A MIGHTY GAVEL — Shown above ready to wield the ceremonial gavel of PAD is Supreme Justice Henry C. Rohr as the Convention was called to order.

38th Biennial Convention Report Women Are Admitted to Membership

The 38th Biennial International Convention of Phi Alpha Delta held September 2-5, 1970 at the Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans, Louisiana, not only made PAD history but also made professional fraternity history. By a vote of 217 for and 50 against, the Constitution of the Fraternity was amended to provide for the admission of women into membership. Thus, did Phi Alpha Delta become the first law fraternity and reportedly the first professional fraternity to admit women into membership. As this issue of The Reporter goes to press, information available to the Editor indicates that other fraternities are now in the process of taking action which will allow them to follow the precedent set by PAD.

Other action of particular note included the changing of pledge status to associate status, the adoption of local option on the abolishment of a pledgship or association period, the establishment of a scholastic aid program to disadvantaged minority group students, the establishment of a tutorial program and the adoption of an increase in the active initiation fee to $30 effective August 1, 1971.

What was later termed by many as "the most productive PAD Convention in the history of the Fraternity" was commenced Tuesday evening, September 1 with a reception for all members and their ladies in the Gold Room of the World famous Roosevelt Hotel in New Orleans, Louisiana. Elaborate hors d'oeuvres and a specially prepared oyster bar helped to soften the appetites of delegates from across the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada.

The Convention was formally called to order by Supreme Justice Henry C. Rohr at 9:30 A.M. the next morning in the International Ballroom. Following the formal procession of the Supreme Officers and the invocation, words of welcome were extended on behalf of the Governor of Louisiana and the mayor of New Orleans. Assistant Dean John J. McAulay of Loyola University and Chairman of the Host Committee extended a welcome on behalf of the New Orleans PADs. Also introduced was Brother John Fournet, Chief Justice of the Louisiana Supreme Court (retired).

One of the highlights of the opening ceremonies was a telephone call broadcast throughout the Convention hall from the Honorable Tom C. Clark of the United States Supreme Court (retired), a Past Supreme Vice Justice of the Fraternity.

The Keynote Address for the Convention was delivered by past Supreme Justice Robert E. Redding of the Department of Transportation.

CONVENTION

The most informational portion of the Convention was held Wednesday afternoon in the form of Chapter Workshops. Topics and panel members were as follows: Chapter Organization and financing — Supreme Treasurer Don Hutson, Moderator, Hiram Dodd, Jr., Hull Chapter, and past Supreme Justice Robert E. Redding, panelists; Rushing, Pledging, and Initiation—Supreme Secretary C. Message from the Supreme Justice

The greatest single recent event of general concern to the fraternity was the 38th biennial convention held in New Orleans in early September.

The continuous growth and development of our organization is indicated by the consideration and determination of the largest number of items ever to come before the supreme governing body.

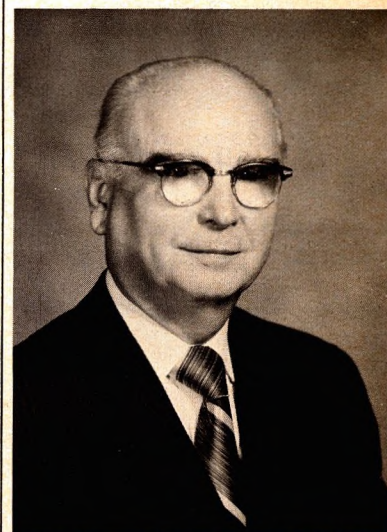

Important decisions included the opening of membership to women, recommending aid and granting scholarship to disadvantaged minorities, increase of the number of grants in the recently inaugurated scholarship program, the beginning of a financed tutorial program, increase of initiation fees, and many others.

An avid and enthusiastic member of PAD, he held his membership in Temple Chapter.

HON. ALEX A. HOTCHKISS

The necessary recurring subjects which regularly require convention action were handled with seriousness and efficiency by the committees, which materially lessened the burden of the delegates when assembled as a whole. The convention directions, on both these subjects and the new items, have since been having the attention of the Supreme Executive Board and the Executive Office, for further action and execution.

Membership in Phi Alpha Delta continues to be sought out by colonization groups in recognition of the organization's standing as the foremost international law fraternity. This year should include the selection of some sound and substantial additions to our chapter members.

The "Inns of Court" program was adopted by the assembly delegates as a primary professional program of our association. The idea and plan of "Inns of Court" was proposed and is sponsored by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, from each chapter recently received a letter concerning its encouragement.

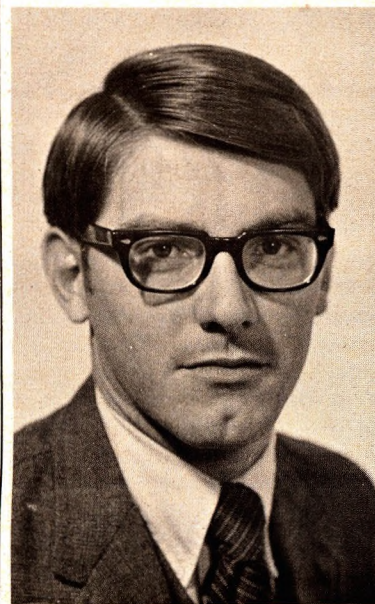

It is important, not only that each chapter have such an appropriate program, but that its object and purpose of acquiring knowledge of and acquaintance with proper courtroom conduct and decorum, etiquette and ethics be observed.

Present and recent trials have received widespread news reports in which trial disruptions have occurred. These most serious departures from courtroom practices make this subject a timely one. These incidents offer an opportunity to explore meaningfully, both actual and hypothetical situations, in an examination and study of the whole scope of a lawyer's privileges and duties, with reference to the court, his client and his cause, and to adverse counsel, from such matters of gravest concern to the simplest acts of courtesy and decency.

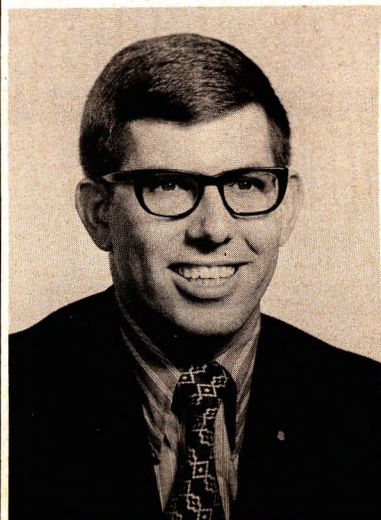

Fraternally,
ALEX HOTCHKISS

Robertson of Washington, D.C. To that time only six of some 60,000 members had been elected to the Distinguished Service Chapter. Those previously elected were retired Supreme Court Justices Tom Clark and Charles E. Whittaker, Past Supreme Secretary Frank E. Summary and professional students, have been singularly starved for adequate financial assistance to meet the high costs for attending three years of study required for completion of the first professional degree. This glaring shortage of funds has been noticeable both from the private and public sectors. Over the years, our profession has been properly concerned for the financial well-being of our general law student population. We must, however, accelerate our efforts to find a solution to the problem of providing assistance for law students from minority and disadvantaged backgrounds. There is no doubt that economically and culturally disadvantaged persons have great difficulty entering the legal profession. Most notably, minority groups, as in most other sectors of American life, are seriously under-represented in the legal profession. The reasons for this deficit are varied and complex; but they are similar to the factors that accounts for the under-representation of minority group members in other fields.

Blacks, for example, constitute roughly 12% of the national population, but make up slightly more than 1% of the Bar. The most recent available figures indicate that there is one lawyer for every 637 persons in the United States but only one Black lawyer for every 7,000 Black citizens. Even these figures do not measure the particularly acute imbalance in certain sections. Although half the Nation's Blacks live in the South today, less than 15% of the Black lawyers practice there. In the South, therefore, there is but one Black lawyer for every 28,500 Black citizens.

Other minority groups have fared no better, if indeed as well. There are no nationwide figures for persons of Spanish-American ancestry, but a single typical illustration is suggestive. In the City and County of Denver, about 9% of the population is Mexican-American, but only about 10 of the city's 2,000 lawyers — ½ of 1% — have Spanish surnames. The plight of the American Indian is even more worse. The only available estimate reports that no more than about 10 American Indian attorneys are licensed in the entire United States.

Fortunately, it appears that a dent is finally beginning to be made in this imbalance. On the basis of enrollment for the 1967-67 academic year, reported by 136 of the 155 law schools in the United States, there were in that year 1,254 Black students (an increase of approximately 550 from 1964-65), 180 Mexican-American students and 32 American Indian students. Total law school enrollment was approximately 70,332. Data from 142 law schools for the 1969-70 academic year indicated that Black enrollment had increased to approximately 2,170 students, Mexican-American enrollment to approximately 415 students and American Indian enrollment to over 70 students. Total law school enrollment was reported to be approximately 72,032.

There are numerous reasons why significant measures must continue and that we may redress the glaring imbalance in the legal profession and otherwise open the profession to people with economically and culturally disadvantaged backgrounds.

First, the best interests of disadvantaged clients demand an increase in attorneys drawn from economically and culturally disadvantaged backgrounds. The frequent exploitation of the poor and disadvantaged in the urban ghettos is a product of many factors. Yet, no defense or antidote would be more effective than readily available legal counsel within the community where such practices occur.

Second, lawyers are needed to take on the unpopular causes that come from disadvantaged group areas. Affluent lawyers are often willing and able to plead such cases, and under certain circumstances may be highly effective. But increasingly the need is for attorneys of backgrounds similar to those of the clients, who thus understand the cause even if they do not share it. Particularly where racial tension or hostility is involved, the lawyer originating from the disadvantaged group is far better equipped to bridge the gap and to provide effective counsel than those with other backgrounds.

Third, there is mounting evidence of the reluctance of minority group persons in need of help or counsel to confide in majority group members. Within the Spanish-speaking community, the language barrier poses an obvious deterrent to effective communication between inside clients and outside attorney. A similar barrier exists as to the American Indian community. In the Black community, the language barrier is subtler but no less serious. In addition, there is a serious lack of empathy between all those minority groups and the majority of the population of the country.

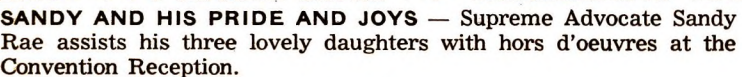

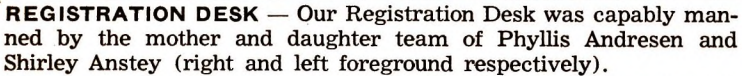

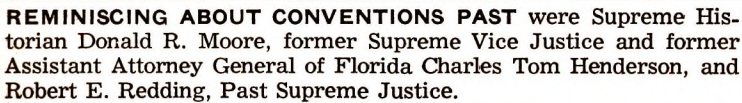

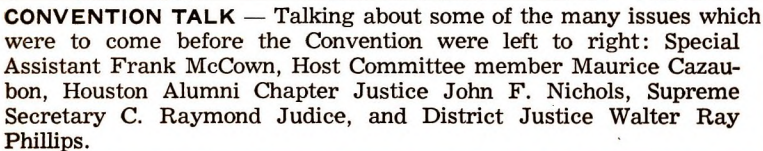

Fourth, increasing the membership in the Bar of persons from disadvantaged groups ensures the development of responsible leadership within the communities of those groups. It also facilitates the participation of members of those groups in Government and the political processes, since lawyers occupy a disproportionate share of appointed and elective public offices.

Fifth, minority group attorneys provide career models for the guidance and inspiration of young members of those groups. The success—both tangible and intangible—which minority group members achieve through admission to the Bar and the legal profession affords an important avenue of advancement. Thus, increased representation in a high status profession such as law constitutes an important socioeconomic achievement in and of itself.

Finally, it is morally right and consistent with all that we believe that the Bar assist the law schools in seeking every available means of increasing substantially and rapidly the participation of minority groups and economically and culturally disadvantaged people in the life of the legal profession. Serious under-representation of minority is least tolerable in the legal profession, for it is that profession which bears the responsibility for enforcing the constitutional and statutory guarantees of equality and nondiscrimination. To impose those standards on others, without being able to put one's own house in order, would constitute the worst form of hypocrisy.

For all of these reasons, The Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity in Convention assembled at New Orleans, Louisiana, this fifth day of September, 1970, pledges itself to lend all possible aid, financial and otherwise, to the efforts of the American Bar Association, the Association of American Law Schools, and the National Bar Association to increase the number of disadvantaged minority group members in the legal profession, and to stimulate other groups, including state

Judge Alfred P. Murrah Honored

Judge Alfred P. Murrah, former Supreme Justice of the Fraternity and newly appointed Director of the Federal Judicial Center, succeeding Brother Tom C. Clark, was honored by the Washington, D.C. Alumni Chapter at a luncheon held at our Nation's Capitol on August 14, 1970.

Brother Donald R. Moore, the Supreme Historian of the Fraternity, introduced Judge Murrah and extended congratulations to him on his appointment.

In responding to the presentations, Judge Murrah noted that he had been a PAD for more than 40 years and that this gathering was illustrative of how meaningful the fraternal relationship is. In a day when it is popular to scoff at such associations, he said, it is heartening to find his law fraternity thriving and exemplary of true friendship.

Judge Murrah gave high praise to Justice Tom C. Clark, his predecessor as Director of the Federal Judicial Center, both for his public service and for his continued devotion to PAD.

Judge Murrah frankly stated that he was a "little vexed" when he had to interrupt an important conference to attend the luncheon, but he said the vexation was soon evaporated by the fraternal fellowship that he found. He emphasized that everyone needs to be lifted out of his daily routine and to find inspiration in a meaningful relationship such as PAD offers.

The luncheon group included the new Clerk of the Supreme Court, E. Robert Seaver (Benton Chapter), who spoke briefly about his new position; Past Supreme Justice Robert E. Redding, who offered the invocation; Past Associate Tribune William B. Robertson, who, as Chairman for PAD Day at the Supreme Court, reported on the 1970 event and outlined plans for 1971; and Past Washington Alumni Chapter Justice Scott P. Crampton.

First Convention Oratorical Contest Held

The first oratorical contest ever held at the Biennial Convention of the Fraternity took place at the Convention Banquet on September 5, 1970. Some twenty persons entered the contest and the judging was difficult at all stages.

Three finalists were selected by the judges and these three spoke before the Convention Banquet. All did an excellent job and many attendees thought the finals of the Oratorical Contest to be the high point of the entire Convention.

Selected as first place winner and recipient of a cash award and a plaque was Daniel S. Schwartz of Rasco Chapter, of the University of Miami. Second place went to J. Terrence Lyons of Campbell Chapter, University of Michigan, while third place was awarded to John Shoop of Meck Chapter at Cleveland-Marshall Law School.

The third member of the Supreme Tribunal is William Frank Worthington, a graduate of Hastings College of Law where he became a member of Temple Chapter. "Poncho" as he is often called was admitted to practice in 1932 and is a senior partner in the firm of Worthington and Worthington in San Francisco.

He has served many years as District Justice of District II. His memberships include the State Bar of California, the American Bar Association, the San Francisco Bar Association and the San Francisco Lawyers Club.

as dates to the delight of those attending.

District Breakfast meetings were held Sunday morning at which time each District selected its delegate to the Nominating Committee and discussed plans for the 1970 Conclave. The remainder of Friday morning was taken up with presentation and action on committee reports.

Friday afternoon saw the delegates venture into the humidity of New Orleans in September for a Creole Soiree, a picnic at City Park. Adding to the flavor of Southern hospitality was a creole meal and a banjo band.

All of the business session Saturday was taken up with the presentation of various committee reports, discussions on the reports, action on the reports and the nomination and the election of Supreme Officers.

One of the most enjoyable functions of the entire convention was the Convention banquet held Saturday night in the Grand Ballroom. Serving as toastmaster was Host Committee Chairman John MacAulay. Retiring Supreme Justice Henry C. Rohr presented the outstanding chapter awards (see story elsewhere in this issue).

Retiring Chief Tribune Charles DiGangi announced the 20 winners of the International Scholarship competition and those assembled were pleased to learn that 13 of the winners were at the Convention as delegates.

A lovely silver coffee service set was presented to retiring Supreme Justice Henry C. Rohr and Mrs. Rohr for their dedication over the years to PAD. In addition, the California delegates presented a beautiful wristwatch to Mrs. Rohr as a small token of appreciation for lending her husband to the Fraternity so completely for the past two years.

An innovation of the 1970 Convention was an oratorical contest conducted by Supreme Treasurer and former Intercollegiate Debate Champion Don Hutson. The three finalists spoke before the banquet in lieu of a banquet speaker and each of their talks was highly entertaining and well accepted by those attending. Daniel Schwartz of Rasco Chapter University of Miami was the winner, with Terrence J. Lyon of Campbell Chapter and John Shoop of Meck Chapter second and third place winners, respectively.

With the administering of the oath of office to the newly elected officers the 38th Biennial International Convention of Phi Alpha Delta came to a close as a Convention which will remain forever in the memories of those who attended.

Here's Why the New Directory Has Not Yet Been Distributed

The new 1970 edition of the Directory was originally scheduled for distribution in September of this year. However, unforeseen delays have postponed the date of distribution and it is now anticipated that copies will be mailed to all members entitled to receive them at approximately Christmastime.

The printer of the Directory has changed to a new system of setting the type by computer. Unfortunately there were many "bugs" to be worked out of the system. Rather than put out an inferior product it was determined to delay printing until it could be accomplished in the proper manner.

The indulgence of all members is appreciated.

TIMBERLAKE IS BEST — Supreme Justice Henry C. Rohr presents to Gary B. Tash, Justice of Timberlake Chapter, Wake Forest University, the plaque designating Timberlake Chapter as number one throughout the Fraternity for 1970.

Timberlake Chapter Selected Most Outstanding for 1970

Timberlake Chapter at Wake Forest University has been awarded first place in the Most Outstanding Active Chapter Competition for 1970. The announcement was made by retiring Supreme Justice Henry C. Rohr at the closing banquet of the 1970 Convention. Second place went to Benson Chapter at Washburn University and third place to Frankfurter Chapter of Suffolk University. In the 1969 Competition Timberlake placed second and in 1967 it was also designated as number one.

The record of Timberlake Chapter during the past year is indeed outstanding. Out of a total law school enrollment of 187, 111 were active members of the chapter. It has a roster of committees that is probably unmatched by any other PAD chapter. These committees are: Alumni, Athletic, Business Seminar, Telephone, Composite, Constitution, High School Speakers, Program, Honorary Initiation, House, House Rent, Library, Permaplaque, Police, Professional, Publicity, Rush, Scholarship, Scrapbook and Social.

Among its members were the President, Treasurer, and five other members of the Student Bar Association Council, the Manager of the Student Bar Association Book Exchange, the Chairman of the selection of the Outstanding Law School Alumnus, the Chairman of the Student Bar Association Speakers Program, the Chairman of the Student Bar Association Criminal Law Program, the Chairman of the Committee to compile a history of Wake Forest Law School, the Editor of the 1970 Graduate Brochure, as well as the Associate Editors, the heads of the first, second and third year classes, the Editor-in-Chief and four other Editors of the Law Review, Business Manager of the Law Review, the scholastic leaders of the first, second and third year classes.

The chapter initiated two honorary members, Raymond B. Mallard, Chief Judge of the North Carolina Court of Appeals and Judge David M. Britt of the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

The chapter maintains a close contact with its alumni and periodically prepares and mails to all alumni an Alumni Newsletter. Alumni are invited to many functions.

The chapter provides a tuition scholarship for the school of law to be used for a member or a pledge each year.

The real forte of Timberlake Chapter is its professional program. In its rushing materials the chapter states as follows:

"Timberlake Chapter refuses to hold itself out as a social fraternity flying under the colors of 'Professionalism.' It makes no apologies for the fact it is a professional fraternity which concerns itself primarily with presenting the law students opportunities which, though apart from the curriculum of the law school, are a vital and necessary part of legal training."

Among the many professional programs sponsored by the chapter during the last year were the following:

1. A trip to hear former Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas speak.
 2. A program on the new Truth in Lending Act.
 3. A police support program.
 4. A law enforcement seminar.
 5. A trip to the State Capitol. This included a visit to the Justice Department, the North Carolina Supreme Court, the North Carolina Court of Appeals and a visit to the State Legislature. A bus was chartered and various PAD alumni in public office were visited.
 6. Various dinner meetings with prominent speakers.
- Social functions held by the chapter included:
1. Open house at homecoming.
 2. Cocktail party and dance.
 3. Celebration party following Rush.
 4. A fifth Dimension concert.
 5. A Christmas party.
 6. An honorary initiation banquet and dance.
 7. A spring party.
 8. A spring outing.

The Rushing program of the chapter was conducted as follows: The Rush chairman sent out letters of welcome from the Chapter Justice together with a Rushing Booklet to each incoming student prior to arrival at law school. The Rush Committee then assigned three new students to each active member who was to write a personal letter or to personally meet the new student, again prior to arriving at the school. The member was to tell the new student something about the law school, about PAD, was to arrange book contracts and to assist in any possible in the change to law school.

The Rushing Committee set up an information desk in the chapter library where PAD material and rushing materials were available. General information was also disseminated.

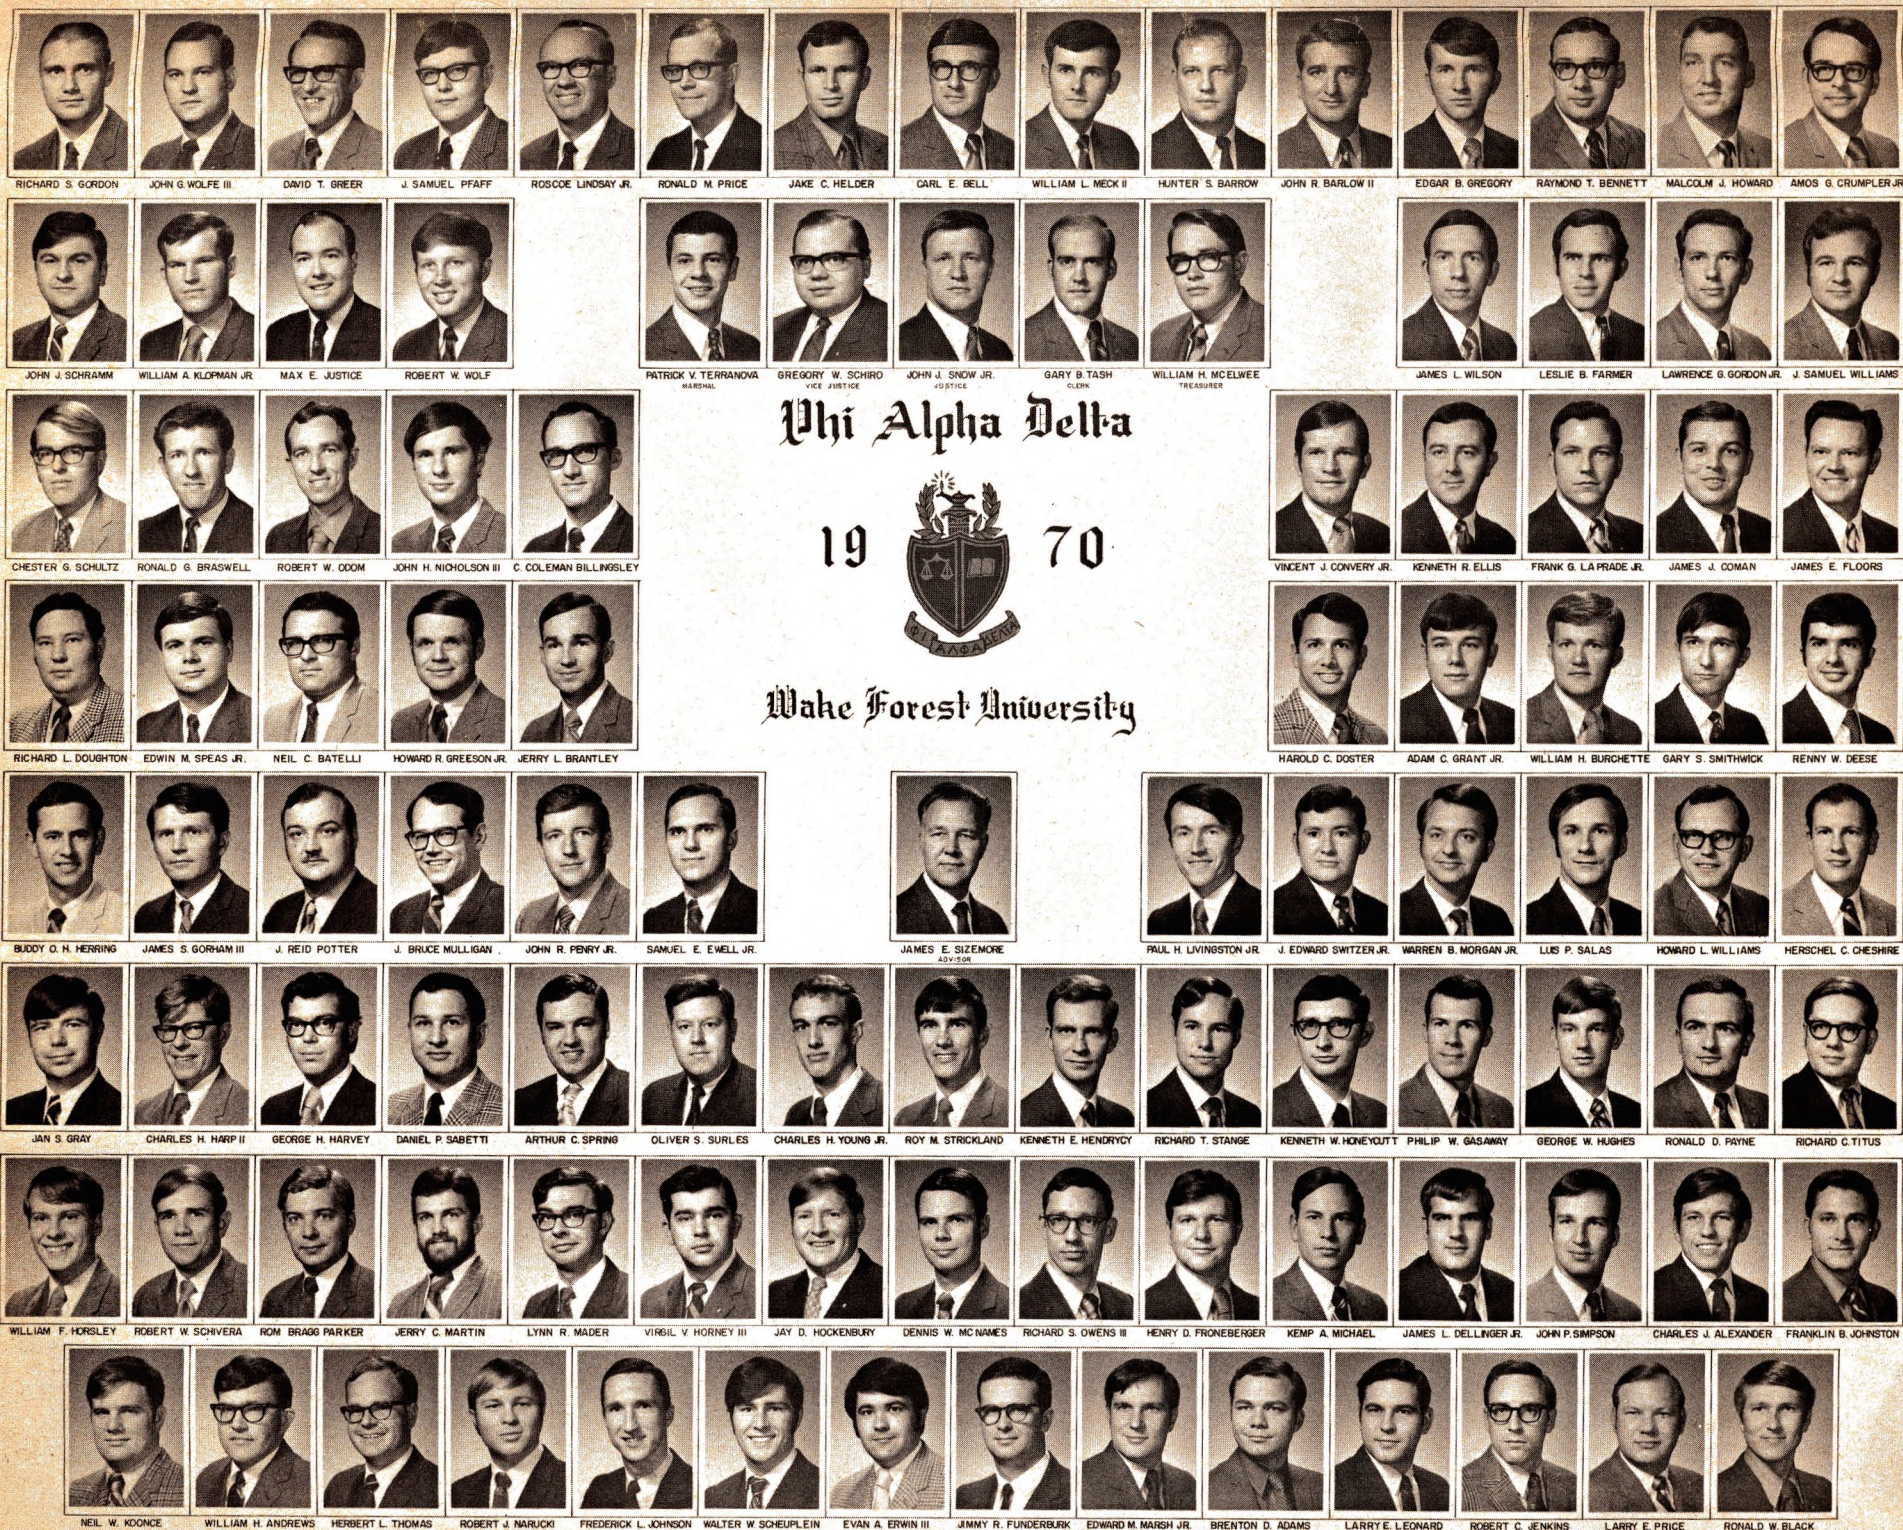

A briefing session was held early in the first part of the semester for all new students. Those conducting the session were brothers with high academic achievement.

Posters were placed in the law school about each Rushing function and notices were placed on the blackboards in each classroom. In addition, individual active members personally invited new students to the Rushing functions.

One of the most successful Rushing functions was the Rush Smoker held early in the school year. Associate Justice Brother I. Beverly Lake of North Carolina Supreme Court was the speaker. As Rushees arrived they were given cigarettes and cigars at the door and were directed to seats which had been pre-planned. The reason for the pre-planning was to intersperse active members with the Rushees.

Also present at the smoker was District Justice Charles Taylor, the Minority Leader of the North Carolina House of Representatives who emphasized the benefits of being a member of a legal fraternity and especially those of Phi Alpha Delta. Also present were PAD faculty members, the chapter faculty advisor and the Dean of the law school.

The chapter also participated in the Wake Forest Intramural Program, fielding two football teams, four basketball teams, two softball teams, two volleyball teams and one tennis team.
