Toronto to Host 1974 Convention

The 40th Biennial Convention of Phi Alpha Delta will be held August 6-9, 1974 in Toronto, Canada. It will mark the first time that the Fraternity has held a convention outside the confines of the United States. Attendance is expected to be the largest ever with delegates attending from some 160 active and alumni chapters from throughout the United States, Puerto Rico and Canada.

The Inn on the Park Hotel has been selected as the headquarters for the convention. A multi-million dollar hotel, it is set in 500 acres of surrounding park land and is located only 15 minutes from downtown Toronto. The hotel is fast becoming world renown for its outstanding resort facilities. It boasts two swimming pools, indoors and out, tennis courts, saunas, whirl pool baths, health club and other facilities of interest to all.

Convention co-chairmen Avrom Brown and Wally Lalka and Toronto Alumni Chapter Justice John O'Donnel promise all attending, a convention which will be one of the most outstanding ever.

Among Toronto's multitude of attractions are the Royal Ontario Museum, largest in Canada, Casa Loma, a 98 room castle built by Sir Henry Pellatt; Ontario Place, a unique show place and exhibition park; the home of the Canadian national exhibition; the CN Tower, the tallest self supporting structure in the world; the beautiful and fascinating Science Centre; the beautiful waters of Lake Ontario and beautiful parks and outstanding shopping facilities. Beautiful Niagara Falls is only a short distance away. Some of the most outstanding restaurants in the entire world are located in Toronto and have already been sampled by the pre-convention planning committee.

Delegates Authorized

Each active and alumni chapter is entitled to have two delegates and two alternates at the convention and as many additional persons as they may wish. The Supreme Chapter provides the actual cost of one round trip airline coachfare to Toronto, hotel accommodations and a subsistence allowance for each day of travel to and from the convention and each day at the convention for one delegate from each active and alumni chapter in good standing.

All chapters are urged, however, to send as many members as possible. It is suggested that chapters may wish to divide the allowance between two or more delegates so as to be able to send several representatives. Car pools have, in the past, been formed.

In order for an active chapter to be in good standing and to qualify for the monetary allowance, all fees and forms must have been filed prior to the convention. Each active chapter has already received notification as to any existing deficiency.

In order for an alumni chapter to be in good standing, it must have met the following requirements:

1. The annual alumni chapter tax of $15.00 per year must be paid for the two fiscal years commencing August 1, 1972 and ending July 31, 1974.
2. Each alumni chapter must hold at least two meetings during the period of August 1, 1973 through July 31, 1974, with an attendance of at least ten persons at each meeting.
3. Each alumni chapter must have elected officers and report the same to the Executive Office.

The convention program promises to be an outstanding one. It will include committees to study various aspects of the Fraternity, discussion and action on proposed amendments to the Constitution and Bylaws, chapter workshops, a model initiation, district breakfast meetings, election and installation of International officers and other business of interest to all.

Entertainment will include a cocktail party, sightseeing trips to Toronto and environs, a fashion show luncheon, an awards luncheon and a variety of other things to do and see in Toronto.

Further details of the convention activities will be provided in a future issue of The Reporter, but all members are urged now to reserve the dates of August 6-9, 1974.

FRANK E. GRAY

Former Secretary Frank E. Gray Dies

Distinguished Chapter member Frank E. Gray, who together with Past Supreme Justice and California Supreme Court Justice Douglas L. Edmonds and Supreme Justice Matthew S. Rae, Jr., played a prominent part in the resurgence of PAD at the end of World War II, passed away February 14, 1974 in Los Angeles, California.

As Supreme Justice Matthew S. Rae, Jr. stated in the eulogy which was delivered for Brother Gray, "Frank E. Gray devoted his life to service in the greatest traditions of this country and profession. Frank exemplified the American dream. A rugged individualist, he made his own way by hard work and perseverance from humble beginnings to material and professional success. But, he never found the way so hard that he could not pause to give a hand to those who found the path more difficult, or who were following after him."

Frank was a member of Ford Chapter at Loyola University School of Law in Los Angeles where he obtained his LL.B in 1943. He became Executive Secretary of the Fraternity in 1948, a position which he administered with distinction until his election to the office of Supreme Secretary in 1952. During his tenure as Executive Secretary, the Fraternity underwent its most rapid growth and expansion.

He served as Supreme Secretary until 1960 when he chose not to seek reelection. He attended every national convention since his initiation into the Fraternity.

Brother Gray was a past justice of the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter and was selected as one of the first three members elected to the distinguished service chapter of the Fraternity, which is the highest honor which can be bestowed by the Fraternity other than election to national office.

Probably no greater tribute can be given to our departed brother than was contained in the closing words of the eulogy delivered by Supreme Justice Sandy Rae, which were as follows: "Sometimes gruff, always sincere, a devotee of masculine repartee, Frank successfully hid from most of us many of his individual and anonymous acts of kindness. We will never know how many students he assisted in securing an undergraduate or professional education. He thought of service not as charity, but as an obligation of living. Frank saw to it that, with his capability, others should have a journey somewhat easier than his own. By this spirit, he has enriched the life of each of us. Our hearts are joyful to have known Frank, to have lived, worked, traded jibes with, and loved him. Frank has but preceded us a step further along life's road. His smile, his outstretched hand, still encourage us to continue our journey."

LIKE TOY SOLDIERS COMING TO LIFE red-coated guardsmen from another era parade at Fort York, a historic oasis in the heart of bustling modern Toronto, Ontario. A living museum into the past, the reconstructed fort gives visitors a glimpse at how people dressed and lived in a colonial military stockade.

TORONTO'S CITY HALL (center) is a daring departure from tradition and is one of the most exciting buildings in Canada. Today's Toronto, a vigorous cosmopolitan metropolis of over 2 million, is among the most dynamic fast growing cities in the world.

Benson Chapter Hosts Supreme Court Justice

Benson Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta in Topeka, Kansas, continued its tradition of monthly dinner meetings with its January meeting which featured Kansas Supreme Court Justice Perry L. Owsley principal speaker.

PAD dinner meetings have not only been social occasions where students can discuss classes, politics, and enjoy a cocktail before dinner, but they've also been educational. In the past semester featured speakers have been District Attorney Gene Olander, and local attorneys Hal DesJardines and Byron Schlosser.

The continued success of this tradition was assured by the October initiation which welcomed forty-five new members into the fraternity. An April initiation is planned second semester with an added membership of approximately fifty members. There will be a casual party in February for members and spouses, a senior dinner to honor graduating seniors, and preparations have started on the annual Founder's Day celebration which is a day of varied activities for students and alumni who are members of Phi Alpha Delta. In October, 1973, the PAD fraternity sponsored a very successful party - a nostalgic 1950's costume party with a dress and dance contest for that era (pictures included). There was also an always popular stag party with plenty of free beer and entertainment.

The chapter was also saddened by the loss of two of its most active alumni during the past year. Judge Alex Hotchkiss and Professor Edward Robinson have given a great deal of their time and money to PAD for many years. Their intensity for life and the assistance that they gave law students insures that their memory will continue as long as there's a PAD Chapter at Washburn University School of Law.

BENSON CHAPTER HELD A SPIRIT of the 50's party recently.

BENSON CHAPTER MEMBERS enjoy conversation and cocktails at social hour before its monthly dinner meeting.

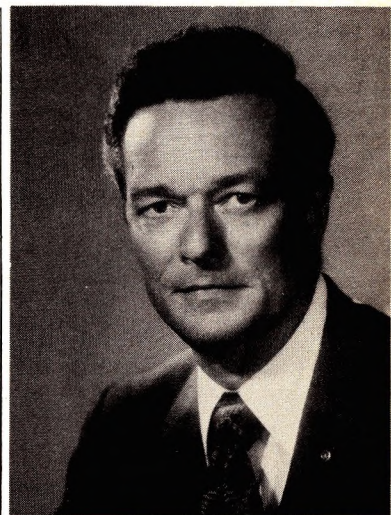

Message from the Supreme Justice

Where does the legal profession stand with the public? Is our chosen profession in deep trouble, as indicated by a recent edition of a national newsmagazine? Or is it enjoying a period of unprecedented public support, as indicated by the President of the American Bar Association in recent speeches? What can we, as law student and alumni members of Phi Alpha Delta, do to improve our profession, substantively as well as in its public image?

As with all matters of public concern and debate, the actuality of the profession's reputation probably is somewhere between the published statements of approval and opprobrium. Obviously, because our legal system is based upon an adversary process, lawyers always have been, and always will be, controversial. However, this has not prevented them from providing the leadership required by a democratic society. The rapidly expanding enrollments in law schools proves that the profession is not in disrepute with the young, rather it attracts them to a career of service. The very debate now being carried on in the public media indicates an increased awareness by our citizens of the importance of the legal profession to the well-being of our nation.

Phi Alpha Delta International, and particularly its student Chapters, can, and should, join in this current scrutiny of the Bench and Bar. There is a great amount of misinformation which needs to be dispelled. Much of it results from a failure of our total educational system to enlighten our youth as to how our government and society are structured. Our members would perform a great service by taking some time away from their studies to speak to undergraduates, high school assemblies, and even elementary school classes concerning the place of the lawyer in society.

A member who just returned from several weeks of negotiations inside the People's Republic of China tells the story of his meeting with a Communist official trained in law. The Communist chided our member for being a lawyer, an occupation which he considered an example of decadent capitalism preying upon "the people." The PAD protested that the official was, himself, a lawyer, to which the response was, "Oh, No, I am a legal adviser." To our PAD member, this was proof that even Communism cannot survive without a system of laws and a profession dedicated to their administration.

Despite all the lessons of history, however, there still are those, like the Communist functionary, who fail to realize that the legal profession is the glue which holds our society together. In the People's Republic, or in any autocracy, law and lawyers may be used to keep citizens subjugated to their government. In our Anglo-Saxon history, and in all democratic societies, the function of the lawyer is to keep government subjugated to the will of the citizens. Our adversary system, for all its flaws, has one great strength. It requires both sides of every controversy to be represented. For every prosecutor, there must be a defender. For every spokesman for business, there must be an advocate for the individual. And for every controversy there must be an impartial tribunal, the indispensable function of our judiciary. To the extent our legal system may fall short of these ideals, we are deserving of criticism.

The Phi Alpha Delta, International, Inns of Court program, conducted by many of our Active Chapters with help from our Alumni, is an excellent response to some of the criticism levelled at us today. Here we examine the ethics, and the level of performance, of our profession, and train law students to improve both. This is not a duplication of any school's ethics course. Rather, it is an extension of the curriculum into the community and profession. The Alumni who are called upon to participate must themselves renew their dedication to our profession. We should extend the Inns of Court beyond academic walls and open these programs to the public by inviting the participation of the Press and local community officials. Here is a program, an opportunity for a public dialogue, not being carried on by any law school or student bar association. This is an unparalleled opportunity to restore balance to the discussion, to counter those who would place State Bar Associations under the control of lay directors, to reverse the trend of creating bureaucratic administrators to replace independent judges.

Too frequently in my travels I hear student members bemoan the lack of any professional program not already usurped by the law school or the student bar. Invariably, this indicates a failure to understand the PAD motto of "Service." "Service to the Profession" is a prime need now. Let that be the theme of planning for Active and Alumni Chapter programs for the next school year.

Fraternally,

Matthew S. Rae, Jr.,
Supreme Justice

Texas Tech Sponsors Outstanding Drug Program

The Sam Rayburn Chapter at Texas Tech University School of Law has adopted a program which explains the legal consequences of drug use. The program has met with outstanding success and has been hailed by the community and local media.

In late 1973, the state of Texas rewrote its drug laws. This added greatly to the confusion, ignorance and misunderstanding of the citizenry. The chapter then embarked upon a full scale publicity campaign to make the public aware of the chapter and the service it had to offer.

A local newspaper carried an article on the program and one local television station invited chapter members to appear on the program to discuss the project and its goals. Remaining television and radio stations were contacted and requested to donate public service time to the publicity of the program and their cooperation was outstanding.

During the first few weeks of the program, a presentation was made to over 1,000 persons in small groups of from 50 to 100 persons. When the program was not yet a month old, additional talks to over 3,000 additional persons were scheduled. The daily mail brings additional requests. The chapter advises that once a school official hears the presentation, he is anxious to have it presented to the entire student body. It has also been given to numerous adult city groups.

The presentation consists of a prepared script which lists the rights lost for conviction of a felony, shows how the drug laws apply to drug offenders, shows how the substances are controlled under the law, lists what penalties are prescribed by law, etc. Once the prepared presentation is completed, the program is open to an informal "rap session" in which questions are asked by the audience and answered by chapter members.

The cost of the program is almost nil, while the goodwill generated for the students of the law school, Phi Alpha Delta and the profession is enormous.

Numerous variations and adaptations to the basic format are, of course, possible.

Program chairman, Gale Warren, emphasizes that "we don't talk about drugs, whether they are good or bad, we give them a full rundown on what the law is."

Hotchkiss Alumni Chapter Selected Number One

The Supreme Executive Board announces that the winner of the 1973 Most Outstanding Alumni Chapter Competition is the Alex Hotchkiss Alumni Chapter of Topeka, Kansas. Second place was won by the Los Angeles Alumni Chapter while the third place award went to the Indianapolis Alumni Chapter.

The activities of the Hotchkiss Alumni Chapter have been closely coordinated with those of Benson Chapter located at Washburn University.

It assisted the active Chapter in preparing and mailing pre-admission letters to new law students which was of great assistance to the Active Chapter in conducting its rushing program.

Members of the alumni chapter attended various rush functions held at the Chapter house at Washburn University. They also participated in the Ninth Annual Practical Law Review Program at the University of Kansas in Lawrence and many served as speakers on the program.

Besides assisting in the contact with new law students prior to their enrollment, the alumni chapter aids the active chapter in rush activities throughout the summer and fall of each year by attending and co-sponsoring smaller social gatherings at the chapter house. This type of activity is usually initiated by the Active Chapter with the Alumni Chapter providing any requested assistance at the least of which is the appearance of many alumni in an effort to demonstrate the continuing benefits of PAD. These activities have helped to create a solid bond between the Active and Alumni Officers and members.

Members of the Alumni Chapter often secure speakers for the active Chapters, monthly dinner meetings and also act themselves as speakers.

Alumni Chapter members also assist the active Chapter in the process of obtaining jobs and keep the Chapter informed of law clerk positions as they develop.

The highlight of the year for the Hotchkiss Alumni Chapter is the annual Founder's Day Banquet, which project is financed by both the active and the alumni chapters. This year the activities commenced with a buffet luncheon attended by some 140 active and alumni members. A golf tournament had to be cancelled because of inclement weather. The banquet itself gave recognition to honored guests including four new life time members of the alumni chapter. The outstanding active and alumni awards were presented at that time.

The alumni chapter assisted the active chapter in providing speakers for the Topeka Public Schools on Law Day, 1973. In this connection alumni chapter members addressed various public school classes on various phases of the law and how it relates to the lay person.

Former Supreme Justice Alex Hotchkiss, who became deceased in 1973, formerly presented a bar review course twice a year for PAD candidates for the bar. This tradition had been carried out for some fourteen years. The judge dedicated and donated his time, energy and legal expertise to this project. With his passing the alumni chapter has determined to attempt to continue the review. In fact, the bar review was reorganized using the talents of a great many members of the alumni chapter. Ninety-eight per cent of the participants in the new PAD Bar Review recently passed the Kansas Bar Examination.

The Alumni chapter also maintains a fraternity house for the active chapter. The alumni chapter pays the taxes, insurance and mortgage loan, and provides for the upkeep and remodeling of the facility. This past year Professor Edward Robinson donated new carpeting to the house. The active chapter takes care of the internal operation of the house which is used for meetings, social gatherings, and as a library as well as lodging.

One continuing and expanding project which was first initiated in 1971 has been to obtain law books to augment and improve the law library in the fraternity house. Books were solicited by mail from alumni and the response has been good. This past year, Congressman Garner Shriver (himself a PAD) donated a set of United States Codes to the Library.

The chapter also maintains scholarships for members of the active chapter.

Sirica Man of the Year

Brother John J. Sirica, Chief Judge of the U.S. District Court for Washington, D.C. (retired), has been selected by Time Magazine as Man of the Year for 1973.

The magazine, in its January 7, 1974 story stated that with respect to the Watergate affair, "Sirica's performance was particularly reassuring as a testimony to the integrity of the institution he represents. He had, from the outset, no ambition other than to do his job in the Watergate cases: find the truth, see that justice was done."

The article went on to state, "modest and unimposing in speech and stature out of court, the 5'6" jurist towered and glowered from his bench openly indignant at what he considered evasions and deceptions in testimony before him . . . Sirica used his same rugged courtroom comments to cope with the challenge of a historic constitutional clash between branches of government. Even a President must respond to subpoenas for evidence in criminal cases, Sirica ruled. Judges, not the President, must ultimately decide whether claims of executive privilege to withhold such evidences are valid. Presidents, in short are not above the law."

Judge Sirica, a member of Taft Chapter at Georgetown University, was recently awarded a special Certificate of Appreciation by the Washington alumni chapter.

Districts XVI and XVII Hold Joint Conclave

A Joint District Conclave of Districts XVI and XVII was held February 7-9, 1974, in the Capital city of Tallahassee, Florida at the downtown Hilton Hotel. The Joint Conclave was hosted by Glenn Terrell Chapter of Florida State University. Over thirty delegates attended from South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Puerto Rico. The Conclave Officers from the host chapter included: Nancy Sorak, Conclave Justice; Silvio Lufriu, Conclave Clerk; and Marilyn Strauss, Conclave Treasurer.

The 1974 Joint Conclave was organized on the principle that the continued opportunity for an exchange of ideas among the Chapters of Phi Alpha Delta benefits not only the individual chapters participating, but also strengthens the fraternal bond of brotherhood and common interest. A series of workshops were held to interchange ideas on how the respective chapters attempt to solve common fraternity problems.

The delegates time at the three-day convention was divided between the serious discussion of fraternity problems and the equally important task of getting better acquainted during the excellent social activities provided by the host chapter. Due to the gas shortage the delegates were scheduled to arrive on Thursday evening instead of the traditional Friday evening and were cordially welcomed at a well-stocked cocktail party. Registration was conducted informally over several rounds of drinks and the delegates relaxed and got acquainted.

On Friday morning at 9:00 a.m. the delegates convened for orientation before splitting up into three groups to attend the various workshops. The workshops were centered around three main topics: Placement and Alumni Activities moderated by Terrell Chapter representative Dave Seyer; Fraternal and Professional Activities moderated by Terrell Chapter representative Joe Boyd, and the Relationship between National and Local Chapters conducted by Marvin Moss, District XVII Justice. A great deal of credit goes to these group leaders for the success of the individual workshops.

Special recognition must go to Julio Vazquez from the Diego Chapter who traveled all the way from Puerto Rico to represent his chapter at the Joint Conclave. Delegates from the following chapters attended the Joint Conclave: Rasco — University of Miami; Pinckney — University of South Carolina; Stephens — University of Georgia; Fletcher — University of Florida; Keener — Emory, and Fish — Mercer. Stetson Law School was the only chapter that was not represented at the Joint Conclave.

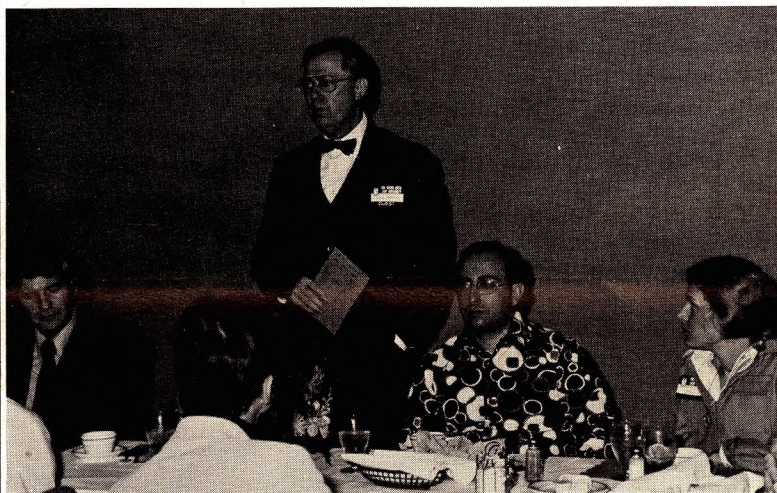

The Friday luncheon was heartily enjoyed by all the delegates when Joshua Morse, the Dean of the Florida State University Law School, entertained everyone with his Southern humor and his repertoire of interesting and unusual anecdotes. Immediately after lunch the annual oratory contest was conducted with Wade Cornell of Stephens Chapter coming out on top with his humorous interpretation of the topic "Paper Chase." Needless to say, Mr. Cornell's use of a roll of toilet paper as an effective stage prop was most effective. Mr. Cornell was awarded a $25 prize for his fine efforts.

The rest of the afternoon was spent in serious discussion with Charles Taylor, the Supreme Historian of Phi Alpha Delta International. Mr. Taylor answered many of the delegates questions and concerns regarding PAD International as well as filling in everyone on International's most recent activities.

The guest speaker at the Friday evening banquet was Justice Joe Boyd of the Florida Supreme Court. His remarks were well received by the delegates and distinguished guests. After the dinner District XVII Justice Marvin Moss presented two awards to Rasco Chapter, University of Miami, for being named outstanding Chapter in the District; and winning second place in the competition for most outstanding Chapter. Following the banquet the delegates all attended a Casino Party held at the Berkshire Manor Party Room. Various gambling activities such as roulette, blackjack, craps, and poker were offered, as fortunes were made and lost with regularity. The three highest winners each received a bottle of champagne for the largest accumulation of play money. The most won was approximately $1,925,000 in the first two hours of the party.

The party honoring the Joint District Conclave delegates was combined with a rush party for the Terrell-FSU Chapter and over 150 persons attended. There was plenty of free liquor, fun, and friendship available until the party broke up around 3:30 a.m.

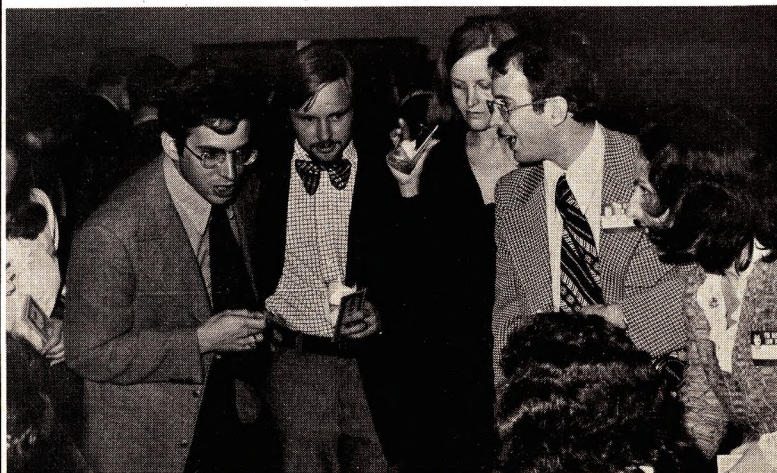

Saturday morning breakfast at the Hilton was attended by more than one delegate nursing a slightly heavy head. After breakfast the delegates went their merry ways in order to get home before the gas stations closed.

Magruder Sponsors Talks on Ethics

Magruder Chapter at the University of Illinois has developed a series of dinner speakers on the subject of professional responsibility and ethics. Recent speakers have been law school Dean Cribbets and former Harvard Law School Dean and former Solicito General Erwin Griswold.

The dinners are planned by the chapter for the benefit of chapter members and invited guests.

The first speaker, Dean Cribbets, spoke on "Watergate and beyond." He attempted to give his audience the big picture and pointed out that although there have been several newspaper accounts listing how many lawyers were involved in the Watergate scandal, he is not surprised. He observed that such is almost to be expected in a situation where political scandal occurs in our country. "This is so," he stated, "simply because many of the people involved hold law degrees and have been admitted to the Bar."

The Dean was careful to note, that although many lawyers were, in fact, connected with Watergate, most were serving in capacities other than that of attorney. His point being that perhaps their breach of ethics was not one connected with clients, but was a breach which occurred in their capacity as government administrative officials. In that respect, the normal sense of ethics and ethical responsibilities, as we come to understand those terms in law school, may or may not have had a great deal to do with their actions. Those involved breached their sense of public responsibility, he stated. The Dean was not excusing the actions of those caught up in Watergate's web but rather was pointing out the sophisticated distinction concerning the nature of the breach involved. He indicated that it is quite natural that the unique position facing attorneys regarding trust and confidence would be once again emphasized. Lawyers, by nature of the profession, find themselves in positions where the temptations to overstep the bounds of normal propriety are very great. The lawyer is always faced with moral and ethical problems in circumstances where people are not looking over his shoulder and are not aware of what is going on. The lawyer, therefore, has a special struggle with his own conscience and with the standards imposed upon him which are unique from that of almost any other professional person. "Because lawyers are human," the Dean went on, "they are going to err from time to time." He was quick to point to their track record, however, which he believes has been pretty good in this regard, as has been the record of the judiciary.

Dean Cribbit, has for many years, been actively involved in the field of ethical reform. He worked on the committee responsible for what later was adopted as the code of judicial ethics in Illinois. He also supported the recent changes in disciplinary procedures occurring within the Illinois State Bar Association. The Dean admits however, that the role to be taken by law schools regarding the school's role, in response to the question of professional ethics, is rather perplexing.

Starting out by stating, "I don't know what would be best to do in law school," the Dean went on to outline past attempts at handling the problem of teaching ethics. He told of the days when he attended the College of Law and how, at that time, a course in ethics was an elective, but nobody elected it. It then became a required course

Students Report on Board Meeting

In December I had the rare honor and privilege to observe the Supreme Executive Board Meeting held in St. Louis. Prior to that time I had met only one of the eleven Board Members. Consequently, I was somewhat uncertain as to the impression I would make on them, and what to expect during the meetings. I failed miserably in an attempt not to quickly form opinions about any particular member, or the method by which the meetings were conducted. As I was introduced to each member I couldn't help noting their friendly attitude towards me and the interest that they showed in what I had to say. I had almost expected to be "politely tolerated" as a student observer during the meetings and possibly ignored during the little free time that we had. I am very pleased to report that such preconceived notions never materialized. Everyone was very friendly and congenial. I was given every privilege of a Board Member (except voting) and treated as if I was one.

There was an obvious interest and respect for the opinions of Buzz Deitchman and myself. If our opinions were not freely given, often another member would request that we each speak on the particular subject under discussion. This profound interest in what we, as typical law students and Chapter Justices, had to say is undoubtedly one of the reasons for the success that PAD has enjoyed. Each member of the Board seeks out the comments, criticism and opinions of students whenever possible. The Student Chapters are the lifeblood of PAD, and the Board is well aware of the importance of meeting the needs of Chapters and solving their problems.

Of course, concern is not enough. There must be affirmative attempts to recognize problems and meet the needs of the Chapters. This was an area where I was particularly impressed by the Board as a whole, and by the members individually. Every Chapter was discussed in detail with the concern and understanding that a parent would use when discussing his own children. Frequently it would be determined that a particular chapter should be visited by a District Justice or Board Member. The visitation is not only an attempt to help solve a problem, it is also an attempt to boost possible falling morale and enthusiasm, as well as provide an opportunity to meet the students personally. Another important function is also performed by the visit. When a local Chapter has a problem and is visited by a PAD official, the students have tangible evidence that the problem is not theirs alone. The National Office sincerely seeks to help any Chapter fulfill its needs and solve its problems.

One of the main lessons that I learned during those three days was Being invited to attend a meeting of the Supreme Executive Board was a great privilege but definitely no vacation. I spent three very busy days with some of the most dedicated men and women I have ever met. Many student observers in the past have commented on the work and effort of the members of the board and I readily agree with them.

However, I would like to take the space provided me to address my fellow law students on some matters discussed at the meeting which I feel are vitally important. In the next few months I will leave law school and join the ranks of P.A.D. alumni and although I will support the fraternity, it is those of you in school now that will feel the immediate effect of the upcoming issues. The possibility of annual conventions, annual elections of the board, problems between the chapters and national concerning communications and the question of social membership, are all areas which will be dealt with at the convention in Toronto. Those of you who will attend the convention will be voting on proposals which will chart the future course of our fraternity.

I only wish that all of you could have the detailed information I received both pro and con on these matters. I will not be so presumptuous as to instruct anyone in their voting but I would ask that careful consideration be given to all matters. As past Justice of Benson Chapter I have seen how easy it is for a handful of people to make all of the decisions. On the matters I have mentioned I feel all members of the chapters should be given an opportunity to have their vote counted. Right now I am very proud to be a member of the largest and finest law fraternity in the country. I would like the quality of the fraternity to maintain the steady climb it has experienced in the past years. The choice is yours, choose wisely.

a valuable one, worthy of being passed along so others may also benefit. That lesson was the necessity for communication between the Chapters and the National Office, as well as with the District Justices. Frequently, a new problem to one chapter has already occurred and been effectively solved by another. Because of their experience and the vertical line of communication, the District Justices and the International Officers and Staff Members are in the best position to spot problems and offer suggestions or help.

As a Chapter Justice, I strongly encourage all Chapter Officers to be in frequent communication with the Faculty and Alumni Advisors,

DISTRICT X MEETS IN CINCINNATI

The annual conclave of District X was held February 23-24, 1974 at the Terrace Hilton Hotel in Cincinnati, Ohio. The host chapter was Chase Chapter at the University of Cincinnati College of Law.

Chapters located in the District are: Adams, Indiana University; Chase, University of Cincinnati; Clay, University of Kentucky; Hamill, Indiana University; Hayes, Capital University; Hoffman, Chase College of Law; McKinley, Ohio State University and Vinson, University of Louisville. Alumni Chapters located in the district are: Central Ohio, Indianapolis, Louisville and Tri-State in Cincinnati.

The Conclave was called to order at a luncheon on Saturday, February 23rd with the introduction of various speakers and guests, who were: Dean Victor Schwartz, University of Cincinnati College of Law; Ken Schachleiter, Justice, Cincinnati Alumni Chapter; Don Hutson, Supreme Advocate; Frank McCown, Supreme Treasurer and Larry Crigler, District Justice.

Seminars were held in the afternoon on the PAD Placement Program, the law firm and the young associate, legal ethics, PAD and the legal environment and funding the chapter.

The State of the Fraternity Address was given by Supreme Advocate Don Hutson of Kansas City, Missouri who spoke on the outstanding advances which have been made by the Fraternity in virtually every area.

The closing events of the Conclave were an awards banquet and a cocktail party hosted by the Cincinnati Alumni Chapter.

District Justices and the International Office in an attempt to spot a future potential problem before it becomes a current crisis that can cripple a Chapter for years.

Because of space limitations, I can only comment briefly on some of the Board members. Each member in his or her own way is a valuable asset and contributes to the cohesiveness of the Board. Each member impressed me with the broad scope of knowledge that they possessed concerning PAD, and the detailed knowledge each had in areas where it was required.

The Board worked rapidly and efficiently under the capable control of Supreme Justice Matthew S. Rae to cover a staggering amount of PAD business. Supreme Justice Rae can rightfully be proud of the gains PAD has made during his administration.

Much of the credit for the actual functioning of the International Office must go to the two staff members, Fred Weitkamp and Michael Harwin. Both expend enormous amounts of effort in traveling, careful preparation for meetings, and the administration of the dictates and policies enumerated by the Board.

The other Board members are all capable and dedicated men and women. I only wish I could give more insight into each of them. However, we can all be proud of the effort that they expend on behalf of PAD.

Having met these men and women and observed their operations, boosts my pride in association with PAD, and gives more meaning to my own efforts for the benefit of PAD, and the efforts of my fellow officers and members in the John L. Sullivan Chapter at St. Louis University.

Grant Chapter Conducts Active Programs

This has been an especially active year for both the Charles R. Grant Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta and the University of Akron School of Law. Highlighting the Fall Quarter was the dedication of a new facility—the C. Blake McDowell Law Center. Principal speaker was Chesterfield Smith, ninety-seventh president of the American Bar Association.

Following the ceremonies, eighteen new members were initiated, including the Honorable Paul C. Weick, Judge of the United States Court of Appeals, Sixth Circuit (Honorary Member), and the Honorable Sam H. Bell, Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, Summit County (Alumni Member). Grant Chapter was also honored by the presence of Supreme Justice, Matthew S. Rae, Jr. The evening was climaxed by the customary post-initiation dinner held at the Brown Derby Restaurant and attended by approximately eighty-five members and guests.

Social activities included a Super Bowl Rush Party at the University Club. Members explained the goals of our Fraternity, non-members were given a chance to meet members, Brothers, and the informal atmosphere provided everyone with a chance to watch his favorite team win or lose the Super Bowl.

Benson Elected to KY Assembly

Brother Wesley Liebler has been appointed Director of the Office of Policy Planning and Evaluation of the Federal Trade Commission.

A member of Corliss Chapter at the University of North Dakota and also holding membership in Marshall Chapter at the University of Chicago, Brother Liebler was a member of the Order of the Coif and managing editor of the Law Review. He has been a professor of Law at UCLA Law School since 1965. In 1964 he served as counsel to the President's Commission to Investigate the Assassination of President Kennedy.

January also saw two informative (and very successful) seminars—"Opportunities for Women in Law," conducted by local women lawyers, and "How to Prepare for the Bar Exam," led by Charles Armstrong a recent graduate of the School of Law who was the number one point-scorer on the July, 1973 Ohio Bar Exam. The "Women in Law" seminar will be printed in its entirety in an upcoming issue of Arete, the law school news publication.

The Alumni Reception Committee arranged a luncheon at the University Club with the mayors and law directors of the surrounding municipalities. Among those attending was John Ballard, mayor of Akron, Ohio. PAD Stanley A. Samad, Dean of the School of Law was awarded a "Certificate of Appreciation" for the many efforts he extended on behalf of the Chapter during the past year.

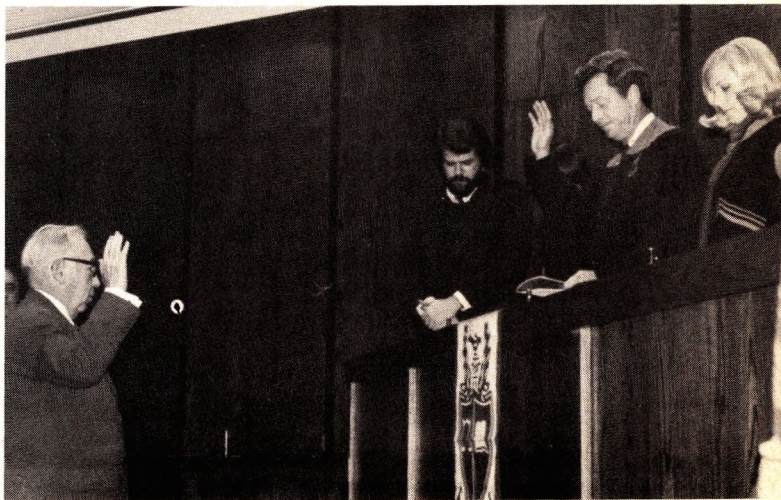

Because of the favorable reaction to the above-mentioned seminars, speakers at the recent Winter Quarter initiation included Elizabeth A. Moody, Professor of Law at Cleveland State University College of Law and president of the Women's Law Fund, an organized group representing women's rights funded by the Ford Foundation, and Robert Fowler, a staff attorney with the Public Defender's Office of Summit County and Lecturer in Law at the University of Akron School of Law. Topic: "Equal Opportunity Under the Law."

The Winter Quarter's major project is the coordination of a program co-sponsored by the National District Attorneys Association and the National Legal Aid and Defender's Association under a grant from the federal government. The purpose of the program is not only to acquaint students with the responsibilities of the prosecutor and criminal defender, but also to place students with offices throughout the country. William Owens Prosecuting Attorney for Huron County, Ohio, explained the program to students.

Chapter membership now exceeds ninety, well over one-third of the day division enrollment.

Chapters contained in this District are: Butler Chapter, William Mitchell College of Law; Cole Chapter, Drake University; Corliss Chapter, University of North Dakota; Hammond Chapter, University of Iowa; More Chapter, Creighton University and Reese Chapter, University of Nebraska.

The Conclave featured business meetings and work shops throughout the day. Much valuable business was conducted by the delegates and all attending agreed that they were able to take back to the chapters many excellent ideas.

The guest speaker of the day was Brother Frank B. Morrison, an alumnus of Hughes Chapter, who served as Governor of Nebraska from 1961 until 1967.

District VIII
Convenes in Milwaukee

The 1974 Conclave for District VIII was hosted by LaFollette Chapter at Marquette University Law School March 22-23, 1974.

The Conclave opened with a model initiation Friday evening presided over by Supreme Justice Matthew S. Rae, Jr. The initiation was followed by a Hospitality Reception which served as an excellent means of getting acquainted.

The Conclave proper was called to order by District Justice John Peter Curielli on Saturday morning followed by welcoming remarks by Dean Robert F. Boden of Marquette Law School.

The program included such topics as use and demonstration of the Polygraph, Inns of Court (Legal ethics and malpractice), handwriting analysis and use of the psychological stress evaluator. Also on the program were the topics of use of the video tape by the attorney and the medical examiner.

Supreme Justice Sandy Rae delivered the State of the Fraternity Address late in the afternoon with district business following.

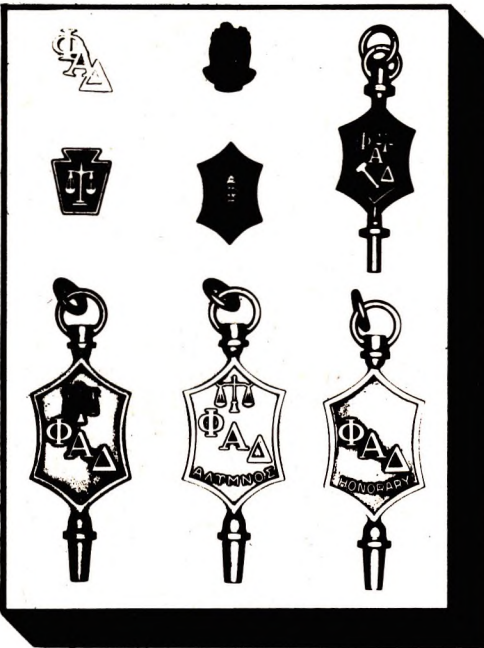

The closing banquet was held in conjunction with the law student and division meeting and featured as guest speaker, Chesterfield Smith, President of the American Bar Association.

son ought to know what is right and what he knows is wrong. Dean Cribbitts doubts how any law school can really come to grips with that, other than making the individual aware of the importance of it. As he sees it, by the time one enters law school, one has a pretty fair notion of what is right and what is wrong; pretty fair notions of responsibility and irresponsibility. He suspects law schools change one's attitudes precious little during the three years spent therein. Thus, in the final analysis, each of us will have to draft our own Code of Professional Responsibility.
