Law Related Education

This edition of The Reporter will present a description of the four national organizations which, together with PAD, have cooperated in the nationwide development of law-related education. Critical to this program has been funding assistance by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention of the Department of Justice. Their LRE programs and materials are referenced, and the persons who may be contacted for further information.

American Bar Association Special Committee On Youth Education For Citizenship

Since 1971, the American Bar Association's Special Committee on Youth Education for Citizenship (ABA/YEFC) has helped to develop high quality programs about the law and legal process in elementary and secondary schools throughout the country. The ABA/YEFC facilitates, supports, and promotes the work of state and local bar associations, educators, juvenile justice officials, and others to carry out law-related education (LRE) programs that meet the needs and interests of their communities.

Under the OJJDP grant, the ABA conducts the following activities:
Consulting and Clearinghouse Services

The ABA/YEFC serves as a national clearinghouse of information on LRE. The LRE Database, a computerized data retrieval system, provides information on who's involved in LRE in your community or state, and who can help you with program development. An up-to-date listing of current books and materials for LRE is also available through the clearinghouse.

The ABA/YEFC provides on-site and telephone consultation to bar associations, school systems, justice agencies, and community groups throughout the country. These services cover all aspects of law-related education and are always tailored to the special needs of the requesting group.

Additionally, the ABA/YEFC serves as a liaison to national education and legal groups that have a special interest in juvenile justice and civic education. Among the activities conducted in cooperation with these groups are periodic meetings, presentations at conferences and conventions, and special publications.

Publications

LRE Report and LRE Project Exchange. The ABA/YEFC publishes two free newsletters to keep readers up to date on the latest developments in LRE. LRE Report contains information on the latest in materials, forthcoming conferences, new projects, funding opportunities, and other developments. LRE Project Exchange, intended for project leaders, focuses on program management. Past issues have dealt with how to make LRE a permanent part of the curriculum, funding strategies, and community involvement. If you would like to be added to the mailing list to receive one or both of these complimentary newsletters, just contact the ABA at the address listed at the end of this section.

Update on Law-Related Education. The ABA/YEFC's prize-winning magazine is published three times each year. Each issue focuses on a particular legal topic and includes reports on recent Supreme Court decisions, innovative classroom strategies, and important developments in the law and law-related education.

Conferences and Seminars

National LRE Leadership Seminar. Since 1978, the ABA/YEFC has conducted an annual seminar for LRE leaders, drawing more than 100 participants from throughout the country to review the latest program developments and generally ensure continued professional growth and development.

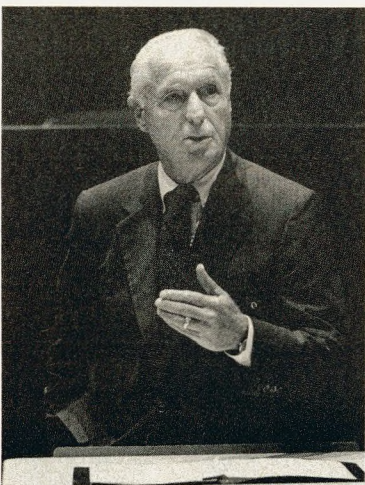

Other ABA/YEFC Conferences. Periodically, the ABA/YEFC conducts seminars and conferences. These range from teacher/administrator/lawyer awareness and training conferences to symposia and seminars on specific topics.

For ABA/YEFC materials and services and/or information about other ABA/YEFC activities, contact: Staff Director Mabel C. McKinney-Browning, American Bar Association, 750 North Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, IL 60611, (312) 988-5725.

Center For Civil Education Law In A Free Society Project

Founded in 1969, Law in a Free Society (LFS) is a project of the Center for Civic Education (CCE) a non-profit corporation established by and affiliated with the State Bar of California. LFS helps students develop (1) an increased understanding of the institutions of our constitutional democracy and the fundamental principles and values upon which they were founded, (2) the skills necessary to participate as effective and responsible citizens, and (3) an un-

FREDRICK L. KUHLMANN, CHAMP CLARK CHAPTER, Washington University (1938), was sponsored by Champ Clark Chapter as a speaker before the Washington University School of Law student body recently. Brother Kuhlmann is Vice-Chairman of the Board of Anheuser Busch Company and Executive Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of the St. Louis National Baseball Club, as well as Chairman of the Board of the Civil Center Corporation which owns Busch Stadium. He addressed those assembled on the subject "Law School: An Open Sesame."

This Issue of The Reporter is Delayed

This issue of The Reporter was delayed because of problems encountered with the Fraternity's computer system. The "bugs" have now been eradicated and The Reporter apologizes for the delay in publication.

Fax Program Adopted Profiles In Excellence

As a part of its ongoing program of service to members, PAD has recently entered into an arrangement which provides considerable discounts to members of the fraternity who wish to acquire FAX equipment.

A more detailed announcement of the program is included in this issue of The Reporter. Although the announcement refers only to models of two manufacturers, a number of other manufactured machines are available. Discounts to PAD members run up to 40 percent on equipment, and 25 percent on FAX paper.

Trial Practice Forum Enjoys Huge Success

A trial practice forum sponsored by Lowenstein Chapter at Cardozo School of Law, Yeshiva, met with great success when held on November 29, 1988.

The function which was attended by over 400 people from Cardozo Law School and other New York PAD chapters, featured four speakers on different aspects of trial practice. One speaker was from a litigation firm, another from the Queens District Attorney's Office, another a Cardozo Law School Criminal Procedure Professor, and the fourth, an Appellate Division Judge in New York.

The PAD spotlight for this issue falls on a PAD Brother who graduated from Drake University Law School, Des Moines, Iowa in 1950. His name is Neal Smith, a member of Cole Chapter. His wife, Beatrix, also graduated from Drake Law School with Neal.

From his humble origin on a Keokuk County farm, Brother Smith gained an extensive college education. He served in the Air Force in World War II and thereafter received numerous citations for his valor and distinguished military service. During a fast-moving career in the 1960's decade, he was an Assistant County Attorney, practiced law with his wife, and served on many local educational and civic boards.

Having acquired a wide reputation in the legal and political fields, it was a natural progression of events in Neal Smith's life that he was first elected to Congress in 1958. Thirty years later, 1988, he was re-elected to his 16th term by a landslide of more than 72 percent of the votes.

It is the exemplary public record that Brother Smith has achieved during his 30 years in Congress which explains our strong pride in his accomplishments. He has been the author and Congressional sponsor of many bills enacted into law in the fields of agricultural improvements, public works, recreation, conservation, pension and welfare protection, health care from student loans to employment of the elderly, and even the "Anti-Nepotism Law of 1967." His conduct of special studies predicted the present problems in agriculture and the energy crisis two years before the first embargo!

His leadership in the education field has made him the strongest House of Representatives supporter for legal services for the poor and for law-related education since 1978, the program which is effectively helping to reduce youth crime, violence and delinquency throughout the nation.

His 15 terms in Congress have brought him into great prominence,

PAD and PAD The Pre-Law Program

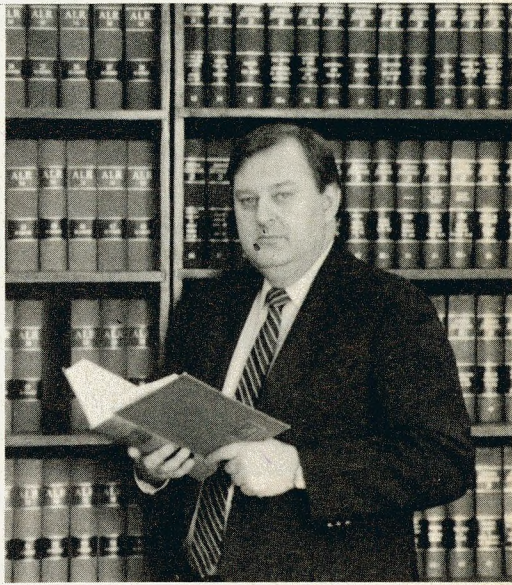

Those members of Phi Alpha Delta who have been members for a decade or longer, became members well before Phi Alpha Delta instituted its Pre-Law Program and some newer members were initiated through a pre-law chapter.

There have been questions about our Pre-Law Program and why the Fraternity instituted this program. Phi Alpha Delta has a great history of being first among law fraternities and, in fact, among all legal organizations to act or to commence programs to improve services to its members and to the legal profession. The PAD Pre-Law Program is no exception to this long list of firsts. PAD is the first national or international legal organization to successfully establish an international Pre-Law Program. Phi Alpha Delta now has 90 pre-law chapters across the United States and Puerto Rico.

The leadership of Phi Alpha Delta had long seen a need to better educate those students in undergraduate school who plan to attend law school in making a better and more informed decision whether law school and a legal profession is the appropriate career decision for them. For those making that informed decision it is also necessary for undergraduate students to select an appropriate law school for that student's aspirations and capabilities. An international pre-law program is the best method to accomplish this task and goal, through the use of a program format within pre-law chapters to advise undergraduate students of the rigors of law school and the practice of law. In addition, a pre-law program within the Fraternity's pre-law chapters can advise and inform the undergraduate student the best course of study to follow and how best to prepare for admission to law school. It is interesting to note that members who were initiated into Phi Alpha Delta through our Pre-Law Chapters have now become some of our strongest leaders within our law school chapters. It is our hope with this PAD guidance they will likewise become stronger leaders within the legal profession and community.

Phi Alpha Delta's Pre-Law Program gives the fraternity a golden opportunity to begin stressing the need and relevance of ethics and professional responsibility to students before they enter law school and the profession. It is the hope of PAD that this effort through our Pre-Law Program can help mold a better informed, ethical and professional law student and lawyer. Can there be a better goal for which we could strive? Phi Alpha Delta is proud to once again be the legal organization of firsts with our Pre-Law Program and in our striving to achieve this honorable goal.

Fraternalty yours, derstanding of and willingness to use democratic processes when participating in making decisions and managing conflict.

Funding from OJJDP enables CCE/LFS, in cooperation with the other grantees, to provide assistance to state and local projects. This assistance addresses identified needs in the field of law-related education, particularly the need to disseminate the results of research related to the implementation and institutionalization of law-related education at state and local levels. Activities presently being supported in the various states are the development and use of community advisory boards to support local programs, public/private partnership conferences, training-of-trainers institutes and teacher training workshops.

The LFS Curriculum

Developed and tested by experienced educators at elementary, secondary and university levels, the LFS curriculum includes a comprehensive teacher training program and classroom materials for use in grades kindergarten through 12.

The curriculum is based on eight concepts fundamental to understanding our constitutional democracy: authority, privacy, justice, responsibility, participation, property, diversity, and freedom.

Since understandings and attitudes develop at an early age, the curriculum begins in kindergarten and progresses sequentially through the 12th grade. It is designed to be integrated into the social studies and humanities curricula at all levels.

While conceptual in nature, the curriculum is not removed from the day-to-date experiences of students. Instead, it relates these experiences to recurring problems in social and political life.

The curriculum provides analytic framework or "intellectual tools" that help students learn to think critically and to develop reasoned and responsible positions.

Classroom Materials

Law in Free Society has developed these multimedia instructional units: Authority, Privacy, Justice and Responsibility. These units progress sequentially in scope and complexity through six levels, from Level I for grades K-1 to Level VI for grades 10-12.

Each level contains motivational sound/color filmstrips, nonconsumable student books, and a teacher's edition.

The teacher's edition provides guidance in the use of creative teaching methods:

- guided discussions
- written exercises
- cooperative work
- simulations of town meetings, board hearings, legislative debates, trial and appellate court hearings
- other basic skill-building activities.

The teacher's edition also contains evaluation components.

CCE/LFS is presented developing new classroom materials. These include an adaptation of the Authority V multimedia program for use with young people in the juvenile justice setting, the translation into Spanish of the Authority and Privacy materials for use in elementary classrooms, and curricular materials on the origins and development of the Constitution for the high school level.

Teacher Training Materials

Teacher training materials are available on all eight concepts of the curriculum:

Leader's Handbook — general guidelines and specific lesson outlines for conducting teacher training programs on the project's curriculum.

Casebook: Selected Readings for Teachers — readings for extending adult-level understanding on each of the eight concepts. These include such selections as court cases, excerpts from literature, historical incidents, and essays.

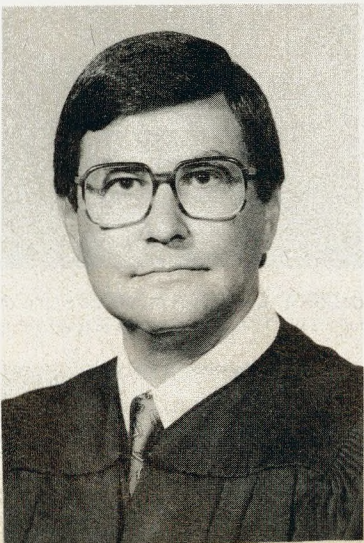

Curriculum Guide — development objectives for grades K-12 on each of the eight concepts.

And how about Neal Smith, the man? He is very self-effacing in his demeanor. He reads every piece of incoming mail and personally signs all outgoing substantive mail. He has opted to continue his Congressional service despite repeated urgings to become a candidate for Iowa's Governor. One of his greatest and most proudest achievements was the establishment in 1985 of the "Neal Smith Drake Law School Legal Clinic."

In the words of Brother Smith, "PAD has long been recognized for its furtherance of high ethical and service standards in the legal profession. It has made a vast significant contribution to the public good by its leadership in LRE which serves a previously unfilled role in teaching good citizenship and respect for law to America's youth."

We of Phi Alpha Delta salute Brother Neal Smith as an impressive role model to be emulated by his younger Brothers and Sisters in PAD. May he continue to enjoy a bountiful life of public service, good health and much happiness!

deDiego Chapter Conducts Active Program

deDiego Chapter at Catholic University in Puerto Rico has conducted an extensive and varied array of programs during the year 1988-89.

In September, it held a seminar on different types of law practice. One of the principle speakers was Brother Pedro Ortiz-Alvarez, Secretary of the Consumer Affairs Department of Puerto Rico, and former Catholic University Law School Dean. Also in attendance was present Law School Dean, Brother Charles R. Cuprill.

Earlier in the school year, the chapter held a back to school social affair with a bonfire and the chapter's official PAD drink (Potent Attorney's Delight).

Over 110 persons attended the chapter's introduction to law school which was presented for the benefit of new students.

The chapter's Judges Night was held October 21, 1988, in the Moot Court Room of Catholic University. The function provided an excellent opportunity for chapter members to become acquainted with PAD judges.

October also saw 51 new members initiated into the chapter. Initiated at

Hutton Appointed To U.S. District Court

Brother Herbert J. Hutton, a member of Roberts Chapter at Temple University, has been appointed to the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

HERBERT J. HUTTON

the same time as honorary members, were Attorney General Rafael Ortiz-Carrion, Assistant Attorney General Eliadis Orsini-Zayas, and Ponce District Attorney Pedro G. Goyco Amador. At the initiation, all in attendance adjourned to the Bahia de Ponce restaurant where the new initiates were feted.

Following up on the Fraternity's emphasis on professional responsibility and ethics, deDiego Chapter sponsored a seminar on the subjects "Conflicts of Interest" and "How To Restore Public Trust in Lawyers and the Courts." Over 100 persons attended and heard the Attorney General of Puerto Rico speak.

Throughout the year, deDiego Chapter has held a number of outstanding social and professional events, well-calculated to advance the interest of its members.

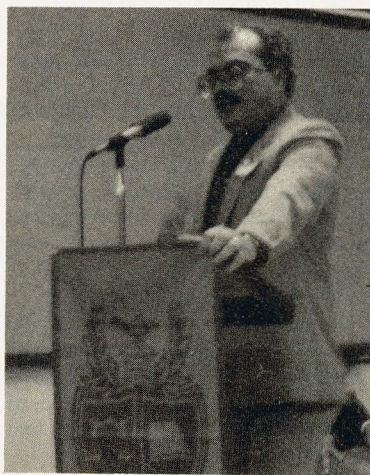

Hubert H. Humphrey III Honorarily Initiated

On January 26, 1989, Minnesota Attorney General Hubert H. (Skip) Humphrey, III, was initiated as an honorary member of the James Monroe Chapter at Hamline University School of Law in St. Paul, MN.

Mr. Humphrey expressed his appreciation to the James Monroe Chapter and pledged to be involved by being "more than an honorary member" and help with furthering the fraternal goals any way he can. Some of his current efforts include programs dealing with drug and alcohol abuse, violence against women and victim services.

The James Monroe Chapter is in the forefront of a national PAD effort at community education in the fight against drug and alcohol abuse. The Law Related Education program focuses on high schools around the Minneapolis/St. Paul area and exposes the students to the judicial process through a mock trial. Through the efforts of the James Monroe Chapter and Mr. Humphrey, they hope to reach a larger audience and educate more students to the consequences of drinking and driving. Mr. Humphrey is looking forward to working with the James Monroe Chapter to "help change the attitude of the public."

Dean Peter N. Thompson, himself a faculty member of the James Monroe Chapter expressed his support of the Chapter's efforts in community service through their Law Related Education program. He commented that "in today's society where everyone is concerned with earning a profit, it's encouraging to see students so concerned about service." Dean Thompson was pleased to congratulate Mr. Humphrey on his initiation and welcome him into the Fraternity.

PEDRO ORTIZ-ALVAREZ, Secretary of the Consumer Affairs Department of Puerto Rico.

Constitutional Rights Foundation

For more than 20 years, the Constitutional Rights Foundation (CRF) has been developing programs designed to make kids competent, participating citizens. This private nonprofit organization has programs on a broad range of law-related topics. Curriculum materials are available for youth in elementary and secondary schools for government, U.S. history, international affairs, geography, and law courses.

National Delinquency Prevention Education Project

OJJDP has funded CRF to assist school districts in developing and strengthening law-related education models through educational materials, teacher training, classroom visits by resource experts, field experiences and youth action projects.

CRF can provide the following services:

Training

Teachers, administrators, law-related professionals and community volunteers are being trained to use LRE materials and methods in various programs:

1. Youth and the Administration of Justice blends curriculum, field experiences, use of justice system professionals, and peer-teaching in the classroom. Students learn what the system is and how it works.

2. Statewide mock trial competitions involve high school student teams in a simulation of a court case. Volunteer judges and attorneys assist in coaching or adjudicating.

3. The Lawyer-in-the-Classroom program pairs lawyers with schools to assist with classroom lessons, arrange for class field experiences and plan Law Day conferences. Sample lessons and programs are available.

4. The Youth Leadership/Mentor/Community Service program links professionals with young people in order to complete service projects in their schools and community. Projects include compiling lists of agencies which can be of help to young people, law conferences for both youth and adults, and tutoring.

5. The Youth and Justice newspaper and radio programs provide young people a public forum for discussing crucial legal issues. Young people are trained to write editorials and interview legal experts.

6. The Business Issues in the Classroom program helps students examine important economic, ethical and legal issues with the help of action-oriented lesson plans and volunteer business people.

7. In storefront centers, CRF programs enable young people to develop work-related and citizenship skills, explore career opportunities, and become actively involved to solve the problems of their communities.

8. A juvenile corrections program for incarcerated youth provides meaningful and positive experiences with justice agency personnel and judges through problem-solving activities and interaction.

9. A high school/police partnership provides sessions for eighth grade students on understanding how the Constitution impacts on the role of the police.

Programs And Assistance Available

School-Based Programs (K-12). NICEL staff and consultants train teachers and other LRE leaders at local, regional, and national conferences. Topics include legal substance, law-related methods, delinquency prevention and LRE, training trainers in LRE, institutionalizing LRE, and raising funds.

Along with the other grantees listed in this booklet, NICEL is providing extensive training and technical assistance to the "target site" states.

Law School Programs. NICEL coordinates a national network of law schools that award academic credit to law students who teach in secondary schools. NICEL conducts a biennial conference for leaders of these law school projects.

Mentor Programs. NICEL has assisted numerous sites with replications of Mentor, a law firm adopt-a-school program originally developed in New York City and Washington, D.C.

Juvenile Court Alternative Programs. NICEL has developed a model program whereby first-offender youths are diverted from prosecution in juvenile court into a 12-week Street Law course. This began in the District of Columbia, where youths in this program have shown a lower recidivism rate than similar juveniles not enrolled. It has spread to courts in 14 jurisdictions nationwide.

Juvenile Corrections Education. A special program which teaches LRE, conflict management, and mediation has been developed by NICEL for use in dormitory and classroom settings.

Teens, Crime and the Community. In partnership with the National Crime Prevention Council, NICEL has developed and tested lessons on teen crime victimization including a "teens-as-resources" community crime prevention project.
