(3) Hard to give any outline to follow in arranging argument.

"There is no magic formula or recipe.

"Much depends on the type of case.

"In a word, the court wants to hear what the case is about.

"A good argument might be patterned, in general, on a good newspaper story — The introduction should state the heart of the case — the rest should elaborate upon the main features revealed in the introduction.

"In general, state:

"a. Nature of case.

"b. What happened below that is of importance upon appeal.

"c. Contentions upon appeal.

"d. Statement of essential facts.

"(In a will or divorce case, for example, the whole time should be devoted to statement of facts.

"e. Elaborate upon contentions.

"There is a most effective oral argument in In re Guardianship of Munsell, 239-207, 31 + 2d 260.

"(4) Practice of preparing and reading oral argument a mistake.

"Effective argument a matter of persuasion.

"It is like a salesman or a suitor.

"Neither of them has ever won his objective by reading a prepared speech.

"(5) Do not ordinarily read long quotations from record or from authorities — can summarize it more quickly.

"Summarize in your own way what is in record and authorities.

"To try to prove what is in record by quotations from the testimony is usually a hopeless task.

"If the construction of written instrument or statute is called for the essentials of the writing or statute should be read.

"IV. Questions from the bench.

"They may cause irritation but they usually indicate the questioner has been paying close attention but desires further information or statement of position.

"It is best to answer the question immediately and not say "I was coming to that."

"A well prepared and presented argument is seldom interrupted by questions from the bench — if questions irritate you, that is an added incentive for making a good argument.

"Pay attention to questions to and answers by — opposing counsel.

"V. Do not divide time ordinarily.

"30 minutes is too short a time to divide.

"Dividing time usually results in some confusion, lost motion and repetition.

"It is not so bad for 1 attorney to make opening argument for appellant and another to reply.

"Do not hesitate to let young attorney make the entire argument.

"VI. Do not feel the whole time must be used.

"If you have finished your argument, sit down and don't start to rehash what you have said.

"John Senneff, seldom talked longer than 20 minutes.

"VII. Perhaps most important suggestion is to convey to the court the impression you have an abiding conviction in the justice of your case.

"VIII. If in spite of your efforts you lose on appeal, don't take it to heart — perhaps nothing you could have done would have changed the result.

"You may have had the wrong side of the case.

"The merits of the case should have more to do with what the decision is than the manner of presentation, either in the briefs or orally.

DISTRICT V CONCLAVE AT DES MOINES

The weekend of February 23 and 24, 1968, found the active and alumni members of District V at the Holiday Inn in Des Moines, Iowa for the 1968 annual District V Conclave. The Conclave was sponsored by Cole Chapter of Drake University and all the chapters located in District V were present with the exception of Mitchell Chapter at the University of Minnesota.

The first evening of the Conclave consisted of a smoker at which all of the delegates had an opportunity to develop acquaintances in advance of the session itself.

The next morning a breakfast session was attended by all of the delegates.

The Conclave officially began and Brother Robert E. Redding, Supreme Justice, reported to those in attendance on the State of the Fraternity.

Each chapter in attendance then reported on its activities. This session of the Conclave disclosed that the chapters in District V are in a very healthy condition with membership from 52 to 90, and each chapter carrying on a reasonable number of professional programs.

Hammond Chapter at Iowa University reported that it recently inaugurated an ethics seminar which will be repeated during the current year. They also sponsor an annual penal institution visitation, visiting a different institution each year.

The Conclave ended with an outstanding banquet which featured an address by the Honorable Theodore Garfield, Chief Justice of the Iowa State Supreme Court. An outline of his address is found on this page.

Hughes Chapter Experiencing Fine Year

Hughes Chapter at Denver University, College of Law, is in the midst of an extremely active semester.

The members began the year with a police department tour which was available to everyone in the student body.

In February the chapter conducted its initiation ceremonies in the Colorado Supreme Court Chambers, followed by a party.

The Hughes Chapter PAD Film Series began in February with the showing of "Anatomy of a Murder." Also in February the members enjoyed a social featuring an outstanding speaker.

The month of March found the PADs together with interested members of the student body at Denver University College of Law touring the United States Mint in Denver. Hughes Chapter also continued its film series in March with a showing of "Advise and Consent."

Hughes Chapter plans to have good representation at the District IV Conclave hosted by Sutherland Chapter in Salt Lake City on April 5 and 6, 1968.

Following the Conclave Hughes Chapter has planned its annual alumni banquet honoring all the PAD alumni in the Denver area. Mid-April will also be the time for Hughes Chapter's spring initiation and pledging ceremony.

The Colorado State Penitentiary will be toured by Hughes Chapter members and open to the entire student body of Denver University College of Law in early May.

Trosten Joins Law Firm

Leonard M. Trosten, an alumnus of Livingston Chapter, has resigned as Staff Counsel of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy to become a Washington partner of the law firm of LeBouef, Lamb, Leiby & MacRae, which has offices in New York City and Washington, D.C.

PADS Complete 10 Year Study

Brother Rudolf B. Schlesinger, an alumnus of Wilson Chapter and the William Nelson Cromwell Professor of International and Comparative Law at Cornell, general editor and director of the Cornell-based project, recently culminated ten years of research conducted by an international team of legal scholars at the Cornell Law School by the publication of a two-volume work, "Formation of Contracts: A Study of the Common Core of Legal Systems."

"Formation of Contracts," which runs to 1,700 pages, seeks to formulate and document the principles of law which are common to the world's legal systems. It is published in this country by Oceana Publications Inc. and abroad by Stevens and Sons, London.

The work has nine authors — the scholars from six nations who pooled their knowledge and labors over the 10-year span.

The research that led to the publication of "Formation of Contracts" began as an idea in 1956. Brother Schlesinger, a specialist in comparative law whose textbook on the subject is used in 40 law schools, supplied the impetus. The idea was to explore specific areas of law and to abstract the legal principles that are shared by many nations and thus could form a reliable basis for international dealings. The law of contracts was decided upon as the first field of inquiry.

Financial support for the project, which was essentially a team effort, came from the Ford Foundation. A series of seminars was held in Ithaca between 1960 and 1964. They were attended by scholars from Australia, Egypt, France, Germany, India, Italy and Switzerland, as well as an expert on Communist legal systems, who joined Schlesinger and others from the Cornell Law School faculty in the search for a common core of standards in contract law. The seminars served to bring together, in person, the men who in the intervening years had prepared written material for discussion and refinement at Cornell. The longest seminar in the decade of research and writing lasted four months. Once, when the schedules of the participating scholars found them all in Europe at the same time, a week-long seminar was held on the continent.

Seen by its authors as something of a pioneer undertaking, "Formation of Contracts" is expected to show the way for other comparative research projects in the future. While the Cornell project was still in progress, its new method of multi-national teamwork in comparative legal research received widespread attention in many countries. That method can now be followed or adapted for studies dealing with other legal subjects in an attempt to find and formulate the common core of the world's legal systems.

Other alumnus members of Wilson Chapter who co-authored the two-volume work were: Pierre G. Bonassies, Professor of Law at the University of Aix-Marseille; Gino Gorla, Director of the Institute of Comparative Law at the University of Rome; Andrew D. White, Professor at Large at Cornell; and Werner Lorenz, Co-Director of the Institute of Comparative Law at the University of Munich.

Other authors of the work include: Ian R. Macneil, another member of the Cornell Law School faculty; John Leyser, reader in comparative law at the University of Melbourne; Carl H. Neumayer, Director of the Institute of Comparative Law at the University of Lausanne, and professor of civil law at the University of Wurzburg; Ishwar Chandra Saxena, Dean of the Faculty of Law at the University of Rajasthan; and W. J. Wagner, Professor of Law at the Indiana University School of Law.

Cardozo Chapter at Catholic University School of Law recently initiated Congressman Robert O. Tiernan, United States Representative for the Second District of Rhode Island, as an honorary member.

Brother Tiernan received his B.S. Degree from Providence College and was admitted to the Rhode Island Bar in 1957. He was admitted to practice before the U.S. District Court for Rhode Island in 1958 and the U.S. Court of Military Appeals in 1961.

Prior to going to Washington as a Congressman, Brother Tiernan served as a Rhode Island State Senator for Warwick, Rhode Island.

The Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter recently continued its participation in the "PHI ALPHA DELTA National Inns of Court Program" with a presentation by Joseph D. Bulman, Joseph S. His affiliations include membership in the Rhode Island Bar Association, American Bar Association, and the American Trial Lawyers Association.

Initiation of Professor Samuel Dash

On Thursday, February 29th, before a crowd of Georgetown Law students, and invited guests from the Washington area, Taft Chapter had the pleasure of initiating into Phi Alpha Delta, as an Honorary member, Professor Samuel Dash of Georgetown University Law Center.

Professor Dash, a graduate of Harvard School of Law, is a recognized leader in the field of Criminal Law. He is a former District Attorney for Philadelphia, Pa., and has served as President of the National Association of Defense Attorneys. In addition Professor Dash has contributed extensively to the revision of the Model Penal Code. He presently is Director of the Institute of Criminal Law and Procedure at Georgetown University Law Center.

Following the initiation ceremony, Professor Dash spoke to the assembled crowd on "The Rights of Society versus the Rights of the Individual." He pointed to the mass panic over the increase of crime in the streets. Analyzing the presence of crime in American society, he said, necessarily requires distinguishing between visible and invisible crime — the former being the more familiar street crimes and the latter the product of organized, syndicate crime.

Professor Dash believes there must be a complete reassessment of the criminal process concentrating on an approach to apprehension and punishment, which will equally affect all offenders, both rich and poor, individual and syndicate.

Immediately following the lecture, there was a reception at which Professor Dash informally met the brothers and guests. Among those congratulating Prof. Dash were: Donald R. Moore, member of the Supreme Tribunal; Dan Halpin, District Justice; Associate Dean McCarthy, alumnus of Taft Chapter; and Stu White, Vice Justice of the D.C. Alumni Chapter.

Professor Dash's lecture marked the first in a series planned by Taft Chapter involving "Law and the Community." A second lecture is tentatively scheduled for April 25th and will concentrate on the proposals submitted by the President's Commission on Civil Disorders.

which have given approval, in a manner less than truly democratic.

"Not only was the public, for the most part, not consulted, but the legislation was, in almost every case, hustled through. In Colorado, for example, the resolution was not printed, nor was it screened by committee — normal steps in the legislative process.

"What happened in New Hampshire is further illustration of the methods used. The people of that state voted 150,179 to 43,837 in November of 1964 to reapportion their Senate. Seven months later, before reapportionment could be carried out, the New Hampshire legislature swiftly passed a call for the convention in question to block that for which the people had voted earlier.

"Numerous were the resolutions passed in such ways, often representing an unbelievable defiance of public will.

NO LIMITATIONS

"HERE IS ANOTHER QUESTION: Would a constitutional convention be limited only to that area for which it was called? No one can guarantee that it would be strictly limited to the reapportionment problem. Even Senator Dirksen has said that it probably would have no limitations.

"Some persons are reassured by supposing that any amendment decided upon by these would-be Madisons and Washingtons would be subject to the constitutional provisions requiring ratification by three-fourths of the states. It is possible, however, for the convention to change the portion of the Constitution which deals with amendment procedure.

"The sobering prospect of the representatives' sitting behind closed doors and changing the entire Constitution to suit their taste greatly outweighs the possible benefits narrowly proposed in the resolutions.

"In a constitutional convention, said Sen. Joseph Tydings of Maryland, a leading opponent of the convention, "all your rights will be up for grabs." A complete consideration of the problem seems to lead logically to such a conclusion.

PUSH FOR REPEAL

"The time is growing short for heading off the convention. The citizens of the 32 states which have called for the convention through their legislatures should push for repeal of those resolutions. This can and should be done.

"The resolutions should be tested by public debates. If an informed citizenry then wants the Dirksen amendment, pressure could be brought to bear to amend in the normal and more deliberate manner.

"Should the constitutional convention movement not be subdued in this way, the Congress should refuse the convention until 34 identical and valid petitions are presented to it. Two of the present 32 resolutions cannot be counted because they were passed before the "one man—one vote" decision, and proposed amendments substantially different from the others. None of these resolutions calls for a convention in the manner contemplated by the framers of the Constitution.

"Congress has no right to allow a convention in flagrant violation of democratic procedures and against the popular will, as Senator Tydings accurately stated. At the very least, a convention which might attack our illustrious Constitution must precisely measure up to democratic procedure in its proposal. At best, such a convention should be avoided.

"Our freedom is based squarely on the Constitution of the United States. This freedom is the envy of the world. It is inconceivable that an attempt to perpetuate malapportionment should be allowed to threaten our fundamental charter. Let us protect our Constitution and allow it in turn to continue as it has so capably done in the past, to be the Supreme Law of our land."

Clark Visits Edmonds Chapter

Brother Tom C. Clark, recently retired Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court and Supreme Vice-Justice of Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity, added zest to the already flourishing Edmonds Chapter at the University of Santa Clara when he spent a day with them recently. The day's activities began with a luncheon and ended with a late dinner attended by the officers of Edmonds Chapter.

HILL TO RETIRE

Senator Lister Hill, an alumnus member of Jay Chapter and senator from Alabama since 1924 recently announced that he would not seek re-election.

The 73-year-old senator, a key member of the Senate Democratic Policy Committee and a high ranking member of the Appropriation Committee said recently, "When my term expires January 3, 1969, I will have served 31 years in the Senate and 15 years in the House for a combined total of 46 years in Congress, longer than any other Alabamian.

"At that time I will be 74 years of age. With deep appreciation and lasting gratitude to all my friends and supporters in Alabama who have made it possible for me to serve our people and our state all these years I have decided not to offer for re-election when my present term ends."

Brother Hill ranks fourth in seniority among senators. He has been in the Senate longer than any of his colleagues except Senators Hayden of Arizona, Russell of Georgia and Ellender of Louisiana.

As chairman of the Labor and Public Welfare Committee and also in his powerful position on the Appropriation Committee, Hill has been especially active and influential in the enactment of numerous social welfare and public health measures.

JUSTICE KNAUSS DIES

Brother Francis Knauss, an alumnus member of Story Chapter and former Chief Justice of the Colorado Supreme Court recently passed away at the age of 83.

Justice Knauss was born in 1884 in Chicago and went to Boulder, Colorado at the age of 18 to enroll at the University of Colorado Law School. He graduated in 1905 and was admitted to the bar during the same year.

In 1915 Brother Knauss began a 16 year series of terms as a State Senator from Denver and was Senate Leader for 4 years.

In 1942 he was appointed a member of the Denver Board of Adjustment and Zoning and held that position for 4 years.

In 1946 he became a Denver District Court Judge, a position that he held until 1951 when he was appointed to the State Supreme Court.

Brother Knauss retired from the court in 1961.

His other activities included Chairmanship on the Board of the Trinity Methodist Church, Past Potentate of El Jabel Shrine, a 33rd Degree Mason, and a member of the Advisory Board of Crippled Childrens Hospital in Salt Lake City. He was also a member of the Lions and Elks Club and the Denver Athletic Club.

PAD Named Dean At Duquesne University

Lewis L. Manderino, chapter member of Egan Chapter, was recently named Dean of the Duquesne University School of Law.

Brother Manderino obtained his legal education at Harvard Law School where he graduated in 1954.

He then spent two years clerking for Judge Austin L. Starley of the 3rd Circuit Court of Appeals.

In 1956 he and his brother Jim, a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Law, began private practice in their hometown of Monessen.

In the summer of that year, Brother Manderino began teaching part time at Duquesne University School of Law, still maintaining his private practice.

Among those attending the luncheon, held in Benson Memorial Center on the University Campus, were the faculty of the School of Law, University dignitaries, distinguished local judges, and prominent members of the local bar, including the president of the County Bar Association, and the district attorney and county counsel. Mr. Justice Clark spoke briefly on the activities of the Federal Trial Judges School which is an important part of his retirement.

Following the luncheon, Brother Clark addressed the law students in the Moot Court Room in Bergin Hall. He interspersed a discussion of his career as Attorney General with humorous events he observed during his years on the Supreme Court. He also contrasted his experiences as an advocate to that of his role as Justice. He pointed out that when he was Attorney General, if he decided against someone, he knew they had recourse to the courts; but that as Justice on the Supreme Court he knew they had no place else to go.

At a question and answer session immediately following, Brother Clark explored such areas of the law as electronic eavesdropping, fifth amendment protections, and capital punishment. He also spent some time giving the students his ideas on the role the lawyer should play in the future destiny of the country. He told them as lawyers they can render great service and that they should consider it a privilege to represent people when their lives and liberties are at stake.

Brother Justice Clark then, before the student body, presented Risden C. Ackerman with a check for $500, one of the 15 scholarships recently awarded to winners of PAD's first scholarship program. Brother Ackerman, a third year student and Justice of Edmonds Chapter, was further honored when Brother Justice Clark announced that his son, Attorney General Ramsey Clark, had recently appointed him to the tax division of the Department of Justice.

Immediately following the presentation, a coffee hour was held for the benefit of second year PADs, who had a chance on a very informal basis to discuss various areas of the law of their choosing, such as how the Supreme Court Justices procedurally get the decisions rendered, and how Mr. Justice Clark himself dealt with these problems. His frank and open discussion gave them real insight into Supreme Court procedure.

Edmonds Chapter at 5:30 moved to Dean Leo A. Huard's home for a cocktail hour for the benefit of third year PADs, PAD faculty, and Edmonds Chapter alumni. Brother Clark discussed any topics the students and faculty wished to pose. His good humor coupled with his overall grasp of recent thinking in the expanding areas of the law made this one of the really memorable events in the careers of the members of Edmonds Chapter.

Following the cocktail hour, the officers of Edmonds Chapter sponsored a dinner at the world-famous Paolo's Restaurant in San Jose. The guests were Brother Clark, Dean Huard and his wife, and Professor Henry A. Dietz, Faculty Advisor for Edmonds chapter. It was a quiet, relaxed dinner offering Brother Clark the opportunity to render personal observations on fraternal life and other topics normally not appropriate for group presentations. This will be a long remembered momentous day for Edmonds Chapter and for Santa Clara.

In the fall of 1959, he became a full time faculty member, still maintaining some private practice until 1962 when he devoted full time to his teaching schedule.

Darrow Chapter Members Accompany City Police

On Friday, December 15, 1967 twenty-three members of Darrow Chapter joined Baltimore City Police officers in their squad cars for the 7:00 p.m. to midnight shift. The members were each assigned to one of the six Police Districts in Baltimore City and they reported to the Shift Commander of the District at 6:45 p.m. to begin their night on patrol with the Department.

All of the members signed waivers of damages against the city in case of injury and were then assigned to the officers in whose squad car they would ride. The officers were veterans of many years experience on the police force and were very interested in giving the members a look at what criminal law enforcement is all about in the flesh, while at the same time the officers were interested in the views of the members and their impressions of how crime and criminals should be dealt with.

The members were assigned in pairs and rode as observers in the squad cars with the officers. They were not to interfere in any manner with the officers in the performance of their duties and on all calls to private dwellings they were not to enter unless the occupant granted permission to do so.

This experience which the Baltimore City Police afforded the members of Darrow Chapter was a most rewarding one for it brought home the understanding that the police are doing a job to the best of their ability under the most difficult circumstances.

ABA News

Civic leaders concerned with criminal problems in Philadelphia heard Earl F. Morris, President of the American Bar Association, blame public indifference to petty crime as a basic cause of the increase in lawlessness.

Speaking before the Crime Commission of Philadelphia Morris noted that people "react indifferently if they react at all" to minor crimes and the problems of law enforcement. "A shrug of the shoulders," he said, "is an all too common response to padding the expense account" or "fixing a parking ticket."

We must all shoulder part of the blame for this, Morris said. Our "head shaking and shoulder shrugging . . . is truly a cause — a root cause — of all crime in this country."

Morris named as the most insidious aspect of the public's lack of moral concern the "white collar crime" that occurs at the upper strata of society. He pointed out that many of our largest corporations have been involved in adverse court decisions for violating antitrust, advertising and labor laws.

The effect of this type of wrongdoing, he said, results in injury or death from tainted foods and violations of safety regulations; financial losses from marketing worthless products and securities, and price fixing; and, most serious, "damage to the nation's social, political and economic institutions."

He blamed indifference for allowing more violent forms of lawlessness to increase and flourish. And, he added, the public has only recently realized that crime touches us all personally. "Your risk and my risk of becoming the victim of crime," he said, "has risen approximately 50 percent since 1960."

Morris also decried public reaction to urban violence, noting a tendency to equate other forms of crime in the streets with "Negro rioting." The reasons for the increased crime rate, he said, are more numerous, profound and complex.

He suggested the causes were: our highly urbanized and immensely complicated society which has created stifling, airless cities; great pockets of poverty in an age of enormous prosperity; the "philosophical" approach to civil disobedience which distinguishes between good and bad laws; and repeated criminal offenses by the same individuals.

The indifferent society we have created, he said, has caused the alienation of youth. The young are seeking new values and different standards and, when they cannot find them, too often they turn to crime. In 1966, Morris said, almost half of those arrested for serious crimes were under 18.

Morris stated that most people respect federal law enforcement bodies, but local and state police departments "are often considered to be staffed by inferior people doing an inadequate job." He said a prime goal should be community recognition "that being a policeman is one of the toughest jobs in our society."

Morris commended the Crime Commission for creating the Philadelphia Law Enforcement Planning Council. He noted that, since its creation, the index of crime in the city has remained reasonably constant as opposed to other cities which have no active citizen crime commissions.

It is the only evening law school in the Pacific Northwest accredited as a full time school.

The purpose of the law school is to provide the opportunity for men and women to participate in the tradition of western culture, to communicate and enhance wisdom in order that the men and women who enter Gonzaga may take their place in society, fully aware of what they are, and thereby be capable of advancing human development through their own enriched contribution. The primary emphasis is on the exploration of juridical ideas and traditions within the framework of the concepts of justices. These concepts have evolved in the Anglo-American tradition of jurisprudence.

The curriculum and method of instruction is designed to prepare students to assume the professional responsibilities of attorneys wherever the Anglo-American system of law prevails. Emphasis is placed upon thoroughly familiarizing the students with the principles of the common law and the important statutory enactments of the state and Federal governments.
