A Day with PAD in San Francisco

May 16, 1974, was a great day for PAD in San Francisco. A hastily arranged initiation and a thoughtfully planned Alumni meeting brought students, Judges, alumni and their ladies into happy fraternal rapport.

The sudden news that two students from the University of San Francisco Law School had to become members of the Fraternity immediately so that one would qualify to go to Toronto and the other could take off for France produced quick action. Executive Secretary Michael B. Harwin arrived in the city and got things moving. The day before, Kevin McCarthy, Past Justice of Temple Chapter met with Chief Tribune Frank Worthington and they summoned what student members they could find available, most being in the middle of examinations. The problem of an immediate place to conduct the initiation was solved by using the law office of Frank Worthington. Chief Tribune Worthington coordinated all efforts for the day with great attention and dedication.

In the presence of friends and relatives Rachael Lehmer and Patric Mayer were initiated in due form into membership in Matt I.

Message from the Supreme Justice

The Toronto Convention will be PAD's first International Convention and our 15th since the end of World War II. In the period since the war, we have rebuilt PAD into the largest and most active of the professional legal fraternities. In the same period, our profession, and the world in which it serves, has undergone profound shocks and changes.

However, as the classic statement teaches, "the more things change, the more they remain the same." Our professional objective is service to maintain a free and civilized society in which strife can be minimized and resolved within the framework of law. Our fraternal objective is service to the system of legal education to assure a constant flow of well-trained individuals into the profession.

Sullivan Chapter. Rachael will be the delegate from the chapter to the Convention. Pat is the newly elected President of the Student Body at USF School of Law.

After the ceremony all went over to the Bank Exchange in the Transamerica Tower and joined the throng which had gathered for cocktails and the San Francisco Alumni Chapter meeting. The present alumni officers were re-elected without the benefit of campaign speeches and Kevin McCarthy, Student Director of the Big Brothers-in-law Program gave a report on the success of this alumni activity. Yes it was a great day for Phi Alpha Delta!

The Bar continues to face severe challenges to its credibility, not only because of the misconduct of a few, but substantially because of the economic problems of delivering legal service. Today, the very rich and the very poor receive good to excellent legal representation. The great bulk of the population, the all-important middle-income citizens upon whom the economy and freedom depend, have been priced out of the legal market for all practical purposes. Solutions are being developed, such as group legal services, legal insurance, the use of paralegal personnel and modern technology. But one resource now is underutilized, "people-power," i.e., the great excess of law school graduates over the job openings available. New ideas are required to meet this problem. Traditional concepts of "jobs" and "placement" will not work.

Perhaps part of the problem lies in our having forgotten that we are a profession. Service, not income, is our goal. "Employment" has not been a traditional problem of the law. Not too long ago, and in the span of our past 14 Conventions, a law graduate "hung out a shingle" and commenced serving his neighbors. He was assisted by other lawyers in gaining experience and practical ability. PAD performed a major role in this process, especially in major metropolitan areas.

With the coincidence of law graduates exceeding "job" openings and the legal needs of the middle-income citizens going unmet, there should be means for these complementary problems to solve each other. PAD Chapters, Active and Alumni, should explore these phenomena with Bar Associations and the educational profession. Maybe the "opportunity to serve" is preferable to the assured wage. Historically, in the "Law," service has been its own reward. Might it not still be the solution?

May I close on a personal note? I hope to see many of you in Toronto. To all of you, thank you for permitting me to have served as your Supreme Justice. I was at that first post-War Convention in 1946. I have been at every one since. I know from that period of observation and participation that PAD is an essential factor in the growth of legal education and the profession. I also know that it continues to produce leaders for itself and the Bar whose dedication to service assure the continued supremacy of Phi Alpha Delta.

Fraternally,

JURY DUTY— Rights and Responsibilities

Richard H. Mills, Circuit Judge of the Eighth Judicial Circuit of Virginia, has been selected to receive the George Washington Honor Medal Award from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania. The award followed from the following article written by Judge Mills, a member of Keener Chapter at Mercer University School of Law.

(Many persons try to shun jury service; others manufacture excuses for avoiding it. Some are unaware of the vast importance that it manifests. And still others view the duty only as a necessary evil. Much of this negative attitude can be dispelled if the presiding judge will but take a few moments to tell the new venire of jurors what it is all about! Every juror should be made aware of the vastly important role he plays in our system of justice.)

HON. RICHARD H. MILLS

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN: You have been called to this courtroom today for jury service. And since most of you have probably not served on a jury before, I would like to tell you a little about our jury system, your duties as jurors and the function of the jury as part of this court.

The United States is one of the few nations in the world employing the jury system. We inherited the procedure from the common law of England and there has been little change in it since our nation's birth.

Trial by jury is one of the hallowed and honored bulkwards of our country's great heritage and its concept is jealously guarded by the courts in our judicial process. It is truly the hallmark of our system of jurisprudence.

I am aware that many persons consider jury duty as an unpleasant obligation. But service as a juror is a duty and responsibility of every citizen as well as a great privilege, honor and right of citizenship.

A man's relationship with his government is not simply a one-way street, all take and no give; it's a two-way thoroughfare, a common enterprise, where our country asks, demands something of us in exchange for its protection, its services, its bounty. Physical science teaches us that for every action there is a reaction, and political science teaches that for every privilege and right there is a corresponding duty and responsibility. And so it is with citizenship.

Ofttimes I wonder, when prospective jurors ask to be excused for flimsy and shallow reasons, how they would react if told that they could never serve on a jury, whether they desired to or not. Sometimes we can consciously appreciate only that which is denied and forbidden. Yet I view jury service as a prerogative of citizenship — a right of immense privilege. Each of you is a member of an elite and select group; for only a citizen of the United States, a citizen of this state and a registered voter of this county is eligible to sit as a juror to determine facts in controversy between man and man, or between man and society.

There are fundamentally two ways by which the citizen becomes a vital and integral part of our governmental system, wherein he truly becomes an active and absolute part of this democracy. The first, and most common, is to exercise his privilege and franchise to vote. By exercising that right the citizen becomes a concrete and component part of his government in a very direct and tangible way, casting his ballot to determine his leaders, his representatives, his judges. I sincerely hope that each of you exercise that great privilege and duty at every election, whether it be for the board of education, President of the United States, for or against a local bond issue or in a statewide election. For only when he is behind the curtain of the polling booth is a citizen really the "government of the people," and through the exercise of the ballot he becomes directly involved with the determination of his own future and that of his neighbors.

The other direct way the citizen participates in his government is by serving as a juror. I know of no other way a private person can serve so directly his fellow citizens — and thereby himself.

The jury is the trier of facts and the judge is the judge of the law. The jury is composed of 12 persons — neighbors in the community. In civil cases, the jury resolves disputes or differences that arise between parties, and in criminal cases it determines whether a person charged with a crime is guilty or innocent.

The jury listens to all of the evidence and testimony produced by both sides, hears instructions given by the judge of the law applicable to the case, and then retires to deliberate and reach its verdict, thus deciding the case. Neither sympathy nor prejudice has any role in a jury trial — only the evidence and the law.

The jury system is not perfect and we in the legal profession are the first to candidly admit it. But nothing conceived or created by man is perfect and anything of man's handiwork will always reflect flaws or imperfections. Yet even with its flaws and limitations we have not found a better way. We cannot guarantee a perfect trial; all we can promise is a fair one within our human limitations.

Perhaps for some of you this is your first opportunity to be in court — for any reason. You may have come today with some degree of apprehension and misgivings. Allow me to alleviate your anxiety. A courtroom is not a place to fear; you should enter in confidence — confident that every citizen involved will receive justice.

We follow a prescribed degree of decorum with symbols that remind us that our system of fairness and trial by jury commands constant respect. We call the judge "Your Honor." It is of little importance who wears the robe, for it is the system of justice it represents that is respected. Parties in the courtroom stand when the presiding judge ascends or leaves the bench because he is the symbol of equal and fair administration of justice, as his gavel is the symbol of his legal authority. More importantly, every courtroom displays the flag of our country to constantly remind us of the great heritage of democracy and justice we enjoy, and to charge us all to fulfill with honesty, pride and integrity the individual roles each of us plays in this hall of justice.

I am aware that some inconvenience is entailed in jury service: the businessman must leave his office in the hands of others; the farmer must leave his fields; the mother must find a baby-sitter for her small children. Most all of you have businesses, occupations, vocations or avocations, families and children. In many instances it may be somewhat of a sacrifice or hardship to serve. But I suggest that it is a small price to pay for the privilege of being a citizen of the United States of America.

I say in all candor that those of you who have never before served as jurors — federal or state, grand juror or trial juror — will find it a most provocative, informative and exhilarating experience, confirming your faith in our judicial system. And those who have served before will find new experiences and will, I am confident, renew your pride and confidence in our system of justice and affirm my assertion that jury service is an experience in which every citizen should participate.

I have never had the privilege of serving as a juror. Judges and practicing attorneys are exempt from jury service.

I have related the sentiments of countless jurors who have served here and elsewhere. I say without reservation that you are about to encounter one of the grandest adventures of your civic lives. At the completion of your jury duty I am certain you will harbor a far greater admiration for the jury system and our American way of administering justice.

The demand upon your time will not be unreasonable or unduly prolonged. The period of service for which you have been called is (state period). The mechanics of trials are fairly simple and will be explained as cases proceed to trial.

Before requesting the clerk to draw the names of jurors for the first case any of you who feel you have a legitimate reason because of an emergency, health, or unusual situation justifying a request to be excused will now be heard and given due consideration.

Southern Illinois U. installs Douglas Chapter

On the evening of May 2, 1974, the Stephen A. Douglas Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta was installed at the law school of Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, Illinois. Stephen Douglas, best known for his debating ability, was admitted to the Bar of the state of Illinois in 1834. He served as public prosecutor of the first judicial circuit, was a member of the state legislature, secretary of the state of Illinois, a Justice of the Illinois Supreme Court, and a member of the United States Congress and Senate, and was democratic nominee for the United States presidency.

The law school has, this spring, received provisional approval by the American Bar Association and consequently met with the Fraternity criteria for new chapters.

The installation ceremony was held in the Jackson County Courthouse in Murphysboro, Illinois. In this historic setting, Supreme Justice Matthew S. Rae, Supreme Vice Justice C. Raymond Judice, Supreme Advocate Don Hutson, and Supreme Treasurer Frank McCown, initiated the following charter members: James W. Binninger, John S. Brewster, Warren C. Brown, Don C. Collins, John Czapski, William R. Gallagher, Dan Gaumer, John O. Hauser, Terry C. Kaid, James R. Keller, Donald Lowery, Leonard L. Lucey, Stanley R. Meyer, Orval Eugene Nangle, Michael Val Oshel, John C. Ryan, Scott L. Spiller, David A. Stjern, Robert J. Sift, Jr., Stephen H. Thomas and John A. Weil.

Chapter Officers elected and duly installed were: Justice Scott Spiller, Vice Justice James Binninger, Clerk Douglas Hauser, Treasurer Warren Brown and Marshal Michael Volshel.

Chapter Justice Scott Spiller is a descendant of one of the first settlers of the county.

A dinner banquet was held in a nearby restaurant, the Logan House, founded in 1866. At this point, the group was joined by District Justice John Curielli and his wife who made the seven hour drive from Chicago — exemplifying true PAD dedication.

Rae to the then Dean of the Law School, William J. Kenealy. The current Dean, Brother Richard G. Huber has been instrumental in working with the current Executive Secretary Michael B. Harwin and District Justice Paul Kaufman in organizing the chapter. The installation team, in addition to Brother Moore, consisted of Dean Richard G. Huber, Boston Alumni Chapter Justice Charles Pfund, District Justice Paul Kaufman and Executive Secretary Michael B. Harwin. Also representing the Boston Alumni was Carl Marold.

PAD Sponsors Foreign Exchange Students

On February 13th 40 law students from the University of Leuven in Belgium arrived in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, where they were introduced to Marquette University Law School hospitality and the system of legal education predominant in the United States.

The visit was sponsored by La-Follette Chapter of PAD and coordinated by Chapter Justice Mike Bohren, Jim Bailey, Mike Mulcahy and Sandy Ruffalo.

Traveling for ten days in this country, the students had spent a short time at Georgetown Law Center in Washington, D.C., and were to stop at the law school at Columbia University before their return home. But it was in Milwaukee and at Marquette that they were to find their greatest exposure to their contemporaries in law studies.

It was for the PAD Marquette students involved, a period of great opportunity, not only to teach others about our system of legal education and legal processes, but to learn from them about their systems and procedures.

Incidentally, word has it that the visitors consumed a great deal of Milwaukee's favorite beverage.

The Leuven students spent their first night in Milwaukee in private homes of Marquette students where they had an opportunity to relax after their trip from Washington.

The program for the visitors included a visit to the Milwaukee County Courthouse, to see the conduct of a trial and later to hear Pat Sheedy, President-Elect of the Wisconsin Bar Association explain the working of an integrated Bar.

The day was concluded with an all law school party where there was more consumption of the golden brew and many friendships were solidified.

Campbell Holds Mock Placement Interview

Campbell Chapter of PAD held a mock placement interview at the law school of the University of Michigan on April 18, 1974. Mr. John C. Donnelly, a partner in the Detroit law firm of Clark, Klein, Winter, Parsons & Prewitt interviewed Lloyd Fox, Justice of Campbell Chapter.

The event was publicized in the student newspaper, the Res Gestae, for several weeks; in addition, many posters were displayed throughout the school for several days in advance of the event.

A resume was compiled for the event, and was mimeographed and distributed to all those in attendance. In this way, they were able to see upon what items the interviewer's interest centered. The interview was conducted under conditions very closely approximating those of an actual placement interview at the law school. The placement office of the law school was appraised of the upcoming event, and requested that we permit the event to be videotaped. The videotape of the interview will be used as a placement tool in future years.

After the interview was conducted, the interviewer critiqued the interview and gave his thoughts on the interviewing process in general. Questions were received from the audience, and the interviewer graciously consented to remain after the interview to answer additional questions.

Several students in attendance expressed their feelings that the interview would be of great help to them in the future. The use of the videotape in the future by the placement office will provide PAD with continuing publicity.

PAD Placement Column

Placement Director At N.A.L.P.

In order to gather further information for and to help evaluate the PAD Placement Program, International Placement Director Michael B. Harwin attended the recent N.A.L.P. (National Association for Law Placement) Conference in Washington, D.C. N.A.L.P. is an organization with members from most United States law schools, both A.B.A. accredited and non-accredited, and many of the larger law firms.

Several of the Conference sessions were quite worthwhile for PAD purposes. Of especial interest was a discussion of government employment. Most law schools have relatively few federal agencies interview in person. The individual Chapter placement committees can greatly benefit both themselves and their school by convincing more agencies to visit for interviews. A future Bulletin will discuss the procedure for attracting such interviews.

Another potential source of interviewers is large corporations. At the conference it was mentioned that the A.B.A. section on Corporations, Banking and Business Law lists major corporations in a pamphlet put out by the section. Such a publication again would indicate where to apply.

A third large hiring group is Public Accounting firms. These firms hire great numbers of law graduates each year as lawyers, not only accountants. Many law students do not realize this and thereby miss a very fine possibility.

PAD, being neither a law school nor an employer, has previously been denied membership in N.A.L.P. However, the N.A.L.P. officers have promised to reconsider the PAD request for membership in time for its next meeting which will be in San Francisco.

Regional Interviews

The PAD Placement program will soon begin a dynamic new experiment.

In addition to an evaluation of past progress, the 1974 Convention Placement Committee will be asked to implement a series of regional job interviews for all interested members. The concept will involve arranging for firms, corporations and government agencies to interview in one central location in several major cities on given dates, probably during Thanksgiving vacation. Our alumni chapter will be asked to make local arrangements. Members from any geographic area will then be responsible for making their own travel arrangements in which opportunities for summer and full time jobs will be available.

If approved by the Convention Committee, it is planned to list in the next Reporter, the cities and dates of such interviews. Interested members will then be asked to contact the PAD Placement Placement Office for information on those firms interviewing.

PADs Conduct Estate and Trust Studies

An international group to study various countries methods of disposing of inheritances was launched recently.

The International Academy of Estates and Trust Law, composed of attorneys, judges and trust officers from the United States and foreign countries, held its first meeting on Saturday, May 4 at the Los Angeles International Airport.

The originator and president of the group is PAD Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Arthur K. Marshall, a past Justice of District III.

Serving on the steering committee are PADs John R. Cohan, K. Bruce Friedman, Philip Hudner and Supreme Justice Matthew S. Rae, Jr.

At the meeting the steering committee considered 150 applications for membership in the academy. No more than one-fourth of 1 per cent of the attorneys from any nation or state are to be granted membership.

Judge Marshall declared, "we all believe that the academy can fill an important need," noting that the group will conduct an international seminar every other year in a country other than the United States.

At the seminars, an on-site study of the country's probate and trust procedures will be conducted with the help of descriptive materials, lectures and extensive court inspections conducted by local probate and trust lawyers.

In the off years, the academy will hold a similar seminar in a city in the United States, the purpose of which will be to study probate procedures in that city and state. Also at these meetings, seminars will be held and papers delivered on subjects of current interest.

PDD—PAD Leaves Fraternal Bequest

Florence Virginia Danforth passed away at Los Angeles on April 27, 1974. She was a graduate of the class of 1917 of the Law School of University of Southern California where she was affiliated with Alpha Chapter of Phi Delta Delta. She was a member of the California Bar, the Ebell of Los Angeles and other cultural organizations.

Although she never actively practiced law she took care of her own business and investments. She left many generous bequests to charities, the Ninth Church of Christ Scientist, the University of Southern California, and $2500 to the Los Angeles Alumnae Association of Phi Delta Delta to be used for scholarships for members of Alpha Chapter at USC.

Since the merger of Phi Delta Delta with PAD, Florence has attended all Los Angeles Alumni meetings of PAD and was present at the April meeting. Her bequest to Phi Delta Delta will be administered by PAD.
