Appendix X:

Law School Chapters of Phi Alpha Delta - Charter Information

Phi Alpha Delta, like the Lambda Epsilon Chapters before them, are typically named for prominent members of the legal profession – often members of the profession who had a tie to the school or region where they were chartered. Until the 1950 convention, the chapters could even be named for living persons. Sometimes individuals who were not lawyers but who through their professional life had a profound impact on the law or society were also used. Charter information for the law school chapters is provided here in chronological order of chartering. The charter date of Lambda Epsilon chapters as chapters of Phi Alpha Delta are all November 15, 1902, but they are listed in order of their organization as Lambda Epsilon chapters. To find a specific chapter when viewing electronically, it is recommended you use the search function. An alphabetical list (by last name of chapter namesake) is included at the end of this appendix for reference purposes.

Where charter members are identified and the information is available, members initiated on the day the chapter was installed or who were previously initiated but transferred their membership to the new chapter at that time are considered charter members. (For example, if it is known that persons who signed the petition for a charter were not initiated at the installation, they are not included as charter members.) For chapters that originated as Lambda Epsilon Chapters (Blackstone, Story, Fuller and Webster) the charter members used are the chapter members at the time the chapter was organized under Lambda Epsilon. At that time there were no formal installation ceremonies and for the earliest chapters there was not even an initiation ritual in place at the time of organization. Where different records provide conflicting information as to the identity of charter members, the Historian has generally erred on the side of inclusion which we believe is consistent with the core values and purpose of the fraternity. Should more accurate information become available, this appendix will be updated.

William Blackstone Chapter

School: Chicago-Kent College of Law

[In 1969, Chicago-Kent College of Law merged with the Illinois Institute of Technology and is now known as the IIT Chicago-Kent College of Law.]

Charter Date: November 15, 1902

The William Blackstone Chapter is a result of the merger of the first two Lambda Epsilon Chapters – the James Kent Chapter organized at Kent College of Law in October

1898, and the William Blackstone Chapter organized at Chicago College of Law in February 1899. The two chapters merged when Kent College of Law and Chicago College of Law merged in 1899. The charter members of both chapters are here considered charter members of Blackstone Chapter as the two chapters operated in tandem even before their merger. Blackstone was officially rechartered as a chapter of Phi Alpha Delta by the National Council on November 15, 1902.

Charter Members:

Arthur Clark Fort, Norton M. Files, Asahel W. Gage, J.B. Hayes, Donnel C. Howe, Harris S. Keeler, J.M. Kirkwood, Frederick William Kraft, John E. Owens, Robert A.J. Shaw, Edward Norman Sherburn, and Williard A. White.

Installation:

No formal installation occurred. DeGoy B. Ellis recalled in a published story in The Quarterly that he had been in the first group to be initiated, and that was the first time that an initiation ritual had been used by Lambda Epsilon. The ritual was designed by Arthur C. Fort. Ellis had been a member of both Blackstone and Story Chapters, but it is believed that this first initiation was by Blackstone Chapter as records of the first Story Chapter initiation exist and do not match Ellis's recollections.

Namesake:

Sir William Blackstone (1723-1780). Blackstone was a prominent English attorney and jurist. He was a member of the English Parliament (1768-1770), a Justice of the English Court of King's Bench (1770), and a Justice of Common Pleas. He is best known as author of Commentaries on the Laws of England which was an authority on the English Common Law adopted in the United States after the American Revolution.

Joseph Story Chapter

School:

Illinois College of Law

[In 1912, the Illinois College of Law was acquired by DePaul University and is now known as DePaul University College of Law.]

Charter Date:

November 15, 1902

The chapter was originally organized as the third chapter of Lambda Epsilon. Its charter was approved by the Grand Chapter of Lambda Epsilon on June 12, 1899. It was officially rechartered as a chapter of Phi Alpha Delta by the National Council of Phi Alpha Delta on November 15, 1902.

Charter Members: August C. Babize, Mark Harding Bell, John A. Brown, Martin Howard Foss, John Franklin Hagey, Arthur Watson May, Paul C. Meier, Fred Louis Nees, Shelly Butler Neltnor, Harry Otto Rhodes, and Simon T. Sutton.

Installation: No formal installation occurred. The primary organizers were Auguste C. Babize, John A. Brown, and Martin H. Foss. August Babize recalled that the first initiation was held on a Friday evening in the Fall, and that Martin H. Foss served as chapter Chief Justice and wore Babize's graduation robes and cap for the ceremony. (These continued to be used by the chapter for some time thereafter.) The ceremony was conducted in the law office where John A. Brown was employed.

Namesake: Joseph Story (1779-1845). Story was a prominent American attorney and jurist. He was an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court from 1812-1845 and author of Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States which was the definitive work on the subject in the 19th Century.

Melville W. Fuller Chapter

School: Northwestern University

Charter Date: November 15, 1902

The chapter was originally organized as a chapter of Lambda Epsilon. Its charter was approved on March 16, 1900. It was officially rechartered as a chapter of Phi Alpha Delta by the National Council on November 15, 1902.

Charter Members: John Morrison Bryant, Jr., Elhanan Wayne Colby, Charles Lawrence Daly, James Ralph Garrett, Roland Martin Hollock, Oscar Armien Kropf, Stephen Charles Malo, Sidney Bachrach Meyer, Percy Elliott North, V.P.

Richmond, Alfred Foote Tompkins.

Installation: No formal installation took place. The chapter's first initiation took place on March 23, 1900, a week after its petition was approved by the Lambda Epsilon Grand Chapter. The chapter's own officers acted as officiants - John Morrison Bryant, Jr., James Ralph Garrett, Sidney Bachrach Meyer, Elhanan Wayne Colby, and Percy Elliott North.

Namesake: Melville W. Fuller (1833-1910). Fuller was an American attorney and jurist. As an attorney he practiced in Chicago and later served in the Illinois House of Representatives. He was appointed Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court by Grover Cleveland in 1888 and served in that role till his death in 1910.

Daniel Webster Chapter

School: Chicago Law School
[Chicago Law School has since closed. The chapter was transferred from Chicago Law School to Loyola University of Chicago in 1934.]

Charter Date: November 15, 1902
The chapter was originally organized as a chapter of Lambda Epsilon. Its charter was approved on November 6, 1901. The chapter was officially rechartered as a chapter of Phi Alpha Delta by the National Council on November 15, 1902.

Charter Members: Students: Joseph J. Joy, John B. Maloney, Jackson McCaughey Prentiss, Martin Blaise Schuster, Harry Lee Stacey, and Julius S. Taylor, Jr.
Honorary: John J. Tobias AKA Jean J. Dubois, Chancellor of Chicago Law School

Installation: No formal installation took place, and the date of the first initiation is unknown at this time.

Namesake: Daniel Webster (1782-1852). Webster was an American attorney and politician. Representing Massachusetts, he served as a member of the United States House of Representatives (1813-1817 & 1823-1827) and the United States Senate (1827-1841 & 1833-1836). He served as Secretary of State under two Presidents from 1841-1843 and 1850-1852. His reputation as an attorney was such that he was featured as an attorney successfully litigating against the devil in the short story “The Devil and Daniel Webster” written by Stephen V. Benet in 1936.

John Marshall Chapter

School:	University of Chicago
Charter Date:	December 3, 1902 Previous versions of fraternity history gave November 20, 1902, as the charter date. This was the date the National Council approved the charter, but the chapter was “installed”, and the charter members initiated on December 3, 1902.
Charter Members:	William George Bopp, Charles Nickerson Caldwell, William Haines Fielding, Alden Rhodes Hicks, William Rudolph Kercher, Leo Klein, Verne Adrian McGeorge, and John Charles Witt.
Installation:	While no formal installation ceremony had been adopted this time, the chapter’s charter members were initiated by the national officers at a meeting of the National Council.
Namesake:	John Marshall (1755-1835). Marshall was an American lawyer and jurist and is considered one of the Founding Fathers of the United States. He served in the continental army during the American Revolution. He represented Virginia in the U.S. House of Representatives (1799-1800) and was Secretary of State under President John Adams (1800-1801). He was appointed the fourth Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court and served in that role from 1801-1835. During Marshall’s term as Chief Justice, the Court emerged as an important part of American government and significantly shaped constitutional law.

Benjamin D. Magruder Chapter

School:	University of Illinois

Charter Date: March 11, 1904

Charter Members: George M. Clendenin, Bartlett Stephen Gray, Cloyd E. Keith, Lee Roy Kershaw, Clyde W. Moore*, Andrew E. Tracey, and Richard P. Vickrage.

Installation: The chapter was installed simultaneously with the Edward G. Ryan Chapter in a ceremony held in Chicago at Northwestern University with the national officers presiding. The charter members were greeted upon arrival at the University by a brass band, and a parade to the law building. A celebratory banquet was held the next evening at Kinsley's Restaurant with Chief Justice Healion acting as toastmaster.

Namesake: Benjamin D. Magruder (1838-1910). Magruder was a prominent American attorney and jurist. He practiced first in Memphis, Tennessee and later in Chicago, Illinois. He served as a Justice of the Superior Court of Cook County from 1868-1885 and a Justice of the Supreme Court of Illinois from 1885-1906. Of some interest is the fact that Magruder served on the court when it heard the matter of In re Application of Day. He sided with the majority's ruling against the petition of the Law Student League members.

Edward G. Ryan Chapter

School: University of Wisconsin

Charter Date: March 11, 1904

Installation: The chapter was installed simultaneously with the Benjamin D. Magruder Chapter in a ceremony held in Chicago at Northwestern University with the national officers presiding. The charter members were greeted upon arrival at the University by a brass band, and a parade to the law building. A celebratory banquet was held the next evening at Kinsley's Restaurant with Chief Justice Healion acting as toastmaster.

Gustav George Schmitt, who had been initiated by Marshall Chapter in Spring 1903, participated in the organization of Ryan Chapter and was awarded a jeweled Phi Alpha Delta watch fob at the installation banquet. He is usually considered both a charter member of Ryan Chapter and a member of Marshall Chapter.

Namesake:

Edward G. Ryan (1810-1880). Ryan was a prominent American attorney and jurist. He practiced in New York, New York, Chicago, Illinois, and then in Racine and the Southeastern Wisconsin Territory. He was a delegate to the first Wisconsin Constitutional Convention in 1846. He was at various times a U.S. Attorney and City Attorney for Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Finally, he served as 5th Chief Justice of the Wisconsin Supreme Court from 1874-1880.

James V. Campbell Chapter

School:

University of Michigan

Charter Date:

March 11, 1905

Charter Members:

Paul W. Boehm, Ernest Milton Halliday, Harry Fleming Hamlin, Clark Arnold McMillen, Henry Miltner, Clark Bradley Montgomery, and Homer G. White.

Installation:

The chapter was installed by a team of national officers and alumni traveling from Chicago to Ann Arbor by train. This was the first time the fraternity had incurred travel expenses in connection with a chapter installation and was the first time that installation ceremonies took place outside of Chicago.

Namesake:

James V. Campbell (1823-1890). Campbell was an American attorney and jurist. He practiced law in Detroit, Michigan. After the University of Michigan opened its law school in 1858, he became the Marshall Professor of Law and taught there for thirty years. At the same time, he served as Justice of the Michigan Supreme Court (1858-1890).

Augustus Hill Garland Chapter

School:	University of Arkansas
Charter Date:	April 28, 1906
	Previous versions of fraternity history gave April 26, 1906, as the charter date. Saturday, April 28, 1906, has been confirmed in contemporary sources.
Charter Members:	John Bruce Cox, Ashbel Webster Dobyns, Harry C. Hale, Fred Clark Jacobs, James Kirby Riffel, William Russel Rose, Horace Earl Rouse, and Thomas O. Summers.
Installation:	The Chapter was installed by National Recorder Thomas P. Octigan (Blackstone), National Financial Secretary Edward L. McConaughy (Magruder), and Hiram C. Muir (Webster).
Namesake:	Augustus Hill Garland (1832-1899). Garland was an American attorney and statesman. He practiced law in Little Rock, Arkansas, where he represented the slave Abby Guy in two appeals to the Arkansas Supreme Court, ultimately winning her freedom. Although he opposed Arkansas' secession from the United States, he did represent Arkansas in the confederate government during the American Civil War. After the war, he served as Governor of Arkansas (1877-1885), United States Senator from Arkansas (1877-1885), and Attorney General of the United States (1885-1889).

John Milton Hay Chapter

School:	Western Reserve University
	[On July 1, 1967, Western Reserve University merged with Case School of Applied Science and has since been known as Case Western Reserve University.]

Installation: The Chapter was installed by National Recorder Thomas P. Octigan (Blackstone), National Financial Secretary Edward L. McConaughy (Magruder), and Eugene Lippincott (Marshall).

Namesake: John Milton Hay (1838-1905). Hay was an American lawyer and statesman. He read law with Abraham Lincoln's firm, and he practiced in Springfield, Illinois. He served as secretary to President Lincoln during the American Civil War. After Lincoln's assassination he joined the diplomatic corps eventually serving as the U.S. Ambassador to the United Kingdom (1897-1898) the U.S. Secretary of State (1898-1905) under Presidents William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt.

Thomas Hart Benton Chapter

School: Kansas City School of Law
[The school merged with the University of Kansas City in 1938, and the University became part of the University of Missouri system in 1963 as the University of Missouri – Kansas City.]

Charter Date: July 6, 1907

Charter Members: Students: William P. Borland, Loving T. Crutcher, Guy Ream Davis, Norman Lombard, and Aytch P. Woodson. Honorary: John Brooks Pew, Lecturer on Criminal Law and Practice

Installation: The chapter was installed by Chief Justice Lawrence W. Ledvina (Ryan), Past Chief Justice Thomas P. Octigan (Blackstone), and Signer of the Articles of South Haven Sidney B. Meyer (Fuller). The ceremony took place at the Baltimore Hotel in Kansas City.

Namesake: Thomas Hart Benton 1782-1858. Benton was an American attorney, soldier, and statesman. He initially practiced law in Nashville, Tennessee. He served as an aide to General (and future President) Andrew Jackson during the War of 1812 and settled in Missouri after the war. After Missouri became a state, he represented it in the United States Senate from 1821-1851 and in the United States House of Representatives from 1853-1855. Although it damaged his popularity at the time, Benton was anti-slavery and opposed the compromise of 1950 as too favorable to pro-slavery interests.

Matt I. Sullivan Chapter

FKA Charles L. Capen Chapter

The Charles L. Capen Chapter was originally chartered at Illinois Wesleyan University. It was declared inactive when Wesleyan University closed its law school in 1927. The charter was transferred to the University of San Francisco School of Law on February 19, 1938. On May 23, 1946, the new Capen Chapter was renamed the Matt I. Sullivan Chapter when reactivating after World War II. By tradition the members initiated at the original chartering at Illinois Wesleyan on March 21, 1908, and the members initiated on February 19, 1938, are both considered charter members of the Matt I. Sullivan Chapter, and the earlier charter date is also considered the charter date for the M. Sullivan Chapter. However, surviving members of Capen Chapter who attended Illinois Wesleyan University continued to be considered Capen Chapter members after the chapter at San Francisco was renamed.

School:	University of San Francisco
Charter Date:	March 21, 1908
Charter Members:	[Illinois Wesleyan March 21, 1908] Students: Herbert C. Bender, Martin L. Callahan, Michael D. Conaghan, W. Lee Duncan, Orville E. Garner, Philip A. Gibbons, Fred M. Grady, Fred W. Pitney, Maurey D. Powell, James D. Veatch, and Thomas S. Weldon. Honorary: Professor Charles L. Capen, Bloomington City attorney Louis Fitzhenry, Professor John J. Morrissey, and McClean County Circuit Court Judge Colostin D. Myers. [San Francisco February 19, 1938] Louis T. Arbios, John L. Briscoe, Richard J. Carpenter, George T. Cronin, Gerald H. Finn, Thomas G. Mahoney, Edward P. Moran, Thomas J. O'Toole, Louis Rabies, Samuel L. Wicklow, Russell Zaches.
Installation:	Capen Chapter was installed at Illinois Wesleyan by Chief Justice Lawrence W. Ledvina (Ryan), Vice Chief Justice Charles H. Wilber (Marshall), National Treasurer George E. Fink (Story), and National Recorder Richard J. Finnegan (Webster) assisted by student members from Magruder Chapter including Chapter Justice Harry C. Moran, Orlin M. Barnes, Walter C. Barnes, Clarence L. Edelstein, Adolph Gore, and Roscoe Tygett. Also assisting was Joseph B. Fleming (Fuller), an Illinois Wesleyan alumnus. The ceremony took place in the Knights of Columbus Hall at the Hills Hotel.

The chapter was reinstalled at the University of San Francisco by past Supreme Vice Justice J.F.T. O'Connor (Campbell) in the courtroom of Judge Michael Roche. Members of Capen (Sullivan, M), Field, Holmes, and Temple Chapter were all initiated at the ceremony. The initiation was followed by a banquet at the Press Club which was attended by Lt. Governor George J. Hatfield, Dean William M. Simmons of Hastings Law School, and Dean Edwin D. Dickinson of the University of California Berkeley School of Jurisprudence.

Namesakes:

Charles Laban Capen (1845-1927). Capen was a prominent American lawyer and legal educator in Illinois. He was admitted to the bar in 1871, and practiced in Bloomington, Illinois, joining the faculty of Illinois Wesleyan in 1899. He later became Dean of the Law School. He was an honorary and charter member of Capen Chapter in addition to serving as its namesake.

Matthew Ignatius Sullivan (1857-1937). Sullivan was a prominent American attorney, jurist, and legal educator. Admitted to the California bar in 1879, he became a prominent trial attorney in San Francisco. In September 1912, he became the first Dean of the law school at St. Ignatius which later became University of San Francisco law school. In 1914, he was appointed to fill a vacancy as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of California. He remained in that post for only four months, the remainder of the short term, and then resumed his private practice and continued to serve as law school Dean until his death in 1937.

Salmon P. Chase Chapter

School:

Cincinnati Law School

[Cincinnati Law School is now known as the University of Cincinnati College of Law.]

Charter Date:

April 11, 1908

Charter Members:	Howard Landis Bevis, Orin Clark Clement, Frank Hurd Cox, Michael John Dosch, Frank Anderson Ralston, Harry Lester Risinger, William Hughes Shepard, Charles F.W. Tatgenhorst, Jr., and Charles Edgar Weber.
Installation:	The chapter was installed by Chief Justice Lawrence W. Ledvina (Ryan), Vice Chief Justice Charles H. Wilber (Marshall), Eugene Lippincott (Marshall), and Joseph I. Eagleson (Hay). The ceremony was conducted at the Gibson House and was followed by a banquet.
Namesake:	Salmon Portland Chase (1808-1873). Chase was a prominent American attorney, statesman, and jurist. He practiced in Cincinnati and at great personal risk, defended people who escaped slavery and those who assisted them. He served twice as U.S. Senator from Ohio (1849-1855 and 1861) and served as Governor of Ohio in between (1856-1860). He left his second term as Senator early when appointed by President Lincoln to serve as Secretary of the Treasury, a post he held from 1861-1864 when he was nominated to the Supreme Court. He served as Chief Justice of the United States from 1864-1873. One of Chase's first act on the Court was to admit John Rock, the first African American admitted to the Supreme Court Bar. While serving on the court, Chase sought the presidential nomination in 1868 but was unsuccessful due in part to his stance in favor of voting rights for black men.

George H. Williams Chapter

School:	University of Oregon at Portland
[In February 1916, Williams Chapter was ordered transferred from the University of Oregon to Northwestern College of Law, due to the removal of the University of Oregon to Eugene, Oregon, but leaving in Portland its law school under the new name of Northwestern. Later, the Williams Chapter was transferred to Eugene when the law school was subsequently moved from Portland to Eugene and reincorporated into the basic university system.]
Charter Date:	November 28, 1908

Previous versions of fraternity history have reported a May 16, 1908, charter date. However, contemporary news coverage suggests an installation date in late November or early December 1908. Coverage in The Quarterly indicated the charter members were pledged on November 21, 1908, and chapter was installed on November 28, 1908.

Charter Members:

Students: James A. Bennett, James W. Briscoe, Malcolm H. Clark, Robert H. Down, John M. Joyce, Norman R. Landis, Cusic J. Mahoney, R. Frank Peters, Henry R. Saltmarsh, Edward A. Snodgrass, and John Wilkinson.

Honorary Members: Governor George E. Chamberlain, Alfred E. Clark, State Circuit Court Judge Robert G. Morrow, Alfred C. Schmitt, Hon. George H. Williams (last surviving member of the Grant cabinet and the chapter's namesake), and United States Circuit Court Judge Charles E. Wolverton.

Installation:

The chapter was installed by Gustave George Schmitt (Marshall) and James L. Conley (Campbell) assisted by Washington and Oregon alumni members Nelson Reed Anderson (Campbell), Fred N. DeNeffe (Campbell), Frederick G.B. Kemp (Campbell), and Howard H. Servis (Campbell).

Namesake:

George Henry Williams (1823-1910). Williams was an American attorney, statesman, and jurist. He practiced law in Fort Madison in the Iowa Territory, and after Iowa was admitted to the Union as a state, he was elected a district judge. He was appointed Chief Justice of the Oregon Territory in 1853. At the Oregon Constitutional Convention in 1857, he urged that slavery be made illegal and advocated that a woman's property not be subject to her husband's debt. After he left the court, he moved to Portland and resumed the practice of law. He represented the recently admitted state of Oregon in the United States Senate from 1865-1871 and served as U.S. Attorney General under President Grant from 1871-1875 during which time he actively prosecuted the Ku Klux Klan. He eventually returned to private practice in Portland where he famously supported the women's suffrage movement. He served as Mayor of Portland from 1902-1905. Williams was both an honorary and charter member of Williams Chapter in addition to serving as its namesake.

William G. Hammond Chapter

School:	University of Iowa
Charter Date:	December 5, 1908
	Previous versions of the fraternity history have indicated an installation date of December 4, 1908. December 5, 1908, has been confirmed using contemporary sources.

David J. Brewer Chapter

School: Stetson University

Charter Date: April 3, 1915

Some previous versions of the fraternity history incorrectly give a charter date of April 2, 1951, or April 2, 1915. The error in the 1951 reports resulted from a simple typographical error transposing the last two digits of the year. The date of April 2, 1915, sometimes reported was a Friday evening when other local Stetson groups feted the initiates and guests, but the formal installation occurred on Saturday April 3, 1915.

Charter Members: Students: Hamden H. Baskin, William P. Dineen, Ray M. Griffin, A. Otto Kanner, Charles Pratt Philips, David Sholtz, William Jephunneh Steed, Howard P. Stewart, Elwyn C. Thomas, and Lewis H. Tribble.

Namesakes:

Lucious Quintus Cincinnatus Lamar II (1825-1893)

Lamar was a prominent American attorney, educator, statesman, and jurist. He read law with his uncle and was admitted to the Georgia bar in 1847. He moved to Mississippi in 1849 and accepted a position as Assistant Professor of Mathematics at the University of Mississippi. After a brief return to Georgia during which he served in the Georgia House of Representatives from 1853-1854, he returned to Mississippi. In Mississippi, he practiced law and ran a cotton plantation. During the American Civil War, he was commissioned as a colonel in the Confederate Army after organizing the 19th Mississippi Regiment. He resumed private practice after the war. Lamar represented Mississippi in the United States House of Representatives from 1873-1877 and in the United States Senate from 1885-1888. After his appointment by President Cleveland, he served as an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court from 1888 until his death in 1893.

Joshua Marion Morse III (1923-2012). Morse was a prominent American attorney and legal educator. He was a World War II veteran and earned his law degree at the University of Mississippi in 1948. After fourteen years in private practice, he taught at the University of Mississippi beginning in 1962 and served as Dean of the University's law school from 1963-1969. While serving as Dean, he defied segregationist tradition by admitting the school's first black students, helping to advance the desegregation of the Mississippi legal profession and judiciary. According to Time Magazine, he was pushed out of Ole Miss due to his liberal traits. After leaving Mississippi he became Dean of Florida State University College of Law and served in that role from 1969-1980. He continued to serve as a Professor at Florida State until 2003.

Namesake:	Roger Brooke Taney (1777-1864). Taney was a prominent American attorney, statesman, and jurist. Taney read the law and was admitted to the Maryland bar in 1799. He established a successful practice in Frederick, Maryland and became politically active serving as a Member of the Maryland House of Delegates. In 1816, he was elected to a five year term in the Maryland Senate. Relocating his legal practice to Baltimore in 1823, he became even more prominent. From 1827-1831, he served as Attorney General for Maryland. He held three cabinet posts under President Andrew Jackson – Secretary of War (1831), Attorney General of the United States (1831-1833), and Secretary of the Treasury (1833-1834). In 1836, Jackson appointed him Chief Justice of the United States, a post he held from 1836 until his death in 1864. He wrote the opinion in Dred Scott which is widely believed to be one of the worst decisions in Supreme Court history favoring blatant racism over judicial reasoning. Later, he sympathized with the seceding Southern States and opposed Lincoln's efforts during the American Civil War to suspend habeas corpus for secessionists and to permit Union ships seizing vessels trading with Confederate ports.

Fred M. Vinson Chapter

FKA Horace H. Lurton Chapter

The Lurton Chapter was originally chartered at Vanderbilt University on May 14, 1921, but had gone inactive at Vanderbilt in the late 1920's. The chapter charter was transferred to the University of Louisville on June 1, 1935. However, when the chapter at Vanderbilt was reactivated after World War II in 1947, the Lurton Chapter charter was transferred back to Vanderbilt, and the chapter at the University of Louisville was rechartered as the Fred W. The original Hannibal Hamlin Chapter was chartered at the University of Maine on May 27, 1910, but the school had ceased operations by the 1930's. In September 1937, the charter was transferred to Loyola University in Los Angeles. The chapter was subsequently renamed the William Ford Chapter on March 25, 1940. Though technically sharing a charter, the chapters have always been treated separately in fraternity historical records, and the Ford Chapter's charter date is considered September 19, 1937, and the members of the original Hamlin Chapter are not considered members of Ford Chapter. For that reason, separate entries are maintained here for the two chapters.

School: Loyola University of Los Angeles

[In 1967, Loyola University of Los Angeles and Marymount College merged and became Loyola Marymount University.]

Charter Date:	September 19, 1937 Previous versions of the fraternity history sometimes listed a charter date of September 13, 1937. This was apparently the result of a typographical error. The September 19, 1937, date has been verified from initiation records.
Charter Members:	Joseph K. Coady, Robert L. Corfman, Leroy Lester Donkin, Clovis Paul DuBois, Paul T. Erskine, John Thomas Ganahl, Edmond Gattone, Herbert A. Houser, Jr. John Adams Knauft, Baldo Martin Kristovich, James Arthur Madden, Rudy George Maslach, and Evan H. Sweet.
Installation:	Information about the chapter's installation is not available at this time.

He was elected to the Maine House of Representatives in 1835. Later, he represented Maine in the U.S. House of Representatives (1843-1847) and in the U.S. Senate (1848-1857). He served as Governor of Maine for one month in 1857 before resigning from the governor's office to return to the Senate (1857-1861). From 1861-1865, he served as Vice President of the United States under Abraham Lincoln. In 1869, Hamlin returned to the Senate and served till 1881. He spent one year as U.S. Minister to Spain before retiring from public life. William Joseph Ford (1877-1932). Ford was a prominent American attorney and legal educator. He interrupted his studies to serve in his country in the Spanish-American War in the Sixth California Infantry, and later continued his service as first lieutenant of the Sixth Company of Artillery in the California National Guard. He was admitted to the California bar in 1899 after which he practiced in Los Angeles County. He was deputy district attorney for the county from 1908-1914. He became known nationally during his prosecution of the McNamara Brothers who were accused of bombing the Los Angeles Times building in 1910. From 1920 until 1928, he was a professor of evidence and (from 1923) the first Dean of St. Vincent's School of Law at Loyola University of Los Angeles. He continued in private practice thereafter until his death in 1932 at the age of fifty-five.

Owen J. Roberts Chapter

FKA William Hansel Fish Chapter

The William H. Fish Chapter was originally chartered on March 3, 1928, at Mercer University. The chapter became inactive, and its charter was transferred to the new chapter at Temple University in Philadelphia on June 15, 1939. Two years later the Fish Chapter was transferred back to Mercer, and the chapter at Temple was renamed the Owen J. Roberts Chapter. Because the two chapters continued independently, the Fish Chapter's charter date is considered June 15, 1939, and its charter members are considered those initiated on that date.

He was promoted to major general during his subsequent service in the South Carolina militia. He represented South Carolina at the Constitutional Convention in 1787 and was one of the advocates for counting slaves as a basis of representation. He served as United States Minister to France from 1796-1797 when he was appointed by President Adams to serve as a general in command of the U.S. Army's Southern Department. Pinckney was the Federalist Party candidate for the presidency in 1804 but lost to incumbent Thomas Jefferson and in 1808 but lost to James Madison. After the 1808 election, he focused on managing his plantations and developing his law practice. Pinckney, like many of his time, was a slave owner and believed that slavery was an economic necessity in South Carolina and other states.

Namesake:

Sir Thomas More (1478-1535). More was a prominent English lawyer, jurist, and statesman. He studied law first at New Inn and then at Lincoln's Inn and joined the bar in 1502. He served Parliament for many years and as Speaker of the House of Commons in 1523. He served as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster from 1525-1529 and Lord Chancellor of England from 1529 to 1532. Due to the conflict between the Papacy and King Henry VIII, More resigned as Chancellor. More refused to support the King's annulment or to sign the 1524 Oath of Succession as its preamble repudiated the authority of the Pope. He was executed for treason in 1535. He is considered a martyr by the Roman Catholic Church and was canonized (declared a Saint) in 1935. Oddly, he is also considered a martyr of the reformation and a saint by the Anglican Church.

Namesake:	Abraham Lincoln (1809-1865). Lincoln was a prominent American attorney and statesman. Born in Kentucky and raised in Indiana and settling in Illinois, He served as a Captain in the Illinois Militia during the Blackhawk War and was later admitted to the Illinois bar in 1836. He served in the Illinois House of Representatives from 1834-1842 while practicing law and developing a reputation as a formidable trial attorney. In 1846, Lincoln was elected to the United States House of Representatives. In 1856, Lincoln joined the Republican Party which adopted a platform supporting Congressional authority to regulate slavery in the territories and permitting the admission of Kansas as a free state. In 1858, Lincoln famously engaged in a series of seven debates with Stephen Douglas with whom he was vying for an election to the Senate. Although Douglas won the Senate, Lincoln's gained national prominence during the debates particularly for his eloquent opposition to slavery and support of the Declaration of Rights premise that all men are created equal. In 1860, Lincoln was elected 16 th President of the United States which prompted the secession of several southern states that feared the abolition of slavery. Lincoln served as President from 1861-1865 during which time he guided the North to victory and issued the Emancipation Proclamation that freed the slaves in all states in rebellion. He also delivered the Gettysburg Address which is considered the most quoted speech in American History. On April 15, 1865, Lincoln died – the victim of an assassin.

Namesake:	George Wythe (1726-1806). Wythe was a prominent American lawyer, scholar, educator, and jurist and is one of the Founding Fathers of the United States. After reading law, Wythe established his practice in Williamsburg, Virginia. In colonial Virginia, he served at various times as the Mayor of Williamsburg, a member of the House of Burgesses, and the King's Attorney General. For much of his life he served on the judiciary, first as a justice of the peace and after independence on the Virginia Court of Chancery. He represented Virginia in the Continental Congress and is one of the Signers of the Declaration of Independence. In 1776, he was a delegate to Virginia's constitutional convention and helped design the Seal of Virginia. He served on the Board of Visitors at the College of William and Mary where the chapter bearing his name would one day be chartered. In 1779, he was appointed to the newly created Chair of Law and Police which made him the first professor of law in the United States. Although born into a wealthy plantation family, Wythe grew progressively more anti-slavery, and freed all his slaves at the end of the American Revolution. According to some scholars, Wythe "single handedly tried to abolish slavery by judicial interpretation," in one of his last cases. In Hudgins v. Wright, he held that because of the 1776 Virginia Declaration of Rights all men were presumptively free in Virginia.

Namesake:

Henry de Bracton (C.1210-c.1268). De Bracton was a prominent English cleric, scholar, and jurist who helped shape the Common Law of England from which U.S. Common Law evolved. He is most famous of his legal works, particularly On the Laws and Customs of England and his development of the concepts of "mens rea" - the idea that a guilty mind is necessary for a perpetrator to be guilty of a crime and "stare decisis" – the idea that prior decisions established legal precedent. He served as Chancellor of Exeter Cathedral and a justice of the assize and a member of the King's Court and was considered one of the greatest judges of all time during the reign of Henry III. His ideas on kingship, that the king could only rule if obtained and exercised power in lawful manner would have been known by many of the Founding Fathers as his writing were commonly read by those reading law in the American Colonies in the 18th Century.

Clarence Darrow Chapter

School:

University of Maryland

Charter Date:

May 29, 1958

Charter Members:	John A. Bensen, Wesley B. Blackmon, Clayton B. Burton, LeRoy R. Compton, Robert E. Farnell III, George Louis Huber, Jr., Richard J. Kinlein, Peter Grubb McLean, Martin M. Mrozinski, Archie Douglas Owens, Robert E. Powell, Charles P. Revoile, Patrick L. Rogan, Jr., Donald Allen Sager, Forrest Wales Thomas, John C. Tracey, and Beverly R. Williford
Installation:	The chapter was installed by Supreme Justice Elwyn Thomas (Brewer), Supreme Marshal Robert E. Redding (Taft), and former Supreme Historian Henry C. Foss (Rutledge) in a joint ceremony with the installation of the Baltimore Alumni Chapter. The ceremony took place in the Southern Hotel in Baltimore. Jay Chapter Justice Art Palmer, Taft Chapter Justice James McGannon, Washington D.C. Alumni Justice Robert Losch assisted.
Namesake:	Clarence Seward Darrow (1857-1938). Darrow was a prominent American trial attorney who became famous nationally for his handling of high profile cases. He was also a prolific public speaker, debater, and writer. He attended the University of Michigan law school but did not graduate. However, he did continue to read the law independently and was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1878 and Illinois in 1888. After relocating to Illinois, he worked in the City of Chicago law department for two years before entering private practice. In 1894, he represented Eugene V. Debbs when the Union leader was being prosecuted by the federal government for leading the Pullman Strike, and soon became one of the country's leading labor lawyers. After a scandal in which Darrow was accused (and acquitted) of bribing a jury, he became less popular with labor but continued to gain national renown as a criminal lawyer. He is most often remembered for his handling of the "Scopes Monkey Trial" in which he defended high school teacher John Scopes for teaching human evolution in violation of Tennessee law prohibiting it from being taught in public schools. Although Scopes was found guilty, Darrow was able to overturn the conviction on appeal. Darrow was a leader in the American Civil Liberties Union and a staunch advocate for economic reform. Although there is no record of Darrow ever joining Phi Alpha Delta or Lambda Epsilon, there is documentation of some of our earliest members working with (or against) Darrow while he practiced in Chicago.

Richardson and Cooley members Jim Banks, Julius McAnders, Steve Myers, and Frank Willette. Following the ceremony, a banquet was held at Mario's Restaurant.

Namesake:

William Francis "Frank" Murphy (1890-1949). Murphy was a prominent American attorney, statesman, and jurist. A native of Michigan, Murphy graduated from the University of Michigan Law School in 1914 and was admitted to the state bar. During World War I he attained the rank of Captain and served with occupying forces in Germany, after which he pursued post graduate work at Trinity College and at Lincoln's Inn. After returning to the United States, he served as Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan from 1919-1922. He served as a judge of the Recorder's Court in Detroit from 1924-1930. He served as Mayor of Detroit from 1930-1933 when he entered federal service. He served as Governor-General of the Philippine Islands from 1933-1935 and High Commissioner to the Philippines from 1935-1936. Returning home to Michigan, he served as the state's 35th Governor from 1937-1939 when he was appointed by President Roosevelt to serve as Attorney General of the United States. While in that office, he established the Civil Liberties Unit at the Department of Justice designed to enforce the Bill of Rights and civil rights statutes. In 1940, he was sworn in as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States and served in that role until his death in 1949. Interestingly, he was succeeded as Attorney General by Brother Robert H. Jackson (Jay) and as Supreme Court Justice by Brother Tom C. Clark (Taney). Although serving on the Supreme Court during World War II, Justice Murphy served at Fort Benning as an infantry officer during Court recesses. He also acted as Chair of the National Committee Against Nazi Persecution and Extermination of the Jews. The committee was established to promote the rescue of European Jews and to combat antisemitism in the United States. He is perhaps best known for his scathing dissent in the court's ruling in Korematsu v. United States which upheld the federal government's internment of Japanese Americans during the War which he called the "legalization of racism".

Sir John Alexander MacDonald (1815-1891). MacDonald was a prominent Scottish born Canadian attorney and statesman. He immigrated to Canada from Glasgow with his family in 1820. At the time, British North America had no formal law school, but MacDonald apprenticed and read the law, passed the examination set by the Law Society of Upper Canada, and was admitted to the bar in 1836. He became a well-known trial attorney handling many high-profile cases. He entered politics and government service, serving in a variety of positions in Colonial Canada. Eventually he served as Joint Premier of the Province of Canada from 1856-1862 and 1864-1867. On July 1, 1867, with the establishment of the Dominion of Canada, MacDonald joined the House of Commons as leader of the Conservative Party and became Canada's first Prime Minister, serving as Prime Minister from 1867-1873 and again from 1878 until his death in 1891. MacDonald received honorary Doctor of Laws degrees from Queen's University at Kingston and the University of Toronto and an honorary Doctor of Civil Laws from Oxford. He was made a Knight Commander of the Order of the Bath in 1868. He was the dominant figure in Canadian politics for fifty years and is consistently ranked one of the greatest prime ministers in Canadian history. He has been the subject of modern criticism for his role in the establishment of the Chinese head tax and Canadian policies toward indigenous peoples but remains well respected for his role in Canada's formation.

José de Diego y Martínez (1866-1917). De Diego was a prominent Puerto Rican attorney, poet, journalist, and statesman. Born in Puerto Rico, he studied in Spain at the University of Barcelona and completed his legal education in Cuba at the University of Havana. Returning to Puerto Rico he advocated for autonomy from Spain. He set up a legal practice in Arecibo and founded the newspaper La República. When Puerto Rico achieved status as an autonomous province, De Diego was named Vice Minister of Justice and Grace. The autonomy was short-lived due to occupation of Puerto Rico by the United States in 1898. He served as one of the first Associate Justices of the Puerto Rico Supreme Court from 1898-1899 and served in the House of Delegates as Speaker from 1904-1917. Confronted with what he saw as racist attitudes from the U.S. government, De Diego advocated for independence and became known as the “Father of the Puerto Rican Independence Movement”. De Diego was one of the founders of the Colegio de Agricultura y Artes Mecánicas de Mayagüez which would become the University of Puerto Rico at Mayagüez.

Clair Engle (1911-1964). Engle was a prominent American attorney and statesman. A California native, Engle attended Chico State Teachers College and the Hastings College of Law (now known as University of California College of Law, San Francisco). He was admitted to the California Bar in 1933 and was almost immediately elected District Attorney for Tehama County. He held that office from 1934-1942. He served in the California State Senate briefly in 1943 but was elected to represent California in the United States House of Representatives that fall. He served in the House from 1943-1959 and then in the United States Senate from 1959-1964. While serving in the House he was known as the "flying congressman" as he had a pilot's license and flew to meet with constituents throughout the state and from California to the DC Area. He is best known for his decisive vote to end the filibuster in the Senate which was preventing passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. At the time of the vote, he had recently undergone surgery for a brain tumor. Engle was partially paralyzed and unable to speak during the roll call vote, so he lifted his arm and pointed to his eye to signal the clerk that he voted "aye". With the filibuster broken, the Senate went on to pass the historic civil rights legislation. Engle was an honorary member of Phi Alpha Delta's Ross Chapter.

He was a 1940 graduate of John Marshall Law School (now known as University of Illinois Chicago Law) and was admitted to the Illinois Bar after the war in 1946. He received his Master of Laws degree in 1950. Watkins continued to serve in the National Guard until 1960. At retirement, he was promoted to Brigadier General and transferred to the Army Reserve. At the time, Watkins commanded the 178th Infantry Brigade and was one of the highest-ranking African Americans in military service. Eight years after retirement from the Guard, he was appointed by Illinois Governor Otto Kerner to investigate racial discrimination in the Illinois National Guard in 1968 and to study the impact of proposed reorganization of the National Guard on minority members in Illinois. A renowned attorney and civic leader, Watkins was also an educator. He served on the faculty at North Carolina College which became North Carolina Central University, and at the time of his death in 1970 served on the faculty at John Marshall Law School. In 1969 he had been awarded John Marshall's Distinguished Service Award.

Hugo Lafayette Black (1886-1971). Black was a prominent American attorney, statesman, and jurist. Black graduated from the University of Alabama School of Law and was admitted to practice in 1906. He practiced in Birmingham and concentrated in labor law and personal injury. He served as a police court judge from 1911-1912, and as Jefferson County Prosecuting Attorney from 1914 until resigning to serve his country in World War I in 1917. He served as a Captain and regimental adjutant in the 81st Field Artillery. After the war, he returned to Birmingham and resumed private practice. It is at this time, that he became involved with the Ku Klux Klan. He later stated that he had resigned from the organization and discontinued any association with the group in 1925. He served in the United States Senate from 1927 until 1937 when he was nominated to the Supreme Court from President Roosevelt. He served as an Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States from 1937-1971. While serving as a Senator, he was considered a reformer and generally supported New Deal initiatives. On the Court, he was considered strongly liberal for most of his tenure and many of his opinions expanded individual rights. However, he wrote the opinion in Korematsu v. the United States which upheld the internment of Japanese Americans during the war and opposed any interpretation of the Constitution which supported a constitutional right to privacy.

Benito Pablo Juárez García (1806-1872). Juárez was a prominent Mexican attorney, jurist, and statesman. A native of San Pablo Guelato in Oaxaca, Juárez pursued a rounded education eventually becoming a teacher of physics in 1829. In 1832, he graduated from the Institute of Arts and Sciences with a degree in law. He was admitted to the bar in 1834. As a lawyer he was an advocate for the underprivileged, representing indigenous villagers, and was even jailed along with members of the community for championing their causes. He served in the Oaxaca state legislature for two years, until it was dissolved as part of the government reorganization in 1834. He was again briefly imprisoned for his protests of the centralization of power in Mexico City. From 1842 to 1846, he served as a Civil and Revenue Judge for the state of Oaxaca. After the end of the Centralist Government, Juárez became governor of Oaxaca serving from 1847 to 1852 and again from 1856 to 1857, when he was appointed Secretary of the Interior. He served for one month as President of the Supreme Court of Justice of the Nation before becoming the 26th President of Mexico. He served as President from 1858 until his death in 1872. Of Zapotec ancestry, Juárez was the first and only indigenous President of Mexico and the first democratically elected indigenous president of any of the post-colonial American countries. His policies supported civil liberties and equal justice, and he became a symbol of Mexican nationalism.

A native of South Carolina, Byrnes apprenticed and read the law and was admitted to the bar in 1903. He served as solicitor for the second circuit court of South Carolina from 1908-1910 when he was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives. He served in the House from 1911-1925. He returned to private practice in the late twenties but became a United States Senator from South Carolina in 1931 serving until 1941 when he was nominated to the Supreme Court. His tenure on the Court was brief (1941-1942), as Roosevelt called him for executive service during World War II. He served as Director of the Office of Stabilization (1942-1943), Director of the Office of War Mobilization (1945-1947), and United States Secretary of State under President Truman (Benton) from 1945-1947. After playing a major role in all three branches of federal government, Byrnes was elected 104 th Governor of South Carolina serving from 1951-1955. As governor, he opposed the Supreme Court's decision in Brown v. Board of Education favoring "separate but equal" over desegregation of schools.
	Karl Nickerson Llewellyn (1893-1962) . Llewellyn was a prominent American attorney, legal scholar, and educator. Although a native of Seattle, Washington his education was mostly on the east coast where he received his LLB and JD from Yale Law School in 1918 and 1920 respectively. Prior to the U.S. entry into World War I, Llewellyn supported the German cause and even fought for a time with the Prussian Infantry. When the U.S. entered the war, Llewellyn attempted to enlist in the US Army but was rejected due to his prior German service. From 1925 until 1951, he was a member of the Columbia Law School Faculty. He gained prominence while at Columbia and served as principal drafter of the Uniform Commercial Code. In 1951, he joined the faculty of the University of Chicago Law School. In 2000, the Journal of Legal Studies listed Llewellyn as one of the twenty most cited legal scholars of the 20th century. It is interesting to note, that in 1988 the Phi Alpha Delta Chapter at the University of Miami would be named after Llewellyn's wife, Soia Mentschikoff, herself a legal scholar and educator.

In 1926, he was elected presiding judge and served in that role till 1935. In 1935, he was sworn as a United States Senator, and represented Missouri in the Senate for almost ten years. He resigned from the Senate to serve as Vice President under Roosevelt during the president's last term. Upon the death of President Roosevelt, Truman became the 33 rd President of the United States. It is interesting to note that during his presidency, Truman applied for admission to the bar in 1947 but was not admitted due to the failure to have his application notarized. Although he never followed up, the Supreme Court of Missouri posthumously granted him an honorary law license in 1996. President Truman was an honorary member of Phi Alpha Delta's Benton Chapter.

Namesake:	Arthur Middleton (1742-1787). Middleton was a prominent American attorney and statesman and was one of the Founding Fathers of the United States. Born in the then British province of South Carolina, he was educated in Britain and studied law at the Middle Temple. After his return to the colonies, Middleton served as a Justice of the Peace in Berkley County (1765) and as a member of the provincial House of Commons from 1765-1768 and again from 1772-1775. He became a leader of the American Party. In 1776, he was elected to the Continental Congress and was one of the signers of the United States Declaration of Independence. He also helped design the Great Seal of South Carolina. During the American Revolution, Middleton served among the defenders of Charleston when it fell to the British in 1780, leading to his imprisonment by the British until the following year when he was released as part of a prisoner exchange. After the war, he served in the state legislature and was one of the original trustees of Charleston College.

Stephen A. Douglas Chapter

School:	Southern Illinois University
Charter Date:	May 2, 1974
Namesake:	Stephen A. Douglas (1813-1861). Douglas was a prominent American attorney, jurist, and statesman. Douglas was born in Vermont and read law in New York. He eventually settled in Illinois where he was admitted to the bar in 1834. He was elected State's Attorney for Illinois' First District in 1834 and elected to the Illinois House of Representatives in 1836. He briefly served as the Illinois Secretary of State (1840-1841) and was then elected to the Illinois Supreme Court. He resigned from the court after two years when he was elected the United States House of Representatives. He served in the House from 1843-1847 and in the U.S. Senate from 1847-1861. In Congress, Douglas supported the popular sovereignty approach which permitted the citizens of territories applying for statehood to determine whether to permit slavery and drafted the Kansas-Nebraska Act of 1854. In the 1858 senatorial campaign, he famously engaged in multiple debates with future President Abraham Lincoln. Although Douglas was reelected to the Senate, Lincoln gained national prominence during these debates. There is much debate among historians concerning Douglas' personal beliefs about slavery. At least publicly he addressed the issue on political rather than moral grounds, and believed the people should decide.

Namesake:	James Monroe (1758-1831). Monroe was a prominent American attorney, diplomat, and statesman and is considered one of the Founding Fathers of the United States. During the American Revolution, he served in the Continental Army rising to the rank of Colonel. After the war, Monroe studied law with Thomas Jefferson. He was elected to the Virginia House of Delegates in 1782 and became a delegate to the Congress of the Confederation in 1783. He served until 1786. In 1786, he was admitted to the Virginia Bar and became an attorney for the state. In 1789, he was elected to the first United States Congress as Senator from Virginia. He served as Senator until appointed by President Washington as U.S. Minister to France (1794-1796). He served as Governor of Virginia from 1799-1802. From 1803 to 1807, he served as U.S. Minister to the United Kingdom. Monroe served a second time as Governor of Virginia in 1811 but left office to serve as Secretary of State under President Madison (1811-1817) and during this time served a dual role as acting Secretary of War (1814-1815). In 1816, he was elected 5th President of the United States and served from 1817 to 1825. During his administration, he adopted a policy opposition to further colonization of the Americas by foreign powers which became known as The Monroe Doctrine, took a leadership role in adoption of the Missouri Compromise excluding slavery in the northern parts of the Louisiana territory, and acquired the Florida from Spain. Although a slave owner himself, Monroe was opposed to slavery. He came to believe that slavery was wrong and supported private manumission. As President of Virginia's Constitutional Convention in 1829, Monroe proposed that Virginia emancipate its slaves. He supported the establishment of U.S. colonies outside of the States for freed African Americans, and Monrovia, the capital of Liberia, is named for him.

Morrison Remick "Mott" Waite (1816-188). Waite was a prominent American attorney, jurist, and statesman. Born in Connecticut, Waite relocated to Ohio where he read law and was admitted to the bar in 1839. He practiced law in Maumee, Ohio concentrating in business and property law, and in 1846 was elected Mayor of Maumee. In 1850, Waite relocated to Toledo, Ohio where he continued to practice and be active in politics. Because he was anti-slavery, he helped organize the Republican party in Ohio. In 1871, he represented the United States before the Alabama Tribunal at Geneva and helped win a $15 million award for the United States against the United Kingdom. In 1873, Waite presided over the Ohio Constitutional Convention.

Nominated by President Grant, Waite was sworn in as the 7th Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States in 1874 and served in that role till his death in 1888.

Although anti-slavery and favoring admission of women to the bar, Waite and his court strictly construed and narrowly interpreted post-Civil War and Reconstruction constitutional amendments and legislation. For example, his court struck down the Civil Rights Act of 1875 which prohibited discrimination in access to public services. This federal prohibition was not restored until the passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The following year he returned to Delaware and established his legal practice in New Castle. From 1763 until 1774, Read served as the Crown's Attorney General for three counties in Delaware. In 1774, he represented Delaware in the Continental Congress. Initially favoring reconciliation with Great Britain, Read was a signer of the Declaration of Independence once it was finally adopted by the Continental Congress. In fact, Read was one of only two statesmen who signed four of the United States "great papers" related to its founding – the Petition to the King, the Articles of Association, the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution of the United States. Read was elected to the first Legislative Council of the Delaware General Assembly and served as Speaker from 1776-1778. During this time, Read served for one year as the third President (Governor) of Delaware. He continued to serve in a variety of legislative roles in Delaware until 1782, when he was elected judge of the Court of Appeals in Cases of Capture – the first federal court in the United States. After adoption of the U.S. Constitution, Read was elected one of Delaware's first U.S. Senators. He served in the Senate from 1789-1793, when he was made Chief Justice of Delaware. He served as Chief Justice until his death in 1798.

Alexander Pierre "A.P." Tureaud (1899-1972). Tureaud was a prominent American attorney and civil rights leader. He was a native of Louisiana and received his law degree from Howard University in 1925. After briefly practicing in D.C., Tureaud returned to Louisiana. He was one of only four black attorneys in the state and for many periods in his life was the only black attorney regularly practicing in the state. He spent much of his legal career fighting segregation and Jim Crow laws. In the late 1930's, with the assistance of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, Tureaud filed the lawsuits that effectively ended legal segregation in New Orleans and paved the way for integrating elementary schools. In 1953, he sued the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisor seeking desegregation, and as a result of this suit, his son A.P. Tureaud Jr. became the first black student admitted at the University. He founded the Louis Martinet Legal Society which addressed racial discrimination and civil rights violations throughout the state of Louisiana.

Installation:

The chapter was installed by International Justice Charles H. Taylor (Timberlake), Assistant District XV Justice Cliff Schechter (Wormser), and Philip Greenberg (Rapallo). There was some dispute about the name of the chapter, with many board members pushing for the alternate option of Moshe Silberg, Israeli Supreme Court Justice and legal scholar, rather than the preferred choice of the petitioners and the school - Judah Touro, who was mostly known as philanthropist and was not an attorney. Some certificates were even printed with the name Silberg Chapter before the board relented and voted to issue the charter in the name of Judah Touro. the Silberg name was even erroneously reported in The Reporter.

Namesakes:

Judah Touro (1775-1854). Touro was a prominent American businessman and philanthropist. Born in the British colony of Rhode Island just prior to the American Revolution, he settled in New Orleans in 1801 where he opened a store. His business grew and he became a prominent merchant and ship owner – particularly after the Louisiana Purchase. He served in the army during the War of 1812 and was severely injured during the Battle of New Orleans. After the war he continued to build his businesses and despite amassing considerable wealth for the time, led a simple life and resided in a small apartment. He became a well-known philanthropist, and among his notable activities were the endowment of a cemetery, the building of a synagogue, the building of an infirmary for those suffering from yellow fever, and the building of a Unitarian church. The infirmary later became the largest free hospital in Louisiana. Touro College itself was named for Judah Touro and his father Isaac Touro, a prominent Dutch-born Jewish leader in Colonial America.

Ernesto Ramos Antonini (1898-1963). Ramos was a prominent Puerto Rican attorney, musician, and statesman. He received his legal education and received his law degree in 1922. He practiced law in Ponce, Puerto Rico. He gained prominence after his successful defense of members of the Puerto Rican Nationalist Party participating in a peaceful march to commemorate the abolition of slavery that turned into a police shooting in which more than 200 unarmed civilians were wounded or killed. The incident became known as the Ponce Massacre. Partially as a result of this tragedy, the Asociación Puertorriqueña de Libertades Civiles, a Puerto Rican branch of the ACLU, was founded and Ramos served as the association's legal counsel. His reputation as a defender of the working class was earned working in the International Workers Congress. In 1938, Ramos was one of the co-founders of the Partido Popular Democrático de Puerto Rico (Popular Democratic Party of Puerto Rico) and was elected to the House of Representatives of Puerto Rico. In 1945 he was named President of the House of Representatives and held that position till his death in 1963. Among his many accomplishments, he is credited with creation of the Institute of Labor Relations, the National Commission of Work Relations, the Escuela Libre de Música, the Music Conservatory of Puerto Rico, and the Symphonic Orchestra of Puerto Rico. He also credited with passage of the Minimum Wage Law of 1956. Both of his daughters, Janette and Ivette, became lawyers and members of Phi Alpha Delta. Janette became a judge and later first lady of Puerto Rico when she married Governor Roberto Sánchez Vilella.

Namesake:	Anna Pauline "Pauli" Murray (1910-1985) . Murray was a prominent American attorney, civil rights activist, legal scholar, and author. She was the only woman law student in her class at Howard University where she graduated first in her class in 1944. She was denied admission to do graduate work at Harvard due to her gender, but earned a master's degree in law from Berkeley and became the first African American to receive a Doctor of Juridical Science from Yale in 1965. In 1945, Murray was hired as the first African American deputy attorney general in California, and she was named "Woman of the Year" by the National Council of Negro Women. Murray was active supporter of women's rights and civil rights in general and her book, States' Laws on Race and Color , was called the "bible of the civil rights movement", by the Thurgood Marshall. She served on the Presidential Commission on the Status of Women from 1961-1963, and in 1966 co-founded the National Organization for Women. In 1971, when future

Supreme Court Justice and Phi Alpha Delta member Ruth Bader Ginsberg wrote her brief in Reed v. Reed, a Supreme Court case which extended 14th Amendment protections to women for the first time, she listed Murray as a coauthor in recognition of her reliance on Murray's work. Murray also served on the faculty of Ghana School of Law, Benedict College, and Brandeis University. Later in life, Murray received her Master of Divinity and was ordained the first African American woman Episcopal priest in 1976. Murray struggled throughout her life with gender identity describing herself as having an "inverted sex instinct". Murray was the first African American woman for whom a chapter was named. However, she had romantic relationships with male and female partners and saw herself as "the man" in her relationships with women. Some historians and gender studies specialists believe that if Murray were alive today, she would identify as transgender.

Soia Menschikoff (1915-1984). Menschikoff was a prominent Russian American attorney, educator, and scholar. She was born to American parents in the Russian Empire, but her family returned to the United States before the Russian Revolution. She received her Juris Doctor from Columbia Law School in 1937 and entered private practice in New York City concentrating in commercial and labor law. She was the first woman to become a partner at a large New York City law firm. In 1947, she became the first woman to teach at Harvard Law School. In 1949, she was named Associate Chief Reporter in the American Law Institutes project to draft the Uniform Commercial Code. In 1951, both her and her husband Karl N. Llewellyn, the Chief Reporter on the Project, were offered teaching positions at the University of Chicago Law School. Starting as a “professorial lecturer”, Menschikoff became a full professor in 1962. At Chicago, Menschikoff worked in international commercial law, and she represented the United States in The Hague as a diplomatic conference in which she advocated for the establishment of uniform international sales and arbitration law. In 1967, she began alternate semesters teaching at the University of Miami School of Law as well as the University of Chicago. In 1974, she was appointed Dean at Miami and left her position at the University of Chicago. She continued to serve as Dean of the University of Miami Law School until her death in 1984. While serving as Dean, Menschikoff was initiated as an honorary member of Rasco Chapter on November 11, 1978. It is interesting to note that in 1974 the Phi Alpha Delta Chapter at the Lewis and Clark College was renamed after Menschikoff’s husband, Karl N. Llewellyn, himself a legal scholar and educator.

Namesake:	Claude Denson Pepper (1900-1989) . Pepper was a prominent American attorney and statesman. During World War I, Pepper joined the United States Army and served in the Student Army Training Corps, but never saw active service before the end of the war. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Alabama in 1921 and his Bachelor of Laws from Harvard in 1924. After graduating from Harvard Law School, he briefly taught law at the University of Arkansas, and then established his practice in Perry, Florida. He served in the Florida House of Representatives from 1929-1931. In 1931, Pepper moved his practice to Tallahassee where he served on the Florida Board of Public Welfare and the Florida Board of Bar Examiners. In 1936, he was elected to the United States Senate and represented Florida in the Senate from 1936-1951. Senator Pepper was initiated as an honorary member of Phi Alpha Delta's Fletcher Chapter on October 30, 1937, and remained an active supporter of the fraternity thereafter. In the Senate, he supported Roosevelt and the New Deal. Although he worked with other southern Senators to filibuster a 1937 anti-lynching proposal, he later broke with them and supported anti-poll tax legislation in the 1940's. Pepper sponsored the Lend Lease Act which provided for aid to allied nations during World War II. In 1951, Pepper returned to practice in Miami and Washington. However, he was recalled to Congressional service in 1962 when he was elected to the United States House of Representatives. He continued to serve in the House until his death in 1989. In Congress he was staunchly anti-communist, posing Castro and supporting aid to the Nicaraguan Contras. He supported the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Civil Rights Act of 1968, and the Voting Rights Act of 1965. (He was the only Florida Representative to support the 1964 Civil Rights Act.) In 1977, Pepper became chair of the newly formed House Committee on Aging and became a leading spokesman for the elderly, reforming Social Security and expanding Medicare. In 1984, the fraternity presented Pepper its Tom C. Clark Equal Justice Under Law Award, and he was awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom by President George H.W. Bush in 1989, just four days before his death. He was posthumously inducted into the Florida Civil Rights Hall of Fame in 2012.

In Philadelphia, Franklin became successful newspaper editor and publisher, publishing the Pennsylvania Gazette and Poor Richard's Almanack. He was the first president of the Academy and College of Philadelphia which later became the University of Pennsylvania. He served as Postmaster General of British America from 1753-1774, and subsequently represented Pennsylvania in the Second Continental Congress where he was one of the authors of the Declaration of Independence. He was an abolitionist, and he supported the education and integration of African Americans in the United States. From 1775-1776, he served as the first United States Postmaster General. From 1779-1785, he served as the United States Minister to France and from 1782-1788 as the United States Minister to Sweden. His diplomatic service is considered pivotal in obtaining France's support in the American Revolution. From 1785 to 1788, Franklin was President of Pennsylvania. During this time, he also represented Pennsylvania at the Constitution Convention. During his life, he was considered one of the most accomplished men of his time. As a scientist, he was considered a major figure in what would become known as the American Enlightenment.

School: Roger Williams University

Charter Date: March 28, 1998

Previous versions of this history indicated the petition date was April 2, 1998, with a notation that the actual charter date is "not in fraternity records". A review of actual fraternity initiation records has verified that the chapter was installed, and its charter members were initiated on March 28, 1998.

Charter Members: Marlee James Buckson, Cindy Rose Franco, Eugene G. Gallant Jr., Donna M. Gamache, Barbara C. Garcia, Everett R. Gray Jr., Gregory S. Kimmel, Krista Lundborg-DiRico, Tracy Lyons, Christopher T. Millea, Richard D. Raspallo, Namesake: James Madison (1751-1836). Madison was a prominent American diplomat and statesman, and he is considered one of the Founding Fathers of the United States. Although Madison studied law and became something of a legal scholar, he never became a lawyer. He served as a Colonel in the Virginia Military, and though he never saw combat during the American Revolution was considered a leader during the way. He was a member of the Virginia House of Delegates and served in the Continental Congress during the Revolution. After the war, Madison served in the Congress of the Confederation under the Articles of Confederation. He believed the government under the Articles was not strong enough and helped organize the Constitution Convention. Along with Alexander Hamilton and John Jay, Madison was one of the authors of the Federalist Papers in support of the new constitution's ratification. He was sometimes referred to as the "Father of the Constitution". After the ratification, he represented Virginia in the United States House of Representatives from 1789-1797. He served as the United States Secretary of State under Thomas Jefferson from 1801-1809. From 1809-1817, Madison was the fourth President of the United States and served as Commander in Chief during the War of 1812. Madison has been the subject of criticism among historians as a slave owner and for his role in bringing the United States into the War of 1812.

Martin Luther King, Jr. (1929-1968). King was a prominent American minister, activist, and civil rights leader. He also helped lead the fight against poverty and the Vietnam War. Born in Atlanta, Georgia, King attended the historical black college, Morehouse College. Although he considered the study of law, King instead pursued a ministerial career attending Crozer Theological Seminar, the University of Pennsylvania, and Boston University. Although never himself, a lawyer King had a profound impact on the law, particularly in the area of civil rights. King led a nonviolent movement against Jim Crow laws and racial discrimination which included marches, boycotts, and sit-ins. He became the first President of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and organization of black ministers and religious leaders which organized nonviolent civil rights protests throughout the South. King was an eloquent speaker, his "I Have a Dream" speech delivered at the Lincoln Memorial during the March on Washington is considered one of the most iconic speeches in American history. In the speech King described his dreams of freedom and equality and called for an end to racism in the United States. As one of the most prominent leaders of the civil rights movement, King is credited as a pivotal figure in the passing of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Voting Rights Act of 1965, and the Fair Housing Act of 1968. In 1964, King was awarded the Nobel Peace prize for his fight against racial inequality through nonviolent means. In 1968, King was assassinated in Memphis, Tennessee. In 1977 King was posthumously awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom. In 1986, Martin Luther King Day was established as a federal holiday in the United States although by that time the holiday was celebrated locally in many cities and states.

Namesake:	Chester Bedell (1904-1981). Bedell was a prominent American trial attorney. He was admitted to the bar in 1925 at the age of twenty after reading the law with his father and attending but not completing law school at the University of Virginia. While at the University of Virginia during the 1922-1923 school year, Bedell was initiated as a member of the Jefferson Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta. One of his first cases was a murder case in which Bedell was appointed to defend a young man accused of killing his father. After three hung juries, Bedell obtained an acquittal for his client in the fourth trial. Over time he gained a reputation as one of Florida's finest trial attorneys and a real "lawyer's lawyer". During his more than fifty years of practice, he served as President of the Jacksonville Bar Association, member of the Board of Governors of the Florida Bar Association, and a member of the Florida

Supreme Court Nominating Commission. He was one of the founders of the Academy of Florida Trial Attorneys. In 1977, he was awarded the American Bar Foundation Service Award as “the lawyer in the United States who for more than fifty years of practice has epitomized the best of the American trial lawyer.” In addition to having a Phi Alpha Delta chapter named for him, his legacy is preserved in the Florida Bar Association’s Chester Bedell Mock Trial Competition, The Chester Bell Inn of Court, and the Chester Bedell Memorial Foundation.

Namesake:	Warren E. Burger (1907-1995). Burger was a prominent American attorney and jurist. A native of Minnesota, he graduated from the St. Paul College of Law (which, after a series of mergers is now the Mitchell Hamline College of Law) in 1931 magna cum laude . He took a job at a St. Paul law firm, and began specializing in corporate, real estate, and probate law. He also began teaching contract law at his alma mater and continued to do so from 1931-1953. Unable to join the army during World War II due to a spinal condition, Burger served his country as a member of the emergency war law board in Minnesota from 1942 to 1947. From 1948-1953, he served on the Minnesota governor's interracial commission. As first president of St. Paul's

Council on Human Relations, he focused on improving relations between St. Paul law enforcement and minority members of the community. From 1953-1956, Burger served as United States Assistant Attorney General of the Civil Division. In 1956, he was appointed judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. During his tenure on the Court of Appeals, Burger was initiated as an honorary member of the Jay Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta on April 30, 1966. Nominated by President Nixon, Burger served as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States from 1969-1986. During his service, the Court delivered many landmark decisions regarding desegregation, sex discrimination, capital punishment, abortion, and religion establishment. After retiring from the court, he served as Chair of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, and he served as Chancellor of the College of William & Mary from 1986-1993.

Angela Denice Dales is one of the few P.A.D. members initiated posthumously. She was one of the organizing members of the chapter and served as Treasurer for the colony before chartering, but she was killed in a shooting at the school two months before the installation. Her brother, Joe Dales, attended the installation, accepted his sister's membership pin, and signed her name to the chapter roll. Charter Justice James Davis presented the chapter with a memorial plaque which was accepted by law school president Lucius F. Ellsworth and was to be displayed at the law school along with the chapter charter.*

Installation:

The chapter was installed by International Vice Justice Curtis Anderson. The installation was attended by the family of the chapter's namesake Anthony Sutin who was killed in a shooting at the school on January 16, 2002, just two months before the chapter installation. One of the chapter's charter members (see above) as well as law school professor Thomas Blackwell were also killed in the incident. Law school president Lucius F. Ellsworth also attended the installation.

Namesake:

L. Anthony Sutin (1959-2002). Sutin was a prominent American attorney, public servant, and legal educator. A native of New York, Sutin graduated from Brandeis University in 1981 and Harvard Law School in 1984. He practiced for several years in Washington D.C. before joining the United States Department of Justice in 1994. He helped establish and served as Deputy Director of the Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) office and later as principal deputy to the Associate Attorney General of the United States overseeing civil, civil rights, environmental, antitrust, and tax divisions. Finally, he served as Acting Assistant Attorney General for Legislative Affairs and was the Justice Departments liaison with the United States Congress. In 1999, Sutin moved to Grundy West Virginia where he and his wife Margaret Lawton both became professors of law at the recently established Appalachian School of Law. Both were excited to help bring legal education and legal services to a historically depressed area. Shortly thereafter, Sutin was appointed dean of the law school. He published several scholarly articles on the law which appeared in such publications as the Journal of Legislation, the Washington University Law Review, the Northern Kentucky Law Review, and in Holmes Appleman on Insurance, 2nd. In January 2002, just two months before installation of the chapter which would bear his name, Sutin was killed during a school shooting incident at the law school.

Pondish, Judson B. Powell, III, Elizabeth Riordan, Alexandra Ritter, W. Brian Sanders, Karen Sawyer, Hazel M. Scalia, Roger L. White.
Installation:	The chapter was installed as part of the District XXII Joint Initiation ceremony at a ceremony held at the United States Capital Building. The installation team included International Justice Curtis Anderson (Ross/National Capital Area Alumni), Foundation Board of Trustees Vice Chair Jack Miller (Benton), Past District XXIII Justice Alex Francuzenko (Henry), Past District III Justice Tamara Binns (Jay), Raquel White (Langston), Meliha Perez (Cardozo), and Lisa Hall (Taft).
Namesake:	Jean Camper Cahn (1935 – 1991). Cahn was a prominent American attorney and activist who devoted her life to helping the poor and underprivileged. Cahn completed law school at Yale in 1961 and joined the Ford Foundation working on antipoverty programs in New Haven, Connecticut. She soon became Associate General Counsel for the New Haven Redevelopment Agency. Based on her experiences, Cahn and her husband wrote “The War on Poverty: A Civilian Perspective” which appeared in the Yale Law Journal in 1964 and resulted in creation of the Legal Services Corporation which promoted “equal access to justice in our nation” and providing “high quality civil legal assistance to low-income persons”. In 1963, Cahn accepted a position at the African Desk at the U.S. State Department. Shortly thereafter, Cahn became the first director of the National Legal Services Program at the Office of Economic Opportunity. The program provided legal services to people with limited access to the courts and provided employment to minority lawyers who were historically underrepresented in the profession. In 1966, Cahn was one of the founders of the Center of Community Action Education (CCAE). Funded by the federal government, the CCAE organized literacy programs in churches, schools, and community centers. From 1967-1971, Cahn was a adjunct professor of law at Howard University. It was during this time that she organized the Institute for Political Services to Society. In 1968, Cahn founded the Urban Law Institute. Funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity, the Institute hired law students to work with low-income residents of the District of Columbia ensuring their legal rights and access to justice. In 1972, Cahn and her husband co-founded the Antioch School of Law and served as the first deans of the new school which pioneered a comprehensive law clinic education model providing training to its students and legal assistant to the underprivileged. The school later affiliated with the University of the District of Columbia and became known as the David A. Clarke School of Law and is host to the Phi Alpha Delta chapter which bears Cahn’s name. From 1984-1986, she was a distinguished scholar at the London School of Economics and a visiting professor at Middlebury College. She spent the last years of her life practicing poverty law in Miami.

Namesake:

Myra Colby Bradwell (1831-1894). Bradwell was a prominent American attorney, journalist, publisher, and women's rights activist. Bradwell read law with her husband, received the necessary certificate of good character, and passed the oral bar examination in 1869 – the first woman in Illinois to do so. However, she was denied admission to the bar due to her gender. The denial was upheld. The United States Supreme Court upheld the denial of her admission, finding that the state regulation of the practice of law was not protected by the 14th Amendment. Three justices joined in a concurring opinion finding that, “The paramount destiny and mission of women are to fulfill the noble and benign offices of wife and mother...” Bradwell v. the State of Illinois, 83 U.S. 130 (1873). Bradwell worked with Alta Hulett to obtain passage of an antidiscrimination bill in Illinois stating, “That no person shall be precluded or debarred from any occupation, profession or employment (except military) on account of sex...” and Hulett became the first woman admitted to practice in Illinois. Bradwell was later admitted to the bar retroactively to 1869 by the court, but she never practiced. Instead, she became the Editor in Chief of Chicago Legal News, a newspaper focusing on law and the legal profession. The paper reported on court opinions and legal developments and featured a regular column “Law Relating to Women”. She co-authored the Illinois Married Women’s Property Act of 1861 and the Earnings Act of 1869 which allowed women in Illinois to own property and control their own income.

Namesake:	Robert Patrick Casey, Sr. (1932-2000). Casey was a prominent American attorney and statesman. Casey received his law degree from George Washington University in 1956 and began practicing law in D.C. In 1958, he returned to his native Pennsylvania and started his own solo practice. From 1963-1968 he served as a member of the Pennsylvania Senate. From 1969-1977, Casey served as Auditor General of Pennsylvania. After his second term as Auditor, Casey returned to private practice and practiced for ten years before running for Governor. Casey became Governor of Pennsylvania and served in that role until 1995. Casey strongly believed that government should be a beneficent force and as governor expanded women’s healthcare services, reformed Pennsylvania's state welfare system, and created an insurance program of uninsured children. The children's insurance program became a model for the federal children's health insurance program (SCHIP) adopted during the Clinton administration. Casey took a more conservative approach to other issues opposing abortion rights and supporting gun rights and capital punishment.

After graduating receiving his bachelor's degree (1834) and master's degree (1837) from the University of Pennsylvania, Hare read law with a local attorney. He was admitted to the bar in 1841. He served as co-editor of Smith's Leading Cases and Tudor's Leading Cases in Equity . In 1851, he was elected judge of what was then the District Court of Philadelphia. He became President of the Court in 1867, and after the court reorganization in 1875 became President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas Number 2. He held that position in his resignation in 1896, at which time he had served as a judge for 45 years. In 1858, Judge Hare was made a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania and a Professor of the Institutes of Law. While serving as professor, he published works on contracts and on American constitutional law and many other scholarly works. In 1877, upon the official opening of the University's law school, he became one of its first professors and delivered a highly praised keynote address on the nature of jurisprudence. He continued serving as a full professor until 1888 and was still serving as the University's Professor Emeritus of Constitutional Law at the time of his death in 1905.

Charles E. Whittaker Chapter

This is the second Charles Evans Whittaker Chapter. The first was chartered at Whittier College on February 25, 1972. That chapter subsequently changed its name to the Albert Lee Stephens, Sr. Chapter on petition of its members in 1982. and Whittier law ceased all operations in 2017. Namesake:	Donald Lee Hollowell (1917-2004). Hollowell was a prominent American attorney and civil rights leader. After graduating from high school, he served his country for six years in the U.S. Arm's 10 th Cavalry regiment, a segregated African American unit which was relegated to non-combat duty during World War II. After the war he came involved in the Southern Negro Your Congress and pursued his education determined to become a lawyer and fight for justice. He received his undergraduate degree from Lane College in Tennessee (1947) and his law degree from Loyola University of Chicago School of Law in 1951. After graduation he entered private practice in Atlanta, Georgia and served as counsel in many civil rights cases. He successfully sued to force integration of Atlanta's public schools, Georgia universities and colleges, and public transit. In 1960, along with co-counsel Horace Ward, Hollowell secured the release of Marin Luther King, Jr. from state prison. He defended King and hundreds of other civil rights activists prosecuted for protesting segregation and infringement of voters' rights in Albany, Georgia. In 1966, Hollowell was appointed regional director of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, the first black regional director of any major federal agency. In 1967, Hollowell was initiated as an honorary member of Phi Alpha Delta's Langston Chapter at Howard University. He remained with the agency for twenty years. He also served as president of the Voted Education Project which nearly doubled the number of registered African American voters. In 2002, Hollowell was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws by the University of Georgia.

Getz, Jessica Gene Gleason, Daniel Hamad, Chase Liu, Shannon Lopez, Erin Marie Michael, Alina Nadir, Danielle Pires (Biasone), Jessica Stern, Brianna Sullivan, Michael Tomasino, Lisa Marie Zaragoza (Crvarich).
Installation:	The chapter was installed by Director of Operations Byron K. Rupp (Benson) assisted by chapter officers from other District XVIII chapters.
Namesake:	Charlotte E. Ray (1850-1911). Ray was a prominent American attorney, and the first black woman lawyer in the United States. In 1872, she completed her three-year legal education at Howard University where she taught at the University's Preparatory School. Ray was the first woman to graduate from Howard Law. She was admitted to both the District of Columbia Bar and to practice before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in 1872 and began to practice commercial law and real estate. She was the first woman to argue before the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in 1875. Notwithstanding her ability, due to gender and racial prejudices of the time, Ray did not have enough clientele to successfully practice and was forced to return to teaching. Ray was active in the Women's Suffrage Movement in the National Association of Colored Women, and in 1876 attended the National Women's Suffrage Convention in New York. A true trail blazer, she was chosen as namesake by the charter members of the chapter "in recognition of her place as the first female African American attorney". The name was proposed by charter member Reza Breakstone.

Spessard L. Holland Chapter

School:	Florida International University
Charter Date:	June 17, 2006
Charter Members:	Rafael Alonso, Neil C. Anderson, Jerry Angelo Borbon, William C. Brown, Edwin Cruz, Marion O'Neil Greenwood, Marisa Aya Gruber, Hitesh Gupta, Mark Brian Kelly, David Loevin, Mandy L. Mills, Laura Murray, Anthony David Perez, Jennifer Jeanette Perez, Antonio Regojo, Joseph Adam Ruiz, and Dale Jay Spurr.
Installation:	Information about the chapter's installation is not available at this time.
Namesake:	Spessard Lindsey Holland (1892-1971). Holland was a prominent American attorney, jurist, and statesman. He attended Emory College as an undergraduate and taught high school in Georgia from 1912-1914. In 1916, he enrolled in law school at the University of Florida, but his legal career was interrupted by the advent of World War I. He volunteered to serve his country, and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps. He later served in France as an assistant adjutant in the JAG Corp, and then in the Signal Corps of the Army Air Corps. He took part in multiple battles and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross in a citation signed by General John J. Pershing (Lawson). In 1919, he resigned his commission as a Captain. He established his legal practice in Bartow, Florida and served briefly as prosecutor for Polk County, before being elected as a county judge. He served as a county judge from 1920 to 1929 when he resumed private practice establishing the firm of Holland & Bevis which is known today as Holland & Knight, a multinational law firm and one of the ten largest U.S. based law firms. Holland was elected to the Florida Senate and served from 1932-1940, and then served as Governor of Florida from 1941-1945 during which time he was mostly occupied with the U.S. involvement in World War II. After his term as governor, Holland continued to serve Florida in a new role as a United States Senator. He held that office from 1946 until 1971. Like many southern senators of his time, Holland generally supported racial segregation and opposed many civil rights initiatives but led a long-standing battle to ban the poll tax and introduced the bill that would become the 24th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which prohibits the requiring payment of a poll or any other tax as a condition of voting in federal elections. Holland was the first southern senator to support statehood for Hawaii and supported both the Hawaii Admission Act and the Alaska Statehood Act.

Albert Love Patterson (1894-1954). Patterson was a prominent attorney and statesman. During World War I, he served his country as a second lieutenant in the 36th Infantry Division of the Texas Army National Guard and was severely wounded in combat in France. He was awarded the Croix de Guerre with silver gilt star by France for his service. After the war, he received his history degree from the University of Alabama and is law degree from Cumberland Law School, then in Lebanon, Tennessee. He practiced law in Alabama settling in Phenix City. He served as a member of the Phenix City Board of Education in 1937, and as chair of the Russell County Draft Board during World War II. In 1946, he won election to the State Senate, and served as an Alabama state senator from 1947 to 1951. During his time in the senate, he helped introduce several important bills including the Trade School Act and the Wallace-Carter Act. In the early, 1950's Patterson became involved in the Russell Betterment Association which sought fight corruption and vice in Phenix and Russell County which likely resulted in the arson which set his law office afire in 1952. In 1954, during his campaign for state Attorney General, Patterson was assassinated, leaving his office. As a result of the violence, Alabama Governor Persons declared martial law and sent in the Alabama National Guard to take over law enforcement in Phenix and Russell County. Within six month the corrupt Phenix City machine was dismantled, and over 700 indictments against law enforcement officers, government officials, and business owners involved in organized crime were handed down. Three officials were indicted for involvement in Patterson's murder including the Chief Deputy Sheriff who was convicted and served ten years in prison. Patterson's son John took over his departed father's campaign and became attorney general and later governor.

Namesake:	Clement Furman Haynsworth, Jr. (1912-1989). Haynsworth was a prominent American attorney and jurist. He received his legal education at Harvard, graduating in 1936, and entered private practice in Greenville, South Carolina, his hometown. His practice was interrupted when he joined the United States Navy in 1942 to serve his country during World War II. After the war, he returned to private practice in Greenville from 1945 to 1947 when he was nominated by President Eisenhower for the federal bench. He served as judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit from 1957 to 1981, the last sixteen years as Chief Judge. In 1981, he assumed Senior Judge status and continued to serve for an additional eight years. While serving on the Court of Appeals, Haynsworth was initiated as an honorary member of Jefferson Chapter of Phi Alpha Delta. In 1969, President Nixon nominated Haynsworth to the Supreme Court, but received heavy opposition because of prior opinions which were seen as supporting segregation and others seen as being “anti-labor”. The nomination to the Supreme Court was not successful, but Haynsworth continued to serve on the appellate court until his death in 1989.

George Washington (1732-1799). Washington was a prominent American military leader and statesman and is considered one of the Founding Fathers of the United States. He is often referred to as The Father of the Country. Washington was born in what was then the British Colony of Virginia. He studied at the Lower Church School in Hartfield, and particularly studied math and land surveying. He became a talented draftsman and mapmaker. He received his surveyor's license from the College of William and Mary and his first position of public service was as surveyor of Culpepper County. He received military training and was commissioned a major in the Virginia Regiment. During his service in the French and Indian War he became a Lieutenant Colonel and head of the Virginia Regiment. After the war, he served in the Virginia House of Delegates and represented Virginia in the Continental Congress. During the American Revolution he served as commander-in-chief of the Continental Army which succeeded in winning independence for the new nation. He played a pivotal role in the adoption and ratifying of the United States Constitution and was subsequently elected the first President of the United States under that constitution. He served for two terms as president, helping to create a strong federal government. As President he established many precedents including addressing the president as "Mr. President", the peaceful transference of power, and the traditional two term limit on service. His famous farewell address when leaving office focused on the national unity and warned against the dangers posed by regionalism, partisanship, and foreign influence. Like other Virginians of his time, Washington was a slave owner and is often criticized for his failure to support initiatives to end slavery despite his expressed desire to see the abolition of slavery. His attitude toward native Americans is a subject of some historical debate, but at best he likely supported abandonment of native American culture and adoption by the indigenous of the culture and manner of white settlers. Nevertheless, Washington remains an icon of American history and is consistently ranked as one of America's greatest presidents.

Williams.
Installation:	The chapter was installed by International Treasurer Arnold Hirsch (Coke), District V Justice Carrie Smith (Black), and officers of Black Chapter. Congressman Barry Goldwater, Jr. (Shepherd), son of the chapter's namesake, was present for the ceremony and addressed the initiates. Associate Dean Kris Niedringhaus and Professor Penny L. Willrich also attended representing the law school.
Namesake:	Barry Morris Goldwater (1909-1998). Goldwater was a prominent American businessman, military officer, and statesman. Born in the city of Phoenix in what was then the Arizona Territory, Goldwater attended Staunton Military Academy and after graduation in 1928, spent one year at the University of Arizona. He worked for the family business, Goldwater's Department Store, and took over the business in 1930. A life long civil rights advocate, Goldwater integrated the store and helped establish the Arizona Chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). During World War II, Goldwater served in the United States Army Air Force, piloting supplied supplies to war zones throughout the world. After the war he continued to serve in the Arizona Air National Guard and in the Air Force Reserve, achieving the rank of Major General at retirement in 1967. When the Arizona Air National Guard was organized in 1946, Goldwater ensure that it was integrated. He served on the Phoenix City Council from 1950-1952 and was elected to the United States Senate in 1952. He served in the Senate from 1953-1965, unsuccessfully running for President in 1964 as the republican nominee. As a senator, Goldwater supported the Civil Rights Act of 1957 and 1964, but opposed the Civil Rights Act of 1964. He generally favored the provisions of the Act but was opposed to certain language which he thought would give the federal government too much power in dictating hiring and firing policies. He later stated that voting against the Act was one of his greatest regrets. This vote cost him a great deal of support and contributed to his loss in the presidential election. He supported the integration of southern schools, but criticized the use of federal troops to enforce desegregation and was concerned about infringement of states rights. After his failed attempt to become president, Goldwater returned to the Senate in 1969 and continued to serve until 1987. During this time, he was initiated as an honorary member of Phi Alpha Delta's Knox Chapter on October 18, 1978. He served as Chair of the Senate Intelligence Committee from 1981-1985 and Chair of the Senate Armed Services Committee from 1985-1987. After retirement from the Senate Goldwater remained politically active and advocated for gay rights and open service of homosexuals in the military, abortion rights, environmental protect, legalization of medial marijuana, and adoption rights for same-sex couples.

In the 1660's he became a prolific writer, often criticizing religions other than Quakerism, and was imprisoned on several occasions.

In 1677, Penn and a group of prominent Quakers purchased the colonial province of West Jersey and began promotion expansion of Quaker held land in the New World.

Eventually he established “Sylvania” which was renamed Pennsylvania in honor of Penn’s father. He is considered the founder of both Pennsylvania and Philadelphia where he advocated democracy and religious freedom. He was known for friendly relations and successful treaty negotiations with native Americans, the Lenape, who resided in the area. Penn was one of the earliest supporters of colonial unification and much of his writing on democratic principles inspired the framers of the U.S. Constitution.

Namesake: Rosalie Erwin Wahl (1924-2013). Wahl was a prominent American attorney legal educator, and jurist. She received her undergraduate degree in her native Kansas and then moved to Minnesota. She attended William Mitchell College of Law (now known as Mitchell Hamline School of Law) at night and was one of only two women then enrolled. While attending William Mitchell, Wahl was initiated into Phi Delta Delta's Alpha Epsilon Psi Chapter. She graduated in 1967, and began work as an Assistant State Public Defender, arguing over 100 cases in the Minnesota Supreme Court. Her alma mater hired her to establish a criminal and civil law clinic in 1973. In 1977, she became the first woman to serve on the Minnesota Supreme Court. She served as Associate Justice of that court from 1977-1994. While serving on the court she authored over five hundred opinions including the opinion in State v. Russell in which the court ruled that different criminal penalties for crack and powder cocaine were unconstitutional. She wrote several opinions on race and sex discrimination. She was chair of the Minnesota Gender Bias Taskforce and the Racial Bias Taskforce. She was the first woman to chair the ABA Accreditation Committee and the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar. Though retiring in 1994, she remained active in the legal community throughout her life.

Namesake:	Elbert Parr Tuttle (1897-1996) . Tuttle was a prominent American attorney and jurist. He served his country during World War I in the United States Army Air Force. After the war, he attended Cornell Law School, graduating in 1923. He again served his country in the United States Army during World War II. He declined desk duty and was injured in combat in Okinawa. He retired as a brigadier general and was the recipient of numerous military honors including the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Legion, of Merit, and the Bronze Star. Except for the duration of his army service during World War II, he engaged in private practice from 1923-1953 focusing on tax litigation, but also doing pro bono work with the American Civil Liberties Union and handling several civil rights cases. After the war, he resumed private practice until he was appointed General Counsel to the United States Department of Treasurer in 1953. From 1954 to 1968 he served as a judge of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, including a seven-year stint as Chief Judge. Thereafter he served as a senior judge, first for the Fifth and later for the Eleventh Circuit. He held the later post until his death in 1996. During his judicial service in the fifties and sixties, he was involved in multiple decisions advancing racial equality including Browder v. Gayle which ended segregation in public busing in Montgomery, Alabama and Holmes v. Danner which integrated the University of Georgia.
