MEMBERS OF CAMPBELL CHAPTER at reactivation and initiation ceremonies held April, 1986.

Puerto Rico Alumni Elect

Puerto Rico Alumni Chapter recently elected new officers which election was necessitated by the appointment of Justice Luis Armstrong as District XXIII Justice.

New officers are: Amado A. Pereira, Justice; Leonides Rivera, Vice Justice; Miguel Lopez-Ferrer, Clerk; and Harry Ramirez, Treasurer.

In attendance at the function were International Chief Tribunal Hector Mendez-Loucil and District XXIII Justice Luis Armstrong.

Leah F. Chanin Dean At Mercer

Professor Leah F. Chanin has been named Dean Pro Tem at the Walter F. George School of Law at Mercer University.

She is a member of Fish Chapter.

Dean Chanin has had numerous articles published and has been very active with the Association of American Law Schools, having served on its Nominating Committee and also on eight accreditation and inspection teams for the ABA.

Ellingwood Heads Bicentennial Advisory Council

Brother Herbert E. Ellingwood, Holmes Chapter, Stanford University, has been named Chairman of the Advisory Council for PAD U.S. Constitution Bicentennial Program.

Brother Ellingwood presently serves as Director of the Office Liaison Services for the United States Department of Justice.

He has previously served as Chairman of the U.S. Merit Systems Protection Board and as Deputy Council to the President at the White House.

When President Ronald Reagan was Governor of California, Ellingwood was his legal affairs secretary.

Touro Initiates 51

Touro Chapter initiated 51 new members on October 8, 1986. The chapter now boasts 180 members, an all-time high.

The outstanding success Touro Chapter has enjoyed can be attributed to the many social and professional activities offered by the chapter.

Students have been particularly interested in the educational benefits sponsored by the chapter. As an example, a question and answer session recently allowed the students to mingle with professors in an informal atmosphere. Professors explained what they expected of first year law students and methods of preparation.

A persuasive legal writing seminar was presented by attorney Stanley Chess, who is a Director of BAR/BRI. He offered tips to assist students in writing effective briefs and memoranda. Members of the Touro Law Review presented an exam and outline seminar which discussed how to distill the semester's work to produce concise outlines and to convey knowledge on law school exams.

The Family And The Law

PAD has embarked on a six-year program to help commemorate the 200th anniversary of the U.S. Constitution. It is multi-faceted in nature, with principal emphasis on an outreach to the communities of the nation to educate local citizens about key aspects of the Constitution as they apply to daily living.

One of these projects involves the organization of local intergenerational discussion groups to discuss the newest publication of the National Council on the Aging entitled "The Family, the Courts and the Constitution." Such groups will include both senior citizens and high school students.

The first such discussion group was held in Amherst, Massachusetts, in August, 1986. As a result of this experience, the following article was written by a high school student who participated in the session. The author, Joanna Schimmel, heard about the program from her father, University of Massachusetts Professor David M. Schimmel.

Her article provides enlightenment about the exchanges of viewpoints shared by senior citizens and young people in our school system on Constitution related subjects.

"During the summer before my senior year in high school, I took part in an intergenerational discussion group on 'The Family, the Courts, and the Constitution.' I began the experience believing that most older people are conservative and inflexible. Over a five-week period, our group of 15 students and seniors explored a variety of challenging and complex issues, such as the rights of grandparents, the role of the state as parent, and whether terminally ill patients have a right to die. The candid and sometimes contentious discussions shattered my preconceptions about the views of senior citizens.

"Our discussions, which were co-sponsored by the Senior Center of Amherst, Massachusetts, and the Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity, International, were based on materials prepared by the National Council on the Aging. We began with a seemingly simple question — 'What is a family?' I immediately thought of a mother and father and one or more children, or perhaps a single parent and his or her children. But others had far different ideas. They mentioned 'families' in a monastery or convent, a 'family' of unrelated older people living together, and even a homosexual couple with adopted child. To my surprise, these unconventional ideas came more often from the elderly than from the youth, and I realized that I was more tied to tradition than most of the seniors.

"The most thought-provoking session for me concerned the government's role in marriage. Our discussions focused on an old Supreme Court decision allowing Utah to outlaw polygamy among the Mormons. The question was whether the constitutional right to freedom of religion should allow individuals to choose polygamy. At first, I was adamantly against polygamy. It seemed wrong, sexist and degrading to women. And all but one in our group agreed. 'But,' asked our discussion leader, 'what if a woman wanted to marry a kind, wealthy Mormon who already had one wife? Shouldn't minorities be able to freely practice their religions if they don't harm others?' These questions were difficult for me to answer since I believe that people should have the right to live as they desire if they don't interfere with the rights of others. Thus, the arguments raised on behalf of the Mormons made me realize that I had two strong beliefs in conflict. Like others in the group, I began to question my initial position.

"Finally, I reluctantly concluded that if Mormon adults freely chose polygamy, then the First Amendment should provide an exception to the state's monogamy laws for religious reasons. Although the vote was much closer at the end of our discussion, the majority of our group was still against polygamy. But, after a tough intellectual struggle, I found myself on the side of the minority. Perhaps I had gained more sympathy for unconventional religious minorities, or a better understanding of the First Amendment.

"Another topic was Education and the Family, and the problem of school discipline. Several of the seniors recounted their personal experiences with unfair corporal punishment. Yet, they — unlike the students — still felt that teachers should have authority to use physical punishment. 'The problem today,' said one older participant, 'is that school

SPRING RUSH — 1987

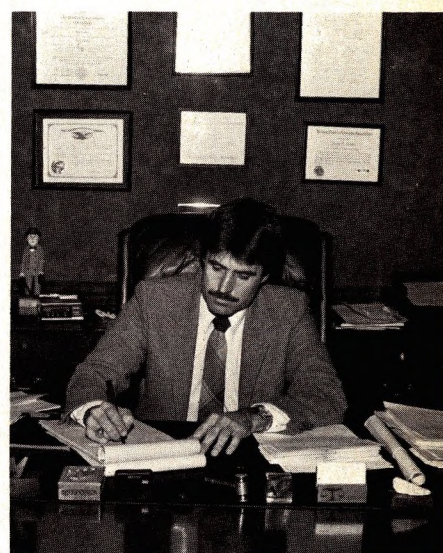

I congratulate all chapter officers, and members on an outstanding effort this fall in rushing new members. As of December 12, 1986, we had approximately 3,100 new members, which puts us on line with a 4,000-plus year. While I am pleased with these numbers, I feel we have the opportunity to achieve a goal that few of us ever felt possible; to initiate 5,000 new members in one school year. To do this, we will have to dedicate ourselves to work as hard in the spring semester as we have in the fall. We must have at least one spring initiation and possibly two or three. We can't be satisfied with an initiation of five or 10 students, but must work to get 30 or 40 in the spring. After we have initiated these new members, we can't stop, but rather get their initiations reported within 10 days after they occur. (Some initiations weren't reported for three or four months this fall.)

Traditionally, our initiations decrease drastically in the spring. Many first year students are rushed in the fall but not in the spring and by the time they start their second year, we have lost them forever. When we lose a student by not making PAD available to them, we lose their drive, their input, their direction, and their support. They lose the opportunity to associate with PAD and benefit from all that we have to offer.

I call on all of our membership to accept the challenge. To set a spring initiation goal and dedicate our efforts to achieving that goal. To make all law students, pre-law students and attorneys, aware of the attributes and goals of PHI ALPHA DELTA. To ask them to join us in our effort to better our fraternity, our law schools, but most of all, our profession.

Thank you again for your membership in PHI ALPHA DELTA and I hope 1987 is all that you desire it to be.

Fraternally,

More About District XXIII Justice Luis Armstrong

In the last issue of The Reporter, last minute space limitations necessitated the elimination of some of the biographical material about newly appointed District XXIII Justice Luis Armstrong.

Brother Armstrong, who is 36 years of age, is a member of deDiego Chapter at Catholic University and a member of the Puerto Rico Alumni Chapter.

He was recently confirmed by the Puerto Rico Senate as Superior Court Assistant District Attorney in the Puerto Rico Department of Justice.

He has served as Treasurer, Vice Justice and Justice (for the past six years) of the Puerto Rico Alumni Chapter and as a delegate to the St. Louis, Miami and Baltimore Conventions.

Errata

In a recent issue of The Reporter, Linda S. Stukey was incorrectly identified as being identified with the firm of Kuezak, Stukey & Associates. The correct name of the firm is Kuczak, Stukey & Associates located in Dayton, Ohio.

Joint Initiation Held In San Francisco

On October 2nd, Matt Sullivan Chapter at the University of San Francisco, Temple Chapter at Hastings College of Law and Dirksen Chapter at Golden Gate Law School held a joint initiation in the San Francisco City Hall.

A reception followed at the new Pisa Restaurant where dinner was served and a raffle was held. Prizes awarded were a free BAR/BRI course, a free BRC course, PAD T-Shirts, PAD Frisbee and a gift certificate for two commercial outlines at law distributors bookstore.

On October 28th, Matt Sullivan Chapter sponsored a reception to honor California Supreme Court Associate Justice Edward A. Panella. A plaque in recognition of his many accomplishments was presented.

Law School Becomes Gaming Den

Balls clicked into spinning roulette wheels, dealers flipped cards to customers sweating for black jacks, ivory dice tumbled over the green felt surfaces of crap tables, and vice detectives roamed the aisles as Phi Alpha Delta converted the third floor of the California Western School of Law into a casino — at least for the evening of November 7.

For this was P.A.D.'s annual Las Vegas Night fund raiser: a chance to gamble with phoney money for real prizes — later awarded by a lottery as doorprizes.

Beaumont Chapter hosts such as John D'Amato (Justice), Dominick Lane (Vice-Justice), and Robert Lambert (Marshal) welcomed such leaders of P.A.D. as Joe Deems, International Treasurer; District Justice Alexandra Wells; Nora Barson, Alumnus; David Theodosopoulos and Scott Corwin of the Ross Chapter; and David Catalino of the McCormick Chapter.

An estimated 100 guests shared in the prizes of the evening. These included trips to the real Las Vegas, Charger football tickets, and bar review courses from Bar/Bri, Josephsen, and Barpassers.

The event proved both a profitable fund raiser and a contribution to the social life of the school. Law, of course, is more than a crap shoot, but sometimes crap shoots themselves can be enough.

The Family

rules aren't strict enough.' 'I think it's absurd that students should be permitted to smoke on school grounds,' said another.

"Although the students agreed that smoking should be discouraged, they did not feel it should be prohibited. 'If schools didn't allow students to smoke outside,' explained one of the teenagers, 'they would smoke in the bathrooms. Rules can't prevent smoking; they would just cause people to smoke secretly.' On this issue students and seniors disagreed. But it was the only topic we discussed where disagreement seemed to be based on age.

"Through participation in these intergenerational discussions, I gained a better understanding of how the Constitution affects family life. Equally important, I found that on many issues, I was more tied to tradition than they were. Most of the older people in our group seemed able to look at complex issues from a broader perspective and were often less limited by convention. The discussions enabled me to test my ideas and get challenging 'feedback' from my peers and from seniors. As a result, I felt a barrier between the ages had been broken. For the first time, I had talked with seniors (other than relatives) about important questions. I now believe that intergenerational discussions should be part of every student's education."

300% Hull Membership Increase

Hull Chapter at Cumberland School of Law in Birmingham, Alabama, is experiencing one of its most successful years.

Through a series of student awareness projects, membership peaked this Fall at 93, thus achieving a 300% increase in only one year.

Among projects were a freshmen welcome packet, freshmen orientation rush table, distribution of survival manuals, and publication of a chapter calendar for the year.

Other projects sponsored by the chapter were a faculty luncheon, a telethon, a resume seminar, and a children's hospital visit.

HULL CHAPTER FACULTY LUNCHEON — Hull Chapter recently held a luncheon for Cumberland Law School Faculty Members.

CHANGE OF THE GUARD — Outgoing O'Neill Chapter Justice Sharon Mize hands incoming Chapter Justice Michele Cappel gavel in ceremonies held last May. Among persons present were Past District Justice John McAulay and District Justice Judge Walter Bridges.

Harlan Has Active Year

Harlan Chapter at the University of Oklahoma reports an extremely outstanding and active year to date.

On October 8, it sponsored an Attorney General Debate, the purpose of which was to give candidates for the office of State Attorney General an opportunity to inform the public of their platforms. The event which was held in conjunction with the University of Oklahoma Pre-Law Chapter of PAD was attended by over 150 persons, three television media and four newspaper media.

On October 30, the chapter sponsored a Juvenile Justice Program at Norman High School, the purpose of which was to discuss the area of family law with high school students. The speakers also discussed the Constitution and how it affects the area of family law.

Harlan Chapter held its annual Blue Book Sale this past fall and raised considerable monies for the chapter and made donations to the legal aid office.

On October 2, it held a very successful initiation of new members.

One of the most important programs of the year was an LSAT discussion with the Pre-Law Chapter. A panel of law students explained to pre-law students how to take the test and what methods should be used to study for it.

The chapter also provides coffee for students and attorneys who attend CLE programs and sells coffee to students in the law school.

Among other activities which have been sponsored this fall have been a Big Brother/Big Sister Program, a Study Aid Buy Back Sale, and a Pre-Game Taco Sale in conjunction with the American Indian Law Review.

McCormick Celebrates 25th Anniversary

Last April, McCormick Chapter at the University of San Diego School of Law, celebrated the 25th anniversary of its founding.

The event was an alumnus-student cocktail party held at the Manchester Conference Center at the University. Among the many alumni present were former Chapter Justices Richard Fleming (1962), and Alex Harper (1963).
